HELPING HANDBOOK

FOR INDIVIDUALS AND SMALL BUSINESSES AFFECTED BY THE 2008 SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA WILDFIRES

This Handbook provides an overview of some of the legal issues that individuals and small businesses may face as a result of the wildfires that swept Southern California in November of 2008.

It may not answer all of your questions. Rather, this Handbook is designed to set out some of the legal issues you may need to consider, to help you understand the basics about each issue, and to point you in the right direction for help.

You may feel overwhelmed when considering the legal issues you face, and may determine that it would be helpful to have the assistance of an attorney. If you do not have an attorney, legal advice and referrals are available to those in need who have been affected by the wildfires; some of this legal assistance is available at no charge to fire victims. To help you get started, a county-by-county listing of State Bar-certified lawyer referral agencies and several legal aid providers can be found under the heading "Lawyer Referral Services & Legal Aid."

Morrison & Foerster LLP makes available the contents of this Handbook for information purposes only. Although we hope and believe the Handbook will be helpful as background material, we cannot warrant that it is accurate or complete, particularly as circumstances change after publication. Moreover, the Handbook is general in nature and may not apply to particular factual or legal circumstances. In any event, the Handbook does not constitute legal advice and should not be relied on as such. Morrison & Foerster LLP renders legal advice only after compliance with certain procedures for accepting clients and when it is legally and ethically permissible to do so. Readers seeking to act upon any of the information contained in this Handbook are urged to seek individual advice from their own legal counsel.

HOUSING

TEMPORARY HOUSING

My primary residence (house, condominium, or apartment) was destroyed by the wildfires, and although I have been able to stay in shelters or with friends and family, I need to find temporary housing of my own. Can anyone help me find temporary housing and/or help pay for it?

Yes, one or more of several different programs or entities should be able to assist you in these circumstances.

First, various charitable organizations such as the Red Cross may be able to provide you with assistance. See “Other Resources” for charitable organization contact information.

Second, if you have homeowners’ or renter’s insurance, temporary housing may be covered by your policy. Talk to your insurance agent. See the “Insurance” section of this handbook for more information.

Third, FEMA provides rental assistance to households that have been displaced from their primary residence as the result of a federally declared disaster, such as the wildfires. These need-based grants enable homeowners and renters who are victims of disaster-related dislocation to obtain temporary replacement housing for one to three months (without recertification). To be eligible for this assistance, you or someone who lives with you must be a citizen, a non-citizen national, or a qualified alien; you must not have other, adequate rent-free housing you can use (for example, a vacation home or unused rental property); and you must be affected by one or more of the following conditions:

- Housing loss in an area that has been declared a disaster by the President. President Bush has declared Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, and Santa Barbara Counties federal disaster areas.
- If you have insurance, the damage to your property is not covered by your insurance or your insurance settlement is insufficient to meet your losses.
- The home in the disaster area is where you usually live and where you were living at the time of the disaster.
- You are not able to live in your home now, you cannot get to your home due to the disaster, or your home requires repairs because of damage from the disaster.

You may not be eligible for “Housing Needs” assistance if:

- You have other, adequate rent-free housing that you can use (for example, rental property that is not occupied).
- Your home that was damaged is your secondary or vacation residence.
- Your expenses resulted only from leaving your home as a precaution and you were able to return to your home immediately after the incident.
- You have refused assistance from your insurance provider(s).
- Your only losses are business losses (including farm business other than the farmhouse and self-employment) or items not covered by this program.
- The damaged home where you live is located in a designated flood hazard area and your community is not participating in the National Flood Insurance Program. In this case, the flood damage to your home would not be covered, but you may qualify for rental assistance or items not covered by flood insurance, such as water wells, septic systems, medical, dental, or funeral expenses.

Only one application will be taken from each household, which FEMA generally considers to be all people living in one apartment or house. You may apply (i) by phone at the following number: 1-800-621-FEMA (3362), or (ii) online at the following website: <http://www.fema.gov/assistance/index.shtm>.

Aid also may be provided through the Individuals & Households Program (IHP) (1-800-621-3362, for the speech- or hearing-impaired, the number is 1-800-462-7585), a joint FEMA/State of California program, or through the California State Supplemental Grant Program (SSGP) 1-800-759-6807, or for the speech- or hearing-impaired, the TTY number is 1-800-952-8349.

The SSGP grants assist individuals with any eligible items not already addressed by the IHP. However, individuals must have applied to FEMA and maximized the IHP award in order to be eligible for SSGP.

In addition, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) may offer Section 8 rental assistance and relocation plans for tenants in subsidized public housing. Lastly, if you were living in a Rural Development-financed apartment and have been displaced, you may be eligible for additional assistance, such as priority at other apartment complexes, from the USDA Rural Development Agency at 800-414-1226.

My primary residence, which I own, was destroyed by the wildfires. Am I obligated to continue paying my mortgage, homeowners' association fees, insurance, etc. on that residence? Does it make a difference if my residence was only damaged rather than destroyed?

Unless you obtain a forbearance agreement from your lender, you should still continue to pay your mortgage, regardless of whether your residence was destroyed or damaged. If (i) your residence has suffered substantial uncompensated disaster damage (40% or more of the original property value), (ii) you intend to repair the damage or rebuild, and (iii) you do not have sufficient credit available elsewhere to cover your mortgage payments, the Small Business Administration (SBA) may be able to refinance all or part of your outstanding mortgage, which might result in a reduced monthly mortgage payment.

If your home loan is through the United States Department of Veterans Affairs (VA), you may be able to have the loan adjusted. Call the VA regional office where the property is located. The proper regional office should be on the loan papers; if not available, call the VA at 800-827-6551 for the number of the correct regional office.

With regard to homeowners' association fees or insurance premiums, you should review the language of your association's bylaws or the insurance policy. Generally, however, to the extent that you still have some property that might be covered by the insurance policy or affected by activities of the homeowners' association, it likely is in your best interest to pay the amounts owed.

If my rental unit has been damaged or destroyed, what issues do I need to consider?

- Do you have a written lease?
- How badly is the rental unit damaged?
- Do you want to keep possession of the apartment, move out temporarily while the landlord makes repairs, or move out permanently?
- Is the unit rent-controlled or subsidized?

What if I have a written lease?

Your rights will be determined by the provisions of your lease (to the extent they are not superseded by California law). There is no "standard" form of lease, and the provisions that cover these matters can vary significantly, even for different leases in the same building. A professional will need to check the provisions of your lease carefully to answer these questions for your particular case. The following is only general information for tenants regarding damaged premises as a result of the California wildfires.

How do I assess the damage to my rental unit?

Under California law, landlords must maintain rental units in habitable condition. A residential tenant cannot be forced to waive his or her right to habitable premises. Unless you have a unique lease that you negotiated with your landlord, this information about habitability most likely applies to your rental unit. In order to be considered habitable, the rental units must substantially satisfy each of the following conditions:

- roof and exterior walls must be waterproof;
- windows and doors must be unbroken;
- gas facilities must be in good working order;
- plumbing and gas systems must be in good working order;
- hot and cold running water must be provided;
- sewage disposal systems must be operational;
- heating equipment must be in good working order;
- building must be sanitary, and free from debris, filth, rubbish and garbage;
- electrical lighting and wiring must be maintained in good working order; and
- floors, stairways, and railings must be kept in good repair.

In addition, for a rental unit to be in habitable condition, each unit must have the following:

- working toilet, wash basin and shower or bath;
- kitchen with sink;
- natural lighting;
- fire or emergency exits;
- operable locks on doors; and
- working smoke detectors.

If my rental unit is damaged, what can I do if I have a month-to-month lease and want to move permanently?

You can give a month's notice to your landlord and then move. If, however, the unit is substantially damaged (i.e., damaged to the extent that the premises are no longer usable as a residence), you may not need to give a month's notice. In that case, see the guidelines below.

If my rental unit is damaged, do I have to pay rent if I have a one-year lease and I want to move out permanently?

Under California law, you may terminate your tenancy, and therefore not pay rent, if the unit is substantially damaged. If you want to terminate your tenancy, you should:

- check your lease for applicable provisions (see above);
- list the condition of the unit;
- obtain FEMA inspection reports;
- request a local city building inspection and obtain a certified copy of the inspection report;
- photograph the damage and record the date the picture was taken, who took the picture, and the subject of the picture; and
- have the unit and/or building viewed by reliable witnesses and record the date they viewed the premises and what they saw.

If you conclude that your unit is substantially damaged, you should then write a letter to your landlord, including copies of the documentation set forth above. In the letter, include your name, your landlord's name, the address of the residence, that the rental unit is not habitable, and that you consider the lease terminated. Make sure to sign and date the letter and keep a copy for your records. You then would be in a strong position to proceed as if the unit were destroyed, although your landlord may dispute that position.

Can I terminate my lease if my rental unit is partially damaged?

If only a portion of the area you rent is destroyed, you may terminate the lease, by notifying your landlord (see above) if the part destroyed is a substantial portion of the premises or if the part destroyed is material to your use. However, if the part destroyed is not substantial, then you must first notify your landlord of the repairs necessary and give your landlord a reasonable time to make the repairs. If your landlord does not make the repairs within a reasonable time, then you may be able to terminate the lease.

My primary residence was damaged during the wildfires. If I move out while repairs are being made, can I get any assistance in finding and paying for temporary housing?

