

District 70

Jazzier Smith Award

District 70 Continuing Motion C7 – Annual Conference 21/5/04

That District 70 Policy Committee consider nominations for the Jazzier Smith Award at its meeting prior to the Annual Conference.

The criteria for selection shall be:

A member of District 70, excluding the Policy Committee, who exemplifies in some way, the attributes and characteristics of Jazzier Smith. These attributes to include courage, overcoming adversity, persistence and perseverance, loyalty to Toastmasters, pride in Toastmasters, friendliness, cheerfulness and support for other members.

In addition, a citation will be prepared to accompany the presentation, which is to be presented by the current Northern Division Governor. The award will be presented at the Annual Conference.

To learn more about the man behind this award refer to The Jazzier Smith Story on the next page.

---

Nominations for 2012 District 70 Jazzier Smith Award are to be submitted using the attached form and emailed or posted to the District Secretary by Saturday 24th March 2012.

District Secretary
DSec@d70toastmasters.org
PO Box 292
Minto BC NSW 2566

Nominations Close:
Saturday,
24th March 2012

Note: only applications received by the nomination close date will be considered.

THE JAZZER SMITH STORY

Jazzier Smith died in May, 1987, at the age of 47. During his short lifetime, he touched the life of countless people - and this is the story of a small part of that remarkable life.

James Russell (Kenneth) Smith was born on September 4, 1939, in Hobart. The son of James Henry Robert Smith and Annie Jean Smith, he grew up on the slopes of Mount Wellington in the small community of Fern Tree. His father was called away to war and died when James was only two years old. His mother was left with five children and very little money, but a wealth of courage.

By the time James had left school to begin an apprenticeship with a printer, there were two major loves in his life - music and people. While playing drums in a rock band he earned the nickname Jazzier (Jas. R.) and that name stuck for the rest of his life.

At the age of 30, Jazzier had a satisfying career in music, also a career in the media as a journalist, TV show compere and radio copy manager. His life was looking promising when he was given a death sentence.

The doctors at Peter McCallum Cancer Institute in Hobart told Jazzier that he had Non-Hodgkins Lymphoma (a cancer of the lymph glands) and that it was terminal. Somehow this seemed to strengthen Jazzier's concern to live life to the fullest and not waste one single minute. He went on with his search for success, for life, and left Hobart to establish himself in Melbourne.

Jazzier became copy manager of Radio 3DB in Melbourne, then left to join the Musicians' Union as their Public Relations Officer. He later started 'Across Country', a country music newspaper and became editor of the Journal of Australian Music and Musicians (JAMM).

On the advice of his doctors, Jazzier came to a warmer climate - Tamworth, where he was editor of Capital News, which became Australia's only monthly country music newspaper. Because of his constant contact with people, conducting interviews, etc., Jazzier found that he wanted to improve his communication skills, so on the advice of a workmate, Bob Kirchner, Jazzier joined Tamworth Toastmasters.

During his life he was a self confessed "non club member" and had always strived to retain his individuality, so clubs were not on his list of priorities. But Toastmasters became the exception to the rule. As well as benefitting from the Club, he was still able to retain his uniqueness.

He was talked into becoming President of the Club after being a member for only a few months. Jazzier believed the greatest thing about Toastmasters was the challenge it presented. He always said that the only person you competed with in Toastmasters was yourself - you challenge yourself constantly to achieve your next goal. That is what kept him so involved with the organisation.

After his term as President, Jazzier took on several other executive roles within the Club and became Area Governor in 1985. The following year, Jazzier became the first Northern Division Lieutenant Governor to come from the Tamworth area.

His many friends in Toastmasters will remember Jazzier with a smile as they recall listening to his humorous speeches; his more serious speeches about cancer and various aspects of life would cause others to reflect deeply on life and their attitude to it.

Despite often the most difficult circumstances, Jazzier always gave 100 percent effort and was a tremendous fighter. To strive to emulate Jazzier is impossible. There will never be another James Russell (Jazzier) Smith.

District 70

Jazzier Smith Award 2012

Nomination Form

Name: <input type="text"/>
Highest Education Award: <input type="text"/>	Years Membership: <input type="text"/>
Submitted by: <input type="text"/>

General Comments

General Comments

A large, empty rectangular box with a light gray background, intended for general comments. The box is bounded by a thin black line and occupies most of the page below the header.