

TRANSPARENTING[®]

is a 4-hour educational seminar focusing on the needs of children during the stressful transition of divorce or parental separation. Required by the Courts of Daviess, Dubois, Gibson and Pike Counties for all parties involved in divorce, paternity, custody disputes, or modification of visitation with minor children, this seminar is designed to build on the strengths parents inherently have to help them as they work with their child(ren) to emerge from this experience of divorce with a sense of self-worth and belonging. One of the primary messages given throughout the seminar is that children need both parents in their lives and that parents need to work together to increase their child's ability to adjust to the changes associated with divorce/parental separation. Those benefitting from Transparenting are: divorcing parents, never-married parents (paternity cases), previously-divorced parents who are changing custody/visitation arrangements, custodial grandparents & other concerned family members.

TransParenting (originally called Children Coping with Divorce) was developed in the late 1980's by Families First (Atlanta, GA). Doulos Family Services became a licensed provider of this program in September, 1993. Since that time, over 9000 persons have attended the seminar through this agency.

FREE RESOURCE AVAILABLE

Prior to attending the Transparenting seminar, you are strongly encouraged to use an excellent resource which is available free on the internet. UpToParents.org is a free, confidential, and interactive website for divorcing and divorced parents designed to assist parents through difficult changes. ProudToParent.org is intended for those who were never married but have children together. This process will assist parents in making specific decisions which will have a positive impact on their children. While not a requirement by the Courts at this time, persons who participate in the process will benefit immensely from the practical ideas and suggestions provided on these websites.

Doulos Family Services, incorporated in 1992, is a social service agency whose mission is to strengthen families through the provision of services that meet emotional, social and spiritual needs.