Depending on the amount of damage, you may be eligible for assistance. Potential sources include charitable organizations, your insurance, and FEMA's assistance program, discussed previously.

During the wildfires, I was ordered to evacuate my primary residence. Instead of going to one of the local shelters, I rented a room in a motel. Can I obtain reimbursement for the money I spent on the motel room? What if my primary residence was neither damaged nor destroyed as a result of the wildfires?

You may be eligible for assistance from charitable organizations, your insurance or FEMA. Many insurance companies will reimburse you for a motel stay. You should save your receipts and document your expenses in case you are able to obtain reimbursement.

If you qualify, FEMA may provide you with rental assistance funds to rent a different place to live in. The rental assistance funds are paid in installments, and may be renewed as needed. FEMA should call you to check to see if you need a renewal of funds. If coverage is available, you will need to provide receipts for where you stayed during the evacuation. Additionally, in instances of widespread destruction or damage, if FEMA determines that there is no rental housing available in the local community due to the disaster, it may provide government provided housing (e.g., modular/mobile homes) to disaster victims.

The Red Cross and local charities may also offer additional assistance to cover temporary housing expenses.

My primary residence, which I own, was destroyed by the wildfires. Who can help me have it rebuilt? If my residence was not insured, or the insurance turns out to be insufficient, are there any programs that might help me rebuild?

As with other types of assistance, you should first look to charitable donations and insurance proceeds to cover the costs of rebuilding and repair. To the extent that you were uninsured or underinsured, the SBA, FEMA or the state may be able to help. For more information, see the "SBA Loan Assistance", "FEMA", and "State Aid Programs" sections of this Handbook.

When the wildfires destroyed my residence, I lost almost all of my personal possessions. Can anyone help me obtain replacement clothes and necessities? What about replacing my television, VCR, computer, etc.?

Yes, you should be able to replace personal property that was destroyed with insurance proceeds and/or grants or loans from several federal or state programs. For more immediate needs, charitable organizations can provide clothing and household items. See the "Other Resources" section of this handbook for charities that can help.

First, if you have homeowners' insurance or renter's insurance, the policies typically include provisions for the replacement of personal property, subject to various conditions and policy limitations. Additionally, if you were renting your primary residence, check to see if your landlord named you as an additional insured; if she did, you may be covered under your landlord's policy.

Second, the SBA may provide a Personal Property Loan in an amount up to $40,000 to both homeowners and renters. The amount of money that the SBA can loan depends on the actual cost of repairing or replacing the damage, less insurance recovery, grants, etc. That loan can be used to repair or replace personal property such as clothes, furniture, automobiles, consumer electronics, etc. However, the SBA loan cannot be used to replace luxury or extraordinarily expensive items, such as personal pleasure boats, airplanes, RVs, fur coats, etc., or to pay for upgrades or make additions to the home, unless required by building codes. Further, property such as antiques or collections of rare goods that may have market values in excess of their functional value only are covered for the amount of their functional value. (For example, reimbursement for a collection of 4 rare quarters would be $1.00, not the price for which one might sell them at a coin show).

Third, to the extent that your personal property losses exceed the amount of your insurance coverage and/or SBA loans, and assuming other conditions are met, FEMA may provide assistance in repairing or replacing personal property such as bedding, appliances, furniture and clothing through disaster grants and its Individuals & Households Program (IHP).

If I clean up debris from my property that resulted from the fire, do I need to get some sort of permit?

The California Department of Toxic Substances Control (“DTSC”) has stated that immediate efforts to clean up ash, charred debris and other contaminated materials from burned residential structures are exempt from hazardous waste permit requirements. Note, however, that this exemption “applies only to the emergency actions taken to clean up, contain and dispose of the ash and debris from the burned structures” and “does not apply to long-term restoration activities.” For more detailed information on hazardous waste removal, you may want to contact your local county environmental health department or the California Integrated Waste Management Board at (916) 341-6300 (or check its website at www.ciwmb.ca.gov). Additionally, you can contact the DTSC at (800) 728-6942 for general inquiries, at (800) 698-6942 for complaints about toxic substances, or check its website at www.dtsc.ca.gov for more particular information and advice. If you have insurance, check with your agent or insurance company before starting any clean up. See the “Insurance” section of this handbook for more information.

Must I send any debris I clean up to a special collection facility?

Ash and debris should be contained and sent to municipal solid waste landfills. If feasible, disposal at a lined landfill is environmentally preferable to avoid soil or water contamination. To the extent that hazardous materials cannot be separated from other burned materials (as is likely to be the case in a burned residential structure), the DTSC has indicated that such debris may also be sent to municipal solid waste landfills or lined landfills. For more detailed information on hazardous waste removal, you may want to contact your local county environmental health department or the California Integrated Waste Management Board at (916) 341-6300 (or check its website at www.ciwmb.ca.gov).

My primary residence, which I own, was destroyed by the wildfires. Will I need a permit to rebuild it?

As a general rule, a building permit is required whenever structural work is involved or when the basic living area of a home is to be changed. This could include separate permits for roofing, electrical, heating, and plumbing. Typically the contractor overseeing the rebuilding/repair will obtain the necessary building permits from the city or county building/planning department.

Cities and counties may offer special treatment for building permit applications submitted by wildfire victims. Make sure that you or your contractor ask about any special programs available for wildfire victims regarding building permits. Contact information for the affected counties’ Permit Offices can be found on the counties’ websites: <http://lacounty.info> (Los Angeles County); www.oc.ca.gov (Orange County); www.countyofriverside.us (Riverside County); www.sbcounty.gov (San Bernardino County); www.countyofsb.org (Santa Barbara County); and www.countyofventura.org (Ventura County).

What happens if I do not get a building permit?

If the authorities find out that you have undertaken repairs or rebuilding without obtaining a necessary permit, you will generally be liable for permit costs, be required to pay a fine, and may be ordered to tear down any construction that was done without authorization. The amount of the fine varies by jurisdiction, but is typically at least $500 per incident. Further, if you sell your property, you are required by law to disclose work that has been done without the required permits, which could lower the sale price or jeopardize the sale of your property altogether.

My former house was built before the current building codes were put in place. When rebuilding, do I have to conform to the new building codes?

Yes, houses must be constructed according to the current codes in effect at the time the permit is issued for reconstruction. If your house is only being repaired, some cities and counties may not require you to conform to new building repairs if such repairs are considered “minor.” You should check your insurance policy or call your insurance carrier to determine whether your homeowners’ policy provides for upgrades to the current building code. Some policies do not pay for building code upgrades, and you may then have to pay out-of-pocket for such upgrades. During the Oakland Hills fire of 1991, many insurance carriers upgraded policies that did not pay for building code upgrades, but in the years since, many insurers have capped these payouts absent specific policy endorsements.

Is it a good idea to be my own general contractor?

Unless you are very experienced in the construction business, no. As an owner/builder, you assume responsibility for the overall job, which may include state and federal taxes, workers’ compensation insurance, and other legal liabilities.

If I’m not my own contractor, how will I know which contractor to hire?

A standard rule is only to use contractors who have been referred to you by someone you know and trust. However, in times like these, that is not always possible. Unscrupulous contractors may attempt to solicit work from you, offering to repair or rebuild your home for what appears to be a low price. Remember, if something seems “too good to be true” it probably is. Although you may be anxious to get things back to normal, avoid acting too quickly. Take the time to figure out what exactly you want done, and make sure the contractor addresses all your concerns. Make sure to get at least three competitive bids that are based on the same set of specifications before making your decision. Watch out for door-to-door offers of repair services, and never provide the contractor with a cash deposit. You should also get a written contract that details every aspect of the work to be done. Before signing a contract with a contractor, be sure to check his or her license status and references.

Must a contractor be licensed?

State law requires that contractors (other than owners/builders) working on any job that requires $500 or more for labor and materials be licensed by the California Contractors State License Board (CSLB). Ask to see the contractor’s license (called a “pocket license”) that has the license number on it (state contractors’ licenses are solely numeric; no alphabetic characters are included in them), as well as an additional form of identification for verification (the contractor’s license should be in the contractor’s own name). You can verify a contractor’s license status by using the CSLB’s website at www.cslb.ca.gov or CSLB’s toll-free automated telephone system at (800) 321-2752. The CSLB has also established a hotline only for disaster victims at (800) 962-1125, which operates during weekdays.

Do I need a written contract?

State law requires that home improvement contracts for $500 or more in labor or materials be in writing. Note that anything you sign could be used by a contractor as authorization to go forward with a project, so do not sign anything until you completely understand what it is.

Can I change my mind after I sign the contract?

California law allows you to cancel a contract within three business days of signing it, provided that the contract was solicited someplace other than the contractor's place of business (such as in your own home). You must give the contractor written notice of your intent to cancel. The law also requires the contractor to give you written notice of this right to cancel.

How much can a contractor require as a down payment?

California law limits the amount of the down payment for any home improvement contract (including swimming pools) to the lesser of $1,000 or 10% of the contract price (excluding finance charges). As a general rule, never make cash payments to contractors.

How can I make sure the work progresses as scheduled in the contract?

In general, a contract must provide a description of the work to be done, the time period in which it is to be done (including the date on which "substantial commencement of work" should occur), the materials to be used, and the equipment to be used or installed. Contractors often ask that you make progress payments to them as the work progresses. California law requires that the contract specify all the work that is to be completed before a progress payment is made. California law also requires that the progress payment cannot exceed the value of the work performed up to that point. Finally, California law allows you to withhold 10% of each scheduled progress payment as a "retention" payment, which you pay when the job is completed and the city and county has approved all work.

