Have your employees had all the electrical safety training they need, or are you confused about what training is required for which employees? Let UA SafeState help put your mind at ease. Our comprehensive on-line training program provides a confidential cost-effective means to both:

assess which employees have electrical safety knowledge needs in relation to their assigned job duties; and address those needs with individualized courses of instruction that provide just the right amount of training needed. No more, no less.

Because these programs are entirely online, including both assessment and training modules, your employees can be brought up to speed on a schedule that meets their needs as well as the needs of your business.