What happens when the contractor uses subcontractors or suppliers?

You will need to protect yourself from liens against your property in the event the contractor does not pay the subcontractors or suppliers. California's Mechanics' Lien Law allows those who furnish labor or materials to your home to record a lien against your home if they are not paid, even if you have paid your general contractor in accordance with the contract. At its most extreme, a lien may cause your property to be foreclosed if you are unable to pay it. At the very least, a lien will make your property more difficult to finance or sell.

California law requires that the contractor provide you with a "Notice to Owner" of the Mechanics' Lien Law. That notice suggests measures you can take to prevent liens against your home, such as requiring:

- that your contractor set aside for you a payment and performance bond to pay for any liens that may be placed;
- that payments to subcontractors or suppliers be made by you directly or by a funding or escrow service; and
- that your contractor provide you with unconditional "Waiver and Release" forms signed by each subcontractor or supplier involved.

Note that the general contractor also can place a lien on your house if you fail to pay for his or her services.

What effect does an arbitration clause have in my contract?

By agreeing to arbitrate your dispute, you are agreeing to have a dispute with your contractor decided by a neutral third party (known as the arbitrator) rather than by a judge or jury (unless the arbitration is non-binding). Many consumers prefer arbitration to court proceedings because, generally, arbitration is less expensive. However, if you proceed with binding arbitration, you waive almost all grounds for seeking review of the arbitrator's decision; in almost all circumstances, the arbitrator's decision will be the final decision, even if you think the arbitrator made a mistake of fact or law.

What is the effect of a clause allowing the contractor to recover attorney's fees and costs from me if there is a dispute?

Generally, in a legal dispute, each side pays its own attorney's fees and costs. However, an attorney's fees clause means that, should the contractor prevail in a dispute in arbitration or in court, you will have to pay the contractor's attorney's fees and costs. California law provides a reciprocal benefit with respect to attorney's fee clauses; that is, should you be the prevailing party rather than the contractor, you may recover your attorneys' fees and costs despite the fact that the clause may not specifically provide that you are entitled to do so.

A man, who said he was a contractor, offered to clean up my property, assess the damage to it for the purpose of obtaining grants and loans, and rebuild my house for $50,000, with just $5,000 down. Fortunately, I have the money available. Should I hire him?

Before hiring anyone as a contractor or other service provider in connection with damage to, or destruction of, your property, you should take care to be an "aware consumer." As discussed above, if a person represents himself as a contractor, you should obtain his contractor's license number and check that it is valid. Additionally, most, if not all, entities and programs that will provide property owners with funds to rebuild or replace damaged property have their own inspection/assessment programs. As a result, unless the funding entity instructs you otherwise, you need not hire a private person or firm to perform an inspection of your property as part of the application process.

Although my primary residence, which I own, was not destroyed during the fires, it was damaged and is no longer habitable. Can I get any assistance to repair my house?

Yes; in addition to charitable grants or loans or insurance proceeds, FEMA and the SBA may be able to help with repairs.

FEMA, through its Individuals and Households Program (IHP), provides grants to homeowners to repair damage from the disaster that is not covered by insurance. The goal is to repair the home to a safe and sanitary living or functioning condition. These grants are only available when a disaster has been declared and individual assistance has been authorized. FEMA provided up to $5,400 for disasters declared in the 2006 federal fiscal year.

If you apply for IHP, FEMA will inspect your home and base the amount of its grant on the reasonable cost of repair to the damaged property. Repairs covered by IHP include:

- structural parts of a home (foundation, outside walls, roof);
- windows, doors, floors, walls, ceilings, cabinetry;
- septic or sewage system;
- well or other water system;
- heating, ventilating, and air-conditioning system;
- utilities (electrical, plumbing, and gas system); and
- entrance and exit ways from the home, including privately owned access roads.

If you own a mobile home and it is your primary residence, IHP will cover repair costs related to blocking, leveling, and anchoring the mobile home and reconnecting or resetting its sewer, water, electrical, fuel lines or tanks.

If your home needs more extensive repairs than the FEMA program will fund, then the SBA may be able to help, as described in response to the question about rebuilding after complete destruction of a residence, above.

My residence was destroyed during the wildfires. Do I need to still pay the property taxes that are due in early December and April?

Generally, yes, but if the total value of the damage to your property exceeds $10,000, you may be eligible for immediate relief based on the loss in value caused by the wildfires. Such relief would provide you with an immediate reduction in property taxes, including possible refunds of property taxes already paid.

Further, owners of real property and manufactured homes may be able to defer, without penalty or interest, payment of the next property tax installment due. (Tax deferral is not available if you pay your property taxes through an impound account.) Applications for deferral should be filed with the county assessor along with, or in addition to, the applications for reduced assessments.

In addition, under certain conditions, taxpayers may be eligible to have the taxable values of their properties in their pre-damaged states transferred to comparable replacement properties. In this way, a taxpayer whose home has been damaged or destroyed can acquire or build a new home without incurring increased property taxes that would otherwise occur under Proposition 13.

Fortunately, my residence was not completely destroyed by the wildfires, although it was damaged and some outbuildings (a garage, shed, stable, etc.) were destroyed. Do I still need to pay my property taxes?

Yes, but see the discussion above if your damage exceeded $10,000.

Prior to the wildfires, I had agreed to purchase a residence/real property that subsequently was destroyed by the wildfires. Must I complete the purchase?

It depends on what the terms of the purchase agreement state and whether title to, or possession of, the property passed prior to the destruction of the property. If title to the property already had passed, then you were the owner as of the date of destruction and may be eligible for assistance from your insurer or from the various sources of aid identified in this Handbook. Otherwise, barring contrary language in your purchase and sale agreement, the Uniform Vendor and Purchaser Risk Act, Civil Code section 1662, allows a purchaser to back out of an agreement for the sale of real property if “all or a material part” of the property was destroyed prior to the transfer of title or possession. You may want to obtain the advice of a real estate attorney or other professional to assist you.

EMPLOYMENT

The answers to each of the following questions are based on the assumption that the affected employees are not covered by a collective bargaining agreement and do not have an employment contract with their employer. In the event there is a collective bargaining agreement or an employment contract, the employee should consult the terms of those agreements and contracts. Similarly, if the employer has established employment policies, the employee should review those policies to see if they provide additional benefits or rights.

GETTING PAID

If my employer's payroll records were destroyed, when should I expect to receive my paycheck?

The State of California requires timely payment of wages pursuant to applicable wage-and-hour laws. If records of working hours are not available, you should work with your employer to make a reasonable effort to determine the hours that you worked during the applicable pay period.

Does my employer have to pay me for the days the business was closed as a result of the Southern California Wildfires?

The answer to this question depends in part on whether you are considered an "exempt" employee or a "non-exempt" employee for purposes of federal and state wage-and-hour laws, and whether or not you performed work for your employer during the pay period in question. In general, an employer is not required to pay its non-exempt employees for any days or hours the non-exempt employees did not work because the business was closed due to the Southern California Wildfires. On the other hand, an exempt employee who works any portion of a "workweek," as defined by the employer, should receive his or her full salary for the workweek, without regard to the number of days or hours worked. You should check with your employer regarding how your employer defines its workweek. So, for example, if you are an exempt employee and your employer's workweek begins on Sunday, and you worked on the morning of Sunday, November 9, 2008, but worked no other days during the week of November 9, 2008, then your employer should pay you your full salary for the week of November 9, 2008.

TIME OFF AND THE RIGHT TO RETURN

May my employer require me to use my accrued vacation or sick leave to cover my absence from work due to the Southern California Wildfires?

If you are unable to report to work due to something related to the Southern California Wildfires, your employer may require you to use your accrued vacation or sick leave to cover your absences as long as this is consistent with the employer's leave policies. You should consult your employer if you believe your absence may qualify as leave under the federal Family Medical Leave Act (FMLA) or its California counterpart, the California Family Rights Act (CFRA), or pregnancy disability leave under the California Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA). These types of leave are discussed in further detail below.

Does my employer have to provide me with either paid or unpaid leave if I am unable to work as a result of an injury suffered during the Southern California Wildfires?

An employer may be required to provide you with unpaid leave: (1) under the FMLA/CFRA if you or a member of your immediate family is suffering from a serious health condition; (2) under the California FEHA for pregnancy, childbirth, or related medical conditions; or (3) under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)/California FEHA if you are disabled and if the granting of leave would serve as a reasonable accommodation to your disability.

Leave Under the FMLA/CFRA. The FMLA/CFRA provides that a covered employee may take up to a total of 12 weeks of unpaid leave during any 12-month period for certain qualifying reasons. During the leave period, the employer must maintain the employee's health benefits and must guarantee that the employee will be reinstated to the same or an equivalent position. FMLA/CFRA leave is unpaid, unless your employer has elected to pay employees during such leave. As described below, you may also be eligible to receive disability benefits under the California SDI program during a qualifying FMLA/CFRA leave.

The FMLA/CFRA applies to only those employers that employ 50 or more employees for each working day in each of 20 or more calendar work weeks in the current or preceding calendar year. An employee is entitled to FMLA/CFRA leave if the employee: (1) has been with the employer for at least 12 months; (2) logged at least 1,250 hours of service during the 12-month period immediately preceding the start of the leave; and (3) is employed at a worksite where 50 or more employees are employed by the employer or within 75 miles of that worksite. FMLA/CFRA leave may be taken to care for the employee's spouse, child, or parent with a serious health condition, or because of a serious health condition that makes the employee unable to perform the functions of the employee's position.

For more information regarding the FMLA, check out the following website: www.dol.gov/esa/whd/fmla/.

For more information regarding the CFRA, check out the following website: www.dfeh.ca.gov/publications/publications.aspx?showPub=18.

Pregnancy-Related Leave Under California's Fair Employment and Housing Act. Under the FEHA, employers with five or more employees must allow female employees to take up to four months of leave for periods of disability due to pregnancy, childbirth, or related medical conditions. The employee may elect to use accrued vacation leave, and may be required to substitute sick leave or any other accrued leave which is made available by the employer to temporarily disabled employees. The employer must continue to provide the same benefits or privileges of employment granted by that employer to other employees.

Pregnancy-related leave under the FEHA is unpaid, unless your employer has elected to pay employees during such leave. As described below, you may also be eligible to receive disability benefits under the California SDI program during a qualifying pregnancy-related leave.

For more information regarding the pregnancy leave provisions of the FEHA, check out the following website: www.dfeh.ca.gov/publications/publications.aspx?showPub=17.

Leave Under the ADA/California FEHA. Under certain circumstances, an employer may be required to provide an employee with leave under the ADA/California FEHA. The ADA/California FEHA requires employers, in certain circumstances, to provide reasonable accommodations to employees who have a disability. Such a reasonable accommodation may include providing an employee with an unpaid or paid leave of absence.

The California FEHA generally provides broader protections than its federal counterpart, the ADA. Though the ADA applies to only those employers that employ 15 or more employees for each working day in each of 20 or more calendar work weeks in the current or preceding calendar year, the California FEHA applies to employers with five or more employees. In addition, under the ADA, an employee is "disabled" if the employee has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits a "major life activity" of an individual, including activities such as walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning, working, sitting, standing, lifting, or reaching, whereas under the California FEHA, an employee is "disabled" if he or she has a physical or mental impairment that limits a "major life activity." Generally, temporary impairments are not considered protected disabilities.

Am I entitled to either paid or unpaid leave so that I can care for children or family members injured in the Southern California Wildfires?

As described above, you may be entitled to FMLA/CFRA leave, which you can use to care for children or family members injured in the Southern California Wildfires. If you are entitled to FMLA/CFRA leave as described above, then your employer must allow you to take FMLA/CFRA leave. This leave does not have to be paid leave, but you are entitled to use your accrued vacation or sick leave for the absence, as well as unpaid leave. You may also be eligible to receive benefits under the California Paid Family Leave (“CPFL”) program during a qualifying FMLA/CFRA leave if your leave is taken to care for a seriously ill family member. Also, if your employer has a specific policy providing for leave under such circumstances, the employer will be required to comply with its policy.

For more information regarding the CPFL program, check out the following website: www.edd.ca.gov/Disability/Paid_Family_Leave.htm.

Am I entitled to either paid or unpaid leave if I am too afraid or emotionally traumatized to return to work?

If you are suffering from post-traumatic stress or some other mental condition, your employer may be required to provide you with unpaid leave under the FMLA/CFRA or as an accommodation under the ADA/California FEHA. However, you will have to meet the applicable requirements of these laws, as discussed above. The leave will be unpaid, although you should be able to use any accrued vacation or sick leave for the absence. As described below, you may also be eligible to receive disability benefits under the California SDI program.

If I become ill or injured because of the Southern California Wildfires and cannot return to work, what benefits can I apply for?

You may be eligible for disability benefits under the California State Disability Insurance (SDI) program, a partial wage-replacement insurance plan funded through employee payroll deductions. Most California workers are covered under SDI, but some are exempt, including railroad employees, some employees of nonprofit agencies, employees who claim religious exemptions, and most government employees. Covered workers who are unable to work can receive approximately 55% of their lost wages, for up to one year.

Alternatively, you may be eligible for unemployment insurance benefits or Disaster Unemployment Assistance, though you may not be eligible for SDI benefits if you are claiming or receiving unemployment insurance benefits or Disaster Unemployment Assistance (see “Unemployment Benefits” section in this Handbook for more information).

Am I eligible for SDI benefits?

SDI benefits can be paid only after you meet all of the following requirements:

- you are unable to do your regular or customary work for at least eight (8) consecutive days;
- you were employed and lost wages because of your disability or, if unemployed, you were actively looking for work at the time you became disabled;
- you earned at least $300 during a previous 12-month base period, from which SDI deductions were withheld;
- you are under the care and treatment of a licensed doctor or accredited religious practitioner during the first eight (8) days of your disability (and must remain under care and treatment to continue receiving benefits); and
- your doctor completes the medical certification of your disability.

How do I file a claim for SDI benefits?

You must complete and mail a claim form within 49 days of the date you became disabled or you may lose benefits. A claim form may be obtained from the California Employment Development Department (EDD) website at www.edd.ca.gov/pdf_pub_ctr/de2501.pdf, or by calling (800) 480-3287 (English) or (866) 658-8846 (Spanish). A completed, signed claim form, together with your doctor’s certification of your disability, should be mailed to any of the following addresses:

HEALTH BENEFITS

I was injured as a result of the Southern California Wildfires and cannot return to work. Can I continue my health insurance?

Most California employers are required to offer employees the ability to continue their medical coverage at their own cost for up to 36 months. This coverage is generally referred to as COBRA (Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act) coverage. Normally, you must make an election to continue the coverage within 60 days after the date your coverage terminates as a result of your termination of employment.

What rights do I have to COBRA health coverage?

Employers who have 25 or more employees and maintain health plans are required by the federal law to offer COBRA continuing medical coverage to qualified beneficiaries (participating employees and/or their dependents) who lose health coverage due to a “qualifying event” such as the death of the covered employee, termination of his or her employment, or reduction of his or her hours sufficient to cause the loss of medical coverage. However, employees must pay for this medical coverage themselves.

Smaller employers (with 2 to 19 employees) who maintain health plans are required by the California COBRA (Continuation Benefits Replacement Act) to provide COBRA-like coverage to their eligible employees. Like COBRA, California COBRA requires employees to pay for this medical coverage themselves.

Can my family members keep their health insurance coverage?

Your dependents, who were covered by the plan, can also elect COBRA coverage, if available, at their own cost. Their maximum coverage period will be 36 months.

What can my employer do to help me recover psychologically from the trauma of the Southern California Wildfires? Are there any counseling services available to people affected by the Southern California Wildfires?

Your employer’s health plan may offer counseling to you and your dependents. In addition, some employers may provide assistance under employee assistance programs (EAP). You should ask your employer about the availability of such counseling if you need it, both for yourself and your family. If your employer does not provide an EAP, and you are a veteran, you should seek assistance from the Veterans Administration. Otherwise, you should seek help from a mental health agency in the county in which you live, either permanently or temporarily.

OTHER BENEFITS

Am I entitled to other benefits if I was working at the time I was injured?

You may be able to make a claim under Workers' Compensation for your injuries and lost wages if you were working at the time you were injured. You will need to file a workers' compensation claim with your employer. You should contact your employer immediately if you believe you have sustained a workplace injury.

I'm not eligible for Workers' Compensation. Are there other benefits available?

If you were not on the job at the time you were injured, you may be entitled to short-term or long-term disability insurance payments. Check with your employer and personal insurance agent to find out what coverage you have. Your employer may also provide benefits for specific injuries such as loss of a limb under an accidental death or dismemberment policy. If you have been injured, you should inquire about this coverage as well.

Emergency loans against the cash value of some life insurance policies may also be available. Contact your agent, employer, or insurance company to learn more.

LOSING YOUR JOB

I have lost my job due to the Southern California Wildfires. Is unemployment or disaster insurance available?

You may be entitled to unemployment or disaster unemployment assistance (see below).

Does my employer have to provide its employees with any prior notice of termination if the employer determines that it is necessary to lay off employees?

Probably not, because laws requiring notice do not apply in the case of natural disasters such as the Southern California Wildfires.

Does my employer have to provide me with severance pay if I am laid off?

There is no law that requires severance pay. If your employer has an established severance pay practice or plan, you may be eligible for severance pay, but otherwise severance pay is not required.

Can I be reimbursed by my employer for the destruction or loss of any of my personal items, such as personal computers or cars that I may have used for business purposes?

You should consult with your employer and your own insurance company to determine whether loss of your personal property is covered by any applicable insurance policy. Generally speaking, your employer is not responsible for your loss of personal property.

UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS

I lost my job or cannot work because of the Southern California Wildfires. Am I eligible for unemployment benefits?

You may be eligible for either: (i) unemployment insurance benefits; or (ii) disaster unemployment assistance.

What are unemployment insurance benefits?

Unemployment insurance provides temporary income for workers who are unable to work through no fault of their own. Unemployment insurance benefits are paid weekly, and the amount of the weekly payments generally is based on a worker's earnings in the prior calendar year. In order to be eligible, you must be able to work, be seeking work, and be willing to accept a suitable job, in addition to meeting other criteria.

On October 16, 2008, Governor Schwarzenegger issued an executive order waiving the one-week waiting period for individuals who are unemployed due to the October 2008 wildfires in Los Angeles, San Bernardino, and Ventura counties. Under this executive order, the one-week waiting period will be waived for affected individuals whose claims were filed between October 12, 2008 and November 16, 2008, and who are otherwise eligible.

On November 18, 2008, Governor Schwarzenegger issued another executive order, waiving the one-week waiting period for individuals who are unemployed due to the November 2008 wildfires in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino and Santa Barbara counties. The one-week waiting period has been waived for affected applicants who apply for unemployment insurance benefits during the time period beginning November 18, 2008 and ending on the close of business on December 18, 2008, and who are otherwise eligible.

How do I file a claim for unemployment insurance?

Unemployment insurance claims are filed with the California Employment Development Department (EDD). Claims may be filed using one of the following three methods:

- File online at <https://eapply4ui.edd.ca.gov/>.
- File telephonically by calling (800) 300-5616 (English), (800) 326-8937 (Spanish), (800) 547-3506 (Cantonese), (866) 303-0706 (Mandarin), (800) 547-2058 (Vietnamese), or (800) 815-9387 (TTY), Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.
- File by faxing or mailing a completed application for Unemployment Insurance Benefits to the EDD (an application can be obtained online at <https://eapply4ui.edd.ca.gov/default.htm?target=paper>).

You will need the following information to file a claim:

- your Social Security number, mailing and residence addresses (if different), and telephone number;
- the last date you worked for any employer and the reason you are no longer working;
- your gross earnings in the last week you worked;
- the name, mailing address, physical location, and telephone number of your last employer;
- information on all employers you worked for during the 18 months prior to filing your claim, including each employer's name, your period of employment, wages earned, and how you were paid;
- your driver's license or ID card number, if you have either;
- whether you are receiving, or expect to receive, any payments from a former employer;
- whether you are able to work and are available to accept work; and
- your citizenship status (which may include your alien registration number).

What is Disaster Unemployment Assistance?

On November 18, 2008, President Bush issued a disaster declaration for the State of California in response to the wildfires beginning on November 13, 2008 in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, and Santa Barbara counties. The federal aid that is being made available as a result of this disaster declaration includes Disaster Unemployment Assistance for workers who temporarily lost jobs because of the November 2008 wildfires and who do not qualify for state unemployment insurance benefits.

Disaster Unemployment Assistance is a federal program that provides financial assistance to workers, including the self-employed, who become unemployed as a direct result of a major natural disaster such as the wildfires. Eligible persons will receive weekly payments, which are calculated in the same manner as for unemployment insurance benefits (described above).

Am I eligible to receive Disaster Unemployment Assistance?

You generally will be eligible to receive Disaster Unemployment Assistance if you are an unemployed worker or self-employed individual who lived, worked, or was scheduled to work in the wildfires area and, as a direct result of the November 2008 wildfires in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, and Santa Barbara counties, you:

- are not eligible for unemployment insurance benefits (described above); AND either:
- no longer have a job or a place to work;
- cannot reach your place of work;
- cannot work due to damage to your place of work;
- cannot work because of an injury caused by the wildfires (including mental stress, if documented by a doctor); or
- have become the breadwinner or major support for a household after the head of the household died as a result of the disaster.

Note that according to the EDD, a prior “false statement” disqualification penalty will not make an individual ineligible for a Disaster Unemployment Assistance claim.

For how long may I receive Disaster Unemployment Assistance?

The Disaster Unemployment Assistance claim effective date is November 16, 2008. Disaster Unemployment Assistance benefits are payable for up to 26 weeks. The Disaster Assistance Period for which benefits are payable begins on November 16, 2008 and ends on May 16, 2009. You generally may receive assistance for as long as you remained unemployed during this period. You must accept any suitable jobs offered and must conduct a job search while receiving assistance.

How do I file a claim for Disaster Unemployment Assistance?

The EDD has modified its online and paper applications for unemployment insurance benefits to help the EDD determine if you may be entitled to file for Disaster Unemployment Assistance benefits. You can also apply by telephone by contacting the EDD at (800) 300-5616 (English), (800) 326-8937 (Spanish), (800) 547-3506 (Cantonese), (866) 303-0706 (Mandarin), (800) 547-2058 (Vietnamese), or (800) 815-9387 (TTY), Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

You must file your claim for Disaster Unemployment Assistance within 30 days after the announcement of the disaster declaration (which took place on November 18, 2008). Therefore, you must file your claim for Disaster Unemployment Assistance by December 18, 2008.

For more information regarding Disaster Unemployment Assistance benefits, please see the following website: www.edd.ca.gov/pdf_pub_ctr/de8714y.pdf.

FINDING WORK

Because my employer’s offices were destroyed, I will be working from home. Is there any information I should know?

You should assume that the same laws and requirements, and rights, apply at your temporary work location as would apply if you were in your usual work location. If you are non-exempt, you should keep track of the hours you work. You should also keep track of any expenses you incur, as you may be eligible for reimbursement from your employer.

I lost my job because of the wildfires and need assistance finding a job. Whom should I contact?

INSURANCE

My (real or personal) property was damaged or destroyed during the fires. What insurance policies might provide coverage for my loss?

If your home has been destroyed or damaged as a result of the fires, several different types of policies may provide some coverage for your losses. Homeowners, renters, condominium, vehicle, and separate fire insurance policies all could provide some coverage.

Typical homeowners, renters, and condominium insurance policies cover losses resulting from fire, smoke, wind, theft, riots, vandalism, and water (excluding flood damage). “Comprehensive” vehicle insurance covers damage not caused by collision, including damage caused by fire, theft, vandalism, and windstorm. Fire insurance, not surprisingly, covers losses from fire.

You should immediately contact your insurance agent or insurance company to start the claims process. If your property is at risk of further loss from exposure to the elements, you should also take steps to protect it — make sure you consult your insurance agent or insurance company before altering or disposing of any property.

What type of property should my policy cover?

Coverage depends on the type of insurance you own:

- Homeowners insurance normally covers damage to personal property, dwellings (home and other buildings on your premises), and landscaping (on a limited basis), as well as additional living expenses (including food and housing) incurred as the result of a covered loss.
- Renters insurance usually covers the loss of personal property and loss of use of the property. It may include liability and medical payments coverage.
- Condominium insurance usually covers personal property and improvements. Loss of use is usually limited to 40% of the household contents limit. Condominium associations typically purchase insurance for the building structure and common areas.
- Comprehensive vehicle insurance ordinarily covers physical damage to the insured vehicle (either cost of repairs or fair market value of the vehicle).
- Fire insurance covers the listed property (dwelling and other buildings on the property) and personal property common to such occupancy. Some policies also provide coverage for debris removal, landscaping, and additional living expenses.

Claims typically excluded from coverage include damage resulting from earthquake, flood, mold, and earth movement. Exclusions will be listed in your insurance policy. Check your policy and call your insurance agent or insurance company to determine what damage is covered.

I own a small business that was damaged or destroyed during the fires. What insurance policies might provide coverage for my loss?

If your business has suffered property damage or destruction, including collateral damage or economic loss, including loss of business income, extra expenses, computers, valuable records, and data processing material as a result of the fires, the evacuations, or other governmental actions related to the fires, you may be able to resort to a variety of insurance policies typically held by small businesses. These policies include:

- All risk policies
- Specific peril policies which cover fire damage
- Business owner property policies

- Computer policies
- Causes of commercial loss policies
- Homeowner/renter policies
- Valuable papers and records policies
- Building and personal property policies

Damage to vehicles such as automobiles or boats may be covered under business or personal automobile policies, motor carrier policies, mobile equipment policies, garage coverage policies, and marine policies. If you or your employees were injured, you or they may be covered by your workers' compensation policy, your or their health insurance policy, or short- or long-term disability policies.

My home was not damaged, but I was required to evacuate. Will insurance cover my expenses?

Many homeowners policies often provide coverage for items like hotel stays, food, and other additional living expenses (ALE) during a mandatory evacuation. Check your insurance policy for specific coverage and contact your agent or insurer for further information.

My home was not damaged, but the fire burned the hill above it. Will insurance provide coverage for steps I take to avoid a subsequent landslide or mudslide?

You should carefully check your policy to see if there is coverage for this type of damage or preventative repair. A recent California Supreme Court case found that there was not coverage for this type of work, but the policy in question had very specific language. An attorney or other qualified professional may be able to assist you in reviewing the language of your policy. Additionally, you may want to purchase flood insurance if you do not already have such coverage, as many homeowners and renters insurance policies specifically exclude damages resulting from flood or mudslide.

How do I make an insurance claim?

You make an insurance claim through your insurance company. There are several steps you should take right away.

- Immediately contact your insurance agent or insurance company to start the claims process. Ask questions such as what damage your policy covers, how much is your deductible, how long will it take to process your claim, and whether you will need to obtain estimates for repairs. It is best to keep a written log of all conversations with your agent, insurance company, or insurance adjuster, including dates, the names of people with whom you have spoken, and the substance of the conversation.
- Your policy may not cover further damages, such as exposure to the elements, if you have not taken reasonable steps to protect your property, such as covering your property with tarps or boarding up broken windows. Your insurance company may reimburse you for the cost of protecting your property, so keep all receipts.
- Take pictures or video to document the damage before anything changes.
- Do not repair or replace your loss without first checking with your insurance agent, insurance company, or the adjuster assigned to your claim. If you do choose to make repairs, be wary of scams. Make sure that a contractor is licensed by the Contractors State License Board, 800-321-2752.

Most insurance carriers have established toll-free telephone numbers to facilitate the claim filing process. These numbers may also be used by victims of the fires with other insurance questions. A list of these numbers can be found at the end of this section.

Do I need to hire my own attorney or adjustor?

You do not need to hire an attorney or adjustor to file a claim. Your insurance company will provide an adjuster for you to assess your claim. The California Department of Insurance has declared an insurance emergency for the November 2008 Wildfires to allow insurance companies to use out of state adjustors to process claims more quickly.

If you prefer your own public adjustor, however, verify the adjustor's license with the California Department of Insurance by calling their License Bureau at 800-967-9331 or 916-322-3555. You may also call the California Department of Insurance hotline at (800) 927-HELP (4357) or 800-482-4TDD for the hearing impaired.

Are there specific documents I should have to prove my loss?

Your insurance company or insurance adjuster will request evidence of the items or structure that were lost or damaged, as well as their value. As best as possible, try to collect:

- Pictures (videotape or photograph) taken before and after the property loss.
- A list of all damaged personal property and its value. This includes not just furniture and appliances but clothing, sports equipment, tools, china, linens, outdoor furniture, holiday decorations, and hobby materials. If possible, include the brand names and model numbers of appliances and electronic equipment. Old receipts, bills, or photographs can help establish the value and age of items that have been damaged or lost. If you do not have such records, work from memory. Try to picture the contents of every room in your house and write a description of what was there, where and when you bought each item, and how much you paid.
- Records and receipts for all living expenses incurred due to the property loss (includes all food, hotel, and staples bought to maintain a normal standard of living).
- Repair estimates obtained from third parties or receipts for any repairs already completed.

What should I do if my insurance policy is lost or destroyed?

If your insurance documents were destroyed in the fire, do not panic. Call your insurance agent or insurance company. They should have a specimen copy of your policy on file and can provide you with a copy of the policy.

If you do not recall the name of your agent or insurance company, check with your mortgage lender or bank for records of your insurance information. Many people insure both their car and home with the same company, so you can check with your auto insurer as well. If you are still unable to determine your insurance company, contact the California Department of Insurance for assistance.

What do I do if my policy was up for renewal when the wildfires occurred?

Your insurance company may allow additional time to pay your renewal premium. A failure to pay a renewal premium for an automobile, homeowner, or certain commercial insurance policies will not result in a lapse in coverage without a notice of expiration from the insurer. Many policies also provide for grace periods during which coverage will remain in effect as long as the premium is paid before the end of this period. You should check your policy for provisions related to late payments. You may also ask your insurer for special consideration. If your insurer refuses, contact the California Department of Insurance for further assistance.

My house is uninhabitable. How do I get money now to pay for living expenses, extra transportation costs to and from work or school, storage costs, etc.?

Homeowners' policies often cover items like hotel stays, food, and other additional living expenses during a mandatory evacuation. Additional living expenses might include extra food costs, increased housing costs, furniture rental, relocation and storage costs, telephone installation, and extra transportation costs to and from school or work. Check your insurance policy for specific coverage and contact your agent or insurer for further information. If your policy covers these expenses, ask your insurance company for an advance on your insurance proceeds. Funds disbursed in the form of an advance will be deducted from the final settlement.

For homeowners' insurance, what is the difference between "replacement cost value" and "actual cash value" policies?

"Replacement cost" coverage provides you with money to repair damaged items or replace destroyed items with new items of a similar type. Your policy should give you enough funds to purchase a new item. "Actual cash value" coverage provides you with funds necessary to replace the damaged or destroyed item with a similar item. You will likely receive less money from an actual cash value policy than a replacement cost policy because the actual cash value policy takes depreciation (age, wear and tear, etc.) into account.

Under either form of policy, you will still have to pay any applicable deductible, unless that requirement is waived by the insurance company.

If I did not have renters insurance, am I covered under my landlord's policy?

You probably are not covered, unless your landlord named you in his policy as a "named insured."

My insurance company has denied me coverage. What can I do?

Insurance companies are required to acknowledge receipt of claims, communicate their decisions on claims, and pay claims in a timely manner. In general, insurance companies should acknowledge receipt of your claim within 15 days of receiving notice of your claim, and should communicate decisions on claims within 40 days of receiving your claim. Payouts should occur within 30 days of your acceptance of their offer.

If coverage is denied, in whole or in part, ask the insurance company to provide you with its reasons in writing, as well as whether it has an appeals process. Contact the California Department of Insurance if you feel your claim has been wrongfully denied. Additionally, you may want to seek help from an attorney or public adjuster, but be aware that their fee will often reduce your total recovery.

What do I do if I suspect fraud?

If you suspect fraudulent activity, including insurance fraud, fraudulent charitable solicitations, or price gouging in offers of debris removal, contact the California Department of Insurance Fraud Division Intake Unit, P.O. Box 277320, Sacramento, CA 95827-7320.

FEMA

What is FEMA?

FEMA is the “Federal Emergency Management Agency,” which steps in to manage and coordinate many government assistance programs after the President declares a federal disaster area. When the President declares a “major disaster” in the United States or its territories, federal assistance is made available, pursuant to the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (“Stafford Act”), 42 U.S.C. § 5121 et seq., to supplement the efforts and resources of state and local governments and voluntary relief organizations. FEMA is the federal agency (a part of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security) that is responsible for coordinating federal disaster relief and assistance.

On November 18, 2008, President Bush declared Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, and Santa Barbara Counties federal disaster areas.

What does FEMA do?

FEMA is the starting point for the Disaster Housing Assistance Program (which includes the Housing Assistance and Home Repair Assistance programs), special loans from the Small Business Administration or the Farm Service Agency, special grants from the Cora Brown Fund, or assistance from many other government-run organizations, including those under the umbrella of the Other Needs Assistance (“ONA”) Program. FEMA also sponsors crisis counseling; disaster legal services; income tax assistance for filing casualty losses; advisory assistance for veteran’s benefits and Social Security matters; and disaster unemployment assistance.

What types of disaster assistance does FEMA administer and coordinate?

The Individuals and Households Program (“IHP”) is a FEMA program providing a range of services to persons in a declared disaster area. The IHP program provides money and services to disaster-affected persons whose property has been damaged or destroyed and whose losses are not covered by insurance.

There are several different types of assistance, including various forms of housing assistance:

- Temporary Housing: Eligible applicants can receive money to rent a different place to live, or a government-provided housing unit when rental properties are not available.
- Repair: Eligible homeowner applicants can receive money to repair damage from the disaster to their primary residence that is not covered by insurance. The goal is to make the damaged home safe, sanitary, and functional.
- Housing Replacement: Eligible homeowner applicants can receive money to replace their homes destroyed in the disaster that are not covered by insurance. The goal is to help the homeowner with the cost of replacing the destroyed home.
- Housing Construction: FEMA may provide direct assistance or money for constructing a new home, but only in isolated or remote areas where no other type of housing assistance is available.
- Other Needs Assistance (“ONA”): Eligible applicants can receive money to cover necessary expenses and serious needs that cannot be met through other forms of disaster assistance. This assistance may cover repairing/rebuilding personal property, clothing, household items, educational material, and transportation, medical, dental, and funeral expenses incurred by disaster victims.
- Cora Brown Fund: This fund is used for disaster victims who have exhausted all other avenues of assistance but still have unmet needs.

- Disaster Unemployment Assistance (“DUA”): This program provides unemployment benefits and re-employment services to individuals who have become unemployed because of major disasters. Benefits can extend up to 26 weeks after the date of the declaration of disaster or until the applicant is reemployed, whichever is earlier. You must register with California’s Employment Development Department (at <https://eapply4ui.edd.ca.gov>, (800) 300-5616 or (800) 815-9387 (TTY, for hearing impaired users)) to receive DUA benefits.
- Small Business Administration (“SBA”) Loans: As discussed in the “SBA: Process & Procedure” section of this Handbook, the SBA provides low-interest, long-term loans for individuals to repair/replace real or personal property, and for non-farm businesses. If the SBA determines the applicant is ineligible for an SBA loan, the SBA may refer the applicant to FEMA for additional consideration.

Do I have to repay FEMA for any disaster assistance?

IHP grants do not need to be repaid, but SBA loans must be repaid.

Am I eligible for assistance from FEMA?

If you experienced a loss in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, or Santa Barbara Counties on or after November 13, 2008 as a result of the Southern California Wildfires, you may be eligible for assistance through FEMA. You should register with FEMA as quickly as possible. The various programs that FEMA coordinates have different eligibility criteria, and usually you only can receive assistance under one housing program at a time. FEMA will determine your eligibility for the various programs after you register.

To be eligible for Housing Assistance, all of the following must be true:

- You have losses in an area that has been declared a disaster by the President;
- You have filed for insurance benefits and the damage to your property is not covered by your insurance or your insurance settlement is insufficient to meet your losses;
- You or someone who lives with you is a citizen of the United States, a non-citizen national, or a qualified alien;
- The home in the disaster area is where you usually live and where you were living at the time of the disaster;
- You are not able to live in your home now, you cannot get to your home due to the disaster, or your home requires repairs because of damage from the disaster; and
- You do not have other, adequate rent-free housing you can use (for example, a vacation home or unused rental property).

To be eligible for Other Needs Assistance, all of the following must be true:

- You have losses in an area that has been declared a disaster area by the president;
- You have filed for insurance benefits and the damage to your property is not covered by your insurance or your insurance settlement is insufficient to meet your losses;
- You or someone who lives with you is a citizen of the United States, a non-citizen national, or a qualified alien;
- You have necessary expenses or serious needs because of the disaster; and
- You have accepted assistance from all other sources for which you are eligible, such as insurance proceeds or small business administration disaster loans.

To receive money for repairs or help with housing needs, do I first need to file a claim under any insurance policy I may have?

Yes. In order to receive money or help with housing needs, you must have filed for insurance benefits (if you have insurance) and the damage to your property must not be covered by insurance. You must provide FEMA with a copy of your insurance company’s decision letter to obtain assistance.

If a decision on your insurance settlement has been delayed longer than 30 days from the time you filed the claim, you may be eligible for an insurance advancement from FEMA. These funds are considered a loan and must be repaid to FEMA once you receive your settlement from your insurance company.

How do I register with FEMA?

The easiest way to register with FEMA is online at www.disasteraid.fema.gov or by calling (800) 621-FEMA (3362). For the speech- or hearing-impaired, call TTY: (800) 462-7585. The toll-free telephone numbers are available from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. (local time).

Before calling or going online, gather all of the information you will need for registration:

- Your Social Security number;
- Current and pre-disaster address;
- A telephone number where you can be contacted;
- Insurance information;
- Total household annual income;
- A routing and account number from your bank (only necessary if you want to have disaster assistance funds transferred directly into your bank account; you may be able to find your bank routing number online at www.fededirectory.frb.org/search.cfm); and
- A description of your losses that were caused by the disaster.

How will FEMA process my request for help?

At the time of registration, you will be given a FEMA Application Number. This number is very important for referencing your case, so please keep it handy. It is also a good idea to keep the name of the person who registered you, in case any problem with your paperwork arises.

Starting 24 hours after registering, you will be able to check the status of your application online at www.disasteraid.fema.gov or by calling (800) 621-FEMA (3362). For the speech- or hearing-impaired, call TTY: (800) 462-7585.

FEMA may refer you to the SBA, which offers special loans to disaster victims. (It does not matter whether you own a small business or not.) If you are referred to the SBA, YOU MUST COMPLETE AND SEND IN YOUR SBA LOAN APPLICATION, EVEN IF YOU DO NOT THINK YOU WILL QUALIFY FOR A LOAN. The SBA serves as a gatekeeper to other government-run programs. Unless you send in your application and fail to qualify for an SBA loan (or a large enough loan to meet your needs), your application will not be passed on to the ONA Programs, and you may not be eligible for additional assistance from other programs.

If you have requested help from FEMA because of damage to your home, FEMA will send an inspector to look at the damage. THE FEMA INSPECTION IS FREE. Do not let anyone charge you for an “inspection service.” Request ID from the inspector and a copy of his or her inspection report.

You do not need to wait until the inspection to begin cleaning and repairing the property, but you should document the damage by taking pictures. (Video is good, too!) If possible, save damaged items.

You should be prepared to meet with the inspector on short notice. If you cannot be present, you may designate someone (over the age of 18) to meet the inspector on your behalf. You may be asked to sign a form authorizing this individual to meet the inspector. If you or your representative are not available for the inspection, your application may be withdrawn.

Be prepared to supply the inspector with several pieces of information:

- Valid identification;
- Proof of home ownership or tenancy;
- Proof of damages to your primary residence;
- Receipts for expenses you have incurred because of the fires; and
- Photos of your property before you began repairs.

Proof of home ownership can include the following documents:

- Deed or official record, which may be the original deed or deed of trust to the property listing you as the legal owner;
- Tax receipts or a property tax bill identifying for the damaged home and listing you as the responsible party for the assessments;
- Mortgage payment book or other mortgage documents (e.g., late payment notice, foreclosure notice), where your name is listed along with your damaged home's address; or
- Real property insurance for the damaged home, with your name listed as the insured.

You can also research ownership on public websites such as your County's property tax website:

Los Angeles County: <http://lacountypropertytax.com>.

Orange County: <http://www.ac.ocgov.com/newpage/TaxInfo.asp>.

Riverside County: <http://www.riversidetaxinfo.com>.

Santa Barbara County: <http://taxes.co.santa-barbara.ca.us/propertytax.asp>.

Proof of tenancy can include the following documents:

- Current driver's license showing the address of the damaged home;
- A recent utility bill in your name (or name of co-applicant) at the damaged home's address. A utility bill for one of the major utilities, such as electricity, gas, or water is preferable; or
- First-class government mail sent to you within the last 3 months at that address.

You will also need to sign the disaster application and a declaration that you are a citizen, a national, a resident alien, or otherwise lawfully present in the U.S. See the Immigration section of this Handbook for further discussion of these issues.

The FEMA inspector will complete a report and transmit it to FEMA's National Processing Servicing Center (NPSC). The NPSC will review the information and decide whether you qualify for assistance. (In the interim, the NPSC may ask you for additional records, such as insurance papers, a copy of title, pay stubs, or repair estimates.) FEMA will mail you a notice of its decision.

Are there any application deadlines of which I need to be aware?

Yes; there are important application deadlines that you must meet (unless specifically extended by FEMA), each of which is calculated from the date (November 18, 2008) the president declared the four counties as disaster areas, as follows:

- Housing Assistance: January 20, 2009.
- Home Repair Assistance: January 20, 2009.
- ONA programs: January 20, 2009.
- Disaster Unemployment Assistance: December 18, 2009.

Can FEMA extend the registration deadline?

Yes. In addition, FEMA is authorized to accept late registrations for an additional 60 days beyond the standard registration period. FEMA rules require suitable documentation of the reasons for the delay, however.

How long does it take to get help from FEMA?

If you have damage to your home or its contents and you are uninsured, or you have suffered damage that is not covered by insurance, a FEMA inspector should contact you within 14 days of applying to set up an appointment to assess your damage.

Typically, within about 10 days after the inspection, if FEMA determines that you qualify for help, you will receive a direct deposit to your bank account or a check in the mail. If FEMA denies your application, you will receive a letter explaining why you were turned down and will be given a chance to appeal the decision. If you were referred to the SBA, you will receive an SBA application, which you must fill out and return in order to be considered for a loan, as well as other types of assistance. If the SBA approves you for a loan, they will contact you. If the SBA finds that you cannot afford a loan, they will automatically refer you to FEMA's Individuals and Households Program for help and FEMA will contact you.

If I am denied assistance by FEMA, how long do I have to appeal that decision?

Appeals from FEMA's decisions regarding the Rental Assistance, Mortgage and Rental Assistance, and Home Repair Assistance programs are due within 60 days of the date on FEMA's notice of decision.

If I have questions about my application or need to change some of the information provided, what should I do?

Call the FEMA Disaster Helpline at (800) 621-FEMA (3362) (hearing/speech impaired only: (800) 462-7585).

If it has been more than 12 days since the FEMA inspector's visit and there has been no word from FEMA, what should the applicant do?

Call the FEMA Disaster Helpline at (800) 621-FEMA (3362) (hearing/speech impaired only: (800) 462-7585) to ask about your application. You may also inquire at a Disaster Recovery Center about your application.

Where can I find more information about FEMA's programs for wildfire victims?

If you have questions specifically about FEMA's programs for victims of the wildfires, you may contact FEMA at (800) 621-FEMA (3362). Additionally, if you have internet access, you can review FEMA's website at www.fema.gov or its November 2008 Wildfires pages at <http://www.fema.gov/news/event.fema?id=10888>.

STATE AID PROGRAMS

NOTE: Many governmental and charitable disaster relief organizations require applicants for assistance to complete and submit an SBA loan application (described in the SBA section of this Handbook) in order to qualify for their respective programs, benefits, or other disaster assistance. This requirement exists even if the applicant is unlikely to qualify for a SBA loan. Please keep this in mind as you repair, rebuild, or replace your property, and remember, the deadline to file a SBA application is January 21, 2009.

I may need financial assistance because of the wildfires. Am I eligible for any assistance from the State of California?

You may be eligible for grant assistance from the California Department of Social Services, Disaster and Client Services Bureau through two programs: (i) the Individuals and Households Program (IHP); and (ii) the State Supplemental Grant Program (SSGP).

What is the Individuals and Households Program?

IHP is a joint FEMA and state program that provides financial assistance to victims of declared disasters such as the wildfires. Wildfire victims may receive financial assistance for essential needs and necessary expenses, including rent, home repair or replacement, transportation repair or replacement, funeral expenses, personal property, medical, dental or other miscellaneous expenses. For more information on IHP grants, please refer to the FEMA section of this Handbook.

What is the State Supplemental Grant Program?

The SSGP is a state-funded program that provides grants for necessary items as IHP once you have maximized your IHP assistance. To be eligible, you must have applied to FEMA and maximized the IHP award. SSGP funds must be spent on the items for which the money is awarded.

What is the amount of a SSGP grant? Do I have to repay any grant I may receive?

The maximum SSGP grant is $10,000, but the average grant is between $200 and $2,000. Because it is a grant, and not a loan, you will not have to repay any grant you may receive unless the money is not spent according to SSGP guidelines or the SSGP grant duplicates funds from other sources such as the Small Business Administration (SBA) or Red Cross.

Am I eligible for a SSGP grant?

SSGP is a program of last resort. Therefore, to be eligible for SSGP assistance, you must have:

- Applied for and received the maximum IHP grant of $28,800;
- Completed a disaster loan application with the SBA and either been declined by the SBA or have eligible needs beyond those provided by the SBA (for more information, see the SBA section of this Handbook);
- Made claims for disaster damages against all applicable insurance policies; and
- Accepted any available financial assistance offered from other sources such as private and public organizations (e.g., the American Red Cross).

Applications for assistance are accepted by FEMA for 60 days following the date the president declares a major disaster, in this case, through January 17, 2009.

How do I apply for a SSGP grant?

There is no separate application process for SSGP grants. FEMA will transmit your application to SSGP once you have utilized the maximum amount available under IHP. If you have any questions you should call the California Department of Social Services at (800) 759-6807. Hearing and speech impaired individuals should call (800) 952-8349. In order to be eligible for a SSGP grant you must submit your FEMA application by January 17, 2009.

SBA LOAN ASSISTANCE

What is the SBA?

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) is a federal agency that assists business owners and individual homeowners and renters by providing low-interest, long-term loans to repair or replace business property, real estate, or personal property owned by a victim that is damaged or destroyed as the result of a disaster in a federally designated disaster area. Loans are made for uninsured losses or otherwise uncompensated disaster losses. The SBA does not duplicate benefits provided by other governmental agencies or private insurance companies (with the potential exception of insurance proceeds that are required to be applied against outstanding mortgages). SBA loans are made on a nondiscriminatory basis and without regard to an applicant's age. More information about disaster assistance through the SBA, including on-line loan application forms, can be found at its website, <http://www.sba.gov>. For further information on obtaining disaster assistance from the SBA, please call (800) 659-2955.

What kinds of loans does the SBA provide?

The SBA provides three types of disaster loans:

- Home Disaster Loans (HDL): These loans are for homeowners and renters to repair damages to real estate or personal property owned by the victim. The deadline for applying for an HDL is January 21, 2009.
- Business Physical Disaster Loan (BPDL): These loans are available to all businesses, regardless of size, and to nonprofit organizations to repair or replace disaster damage or loss of property, including real estate, machinery and equipment, inventory, and supplies. The deadline for applying for a BPDL is January 21, 2009.
- Economic Injury Disaster Loan (EIDL): These loans provide working capital to small businesses to assist them through the disaster recovery period. They cover operating expenses (as opposed to physical damage) that the small business could have paid, if the disaster had not occurred. The deadline for applying for an EIDL is August 18, 2009. Unlike Physical Disaster Loans, which are open to businesses of any size, EIDLs are limited to small business, small agricultural cooperatives, or non-profit organizations that have suffered substantial economic injury due to the wildfires.
- Mitigation Loans: Home or business owners who are approved for physical disaster loans may apply for an additional loan to cover the cost of improvements to prevent future damage, such as retaining walls, seawalls, or sump pumps. Mitigation loans may not exceed 20% of the total amount of disaster damage and are capped at $200,000 for home loans.

Who is eligible for an SBA loan?

On November 18, 2008, President Bush declared Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, and Santa Barbara Counties federal disaster areas. Residents and business owners in these counties can apply for both Physical Disaster and EIDLs.

Business owners in the following contiguous counties may apply for EIDLs only: Imperial, Kern, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, and Ventura Counties in California and La Paz County in Arizona.

SBA loans do not cover damage to farms. You should contact the U.S. Department of Agriculture for assistance.

What does SBA look for when considering a disaster loan applicant?

The SBA looks for an acceptable credit history and a demonstrated ability to repay the loan. In addition, for physical loss loans of more than $14,000 or EIDL loans of more than $5,000, the SBA will ask for collateral such as real estate. The SBA will not deny a loan for lack of collateral, but will require you to pledge any available collateral.

Is insurance required to get a loan?

The SBA may require you to obtain and maintain appropriate insurance. By law, borrowers in special flood hazard areas must have flood insurance.

What are the loan amounts?

- Home Loans: Up to $200,000 for real estate and $40,000 for personal property.
- Business Loans: Up to $2,000,000 for real estate, inventories, machinery, equipment, and other physical losses, but may not exceed the verified uninsured disaster loss.
- EIDL: Up to $2,000,000 for economic injury, less any insurance or other recovery. For businesses that also have physical loss, the maximum for both loans is $2,000,000.

What interest rate will I pay my loan?

Interest rates depend on whether the SBA determines that you have “Credit Available Elsewhere” — in other words, sufficient funds or other resources or the ability to borrow from non-government sources for disaster recovery. The following interest rates will apply to victims of the November 2008 Wildfires:

	No Credit Available Elsewhere	Credit Available Elsewhere
Home Loans	2.687%	5.375%
Business Loans	4.0%	7.75%
Non-Profit Organizations	4.0%	4.5%
Economic Injury Loans	4.0%	4.0%

Interest rates are fixed for the term of the loan.

What are the loan terms?

The SBA will set the length of the loan depending on your ability to repay. For businesses with Credit Available Elsewhere, the maximum term is three years. For all other loans, the maximum term is 30 years.

Are there restrictions on how home and business disaster loans may be used?

Yes. SBA loans are made for specific designated purposes related to returning your property or business to its condition before the fires. The SBA requires you to keep receipts and maintain good records of all loan expenditures, and you must keep these records for three years. If you use the money for something else, you will be subject to a penalty of one and a half times the amount of your loan.

Only uninsured or uncompensated disaster losses are eligible. However, insurance proceeds applied against outstanding mortgages will not reduce your loan eligibility.

Second homes, personal pleasure boats, airplanes, and recreational vehicles are not eligible unless used for business purposes.

Are there restrictions on how EIDLs may be used?

You may use an EIDL for operating funds until your business recovers, including payments on short-term notes, accounts payable, and installment payments on long-term notes. You may not use EIDL funds to expand your business, to pay cash dividends or bonuses, or for disbursements to owners, partners, officers, or stockholders unless directly related to the performance of services for your business. If you use the funds for a purpose other than the purpose for which the loan was made, you will be subject to a penalty of one and a half times the amount of your loan.

Should I wait for my insurance settlement before I apply to the SBA?

No. You should not risk missing the SBA filing deadline waiting for an insurance settlement. You can apply for an SBA loan for the total replacement cost, up to your lending limit, and apply funds for an insurance settlement to your disaster loan later.

If I can borrow from a bank, am I still eligible for SBA assistance?

Homeowners and business owners applying for Physical Damage loans do not need to try to seek private loans.

EIDLs, however, are not available if the small business (or its principals) can obtain assistance from private sources such as a bank. In order to show that your business has sustained economic loss, and that you are unable to obtain private loans, you will need to provide the SBA with balance sheets and operating statements for both pre-disaster and post-disaster periods as well as the personal financial statements of every partner, officer, director, and stockholder with 20% or more ownership in your business.

How do I apply for an SBA loan?

Homeowners must first apply to FEMA and obtain a FEMA control number. See the FEMA section of this Handbook for more information. Once you have a FEMA control number, you can submit an SBA application by mail or online.

Businesses may apply directly to the SBA for possible disaster assistance.

If you need assistance in completing the SBA loan, you may call the SBA toll free at (800) 659-2955, email the SBA at disastercustomerservice@sba.gov.

How soon will I know if I qualify for a loan?

The SBA tries to make a decision on applications within 10 days for homeowners and renter applications and 16 days for business owner applications. Missing information can cause delays, so make sure the application is complete before submitting it.

What happens if my loan application is denied?

If SBA denies your loan application, SBA will notify you in writing and set forth the specific reasons for the denial. You may request reconsideration of your application within six months of the date of the decline notice. After six months, a new loan application is required. If SBA declines your application a second time, you have the right to appeal in writing to the Director, Disaster Assistance Processing and Disbursement Center ("DAPDC"). All appeals must be received by the processing center within 30 days of the decline action. Generally, decisions by the Director, DAPC are final.

Can the SBA refinance my mortgage?

In certain cases, yes. The SBA can refinance all or part of prior mortgages, evidenced by a recorded lien, if you: (1) do not have credit available elsewhere; (2) have suffered substantial uncompensated disaster damage (40% or more of the value of the property); and (3) intend to repair the damage.

If my home is completely destroyed, can the SBA lend me money to relocate my home somewhere else?

If you are unable to obtain a building permit to rebuild or replace your home at its original site, the cost of relocating your home might be included in the loan amount. If, however, you decide to relocate your home without being required to, an SBA loan can be obtained only for the exact amount of the damage. SBA cannot make loans involving some relocations. An SBA disaster loan officer can provide more detailed information on your specific situation.

Where can I get more information about SBA loans?

SMALL BUSINESS ISSUES

CONTRACTS

Performance Excused

If my business was physically destroyed or damaged by the fires, do my contracts for goods and services need to be performed?

It depends. A party will be relieved from its obligation to supply goods or perform services if, without the party's fault, performance of the contract has become impossible. However, the impossibility must be "objective," in the sense that no one can perform the contract. For example, a contract to clean houses in Yorba Linda that burned to the ground would be impossible to perform. If reasonable alternative means for performance of the contract are available, impossibility likely will not apply. For example, if your inventory of office paper was destroyed, but the same products were available at other stores, you would still be obligated to perform your contracts to deliver office paper. However, other legal doctrines, as described below, may apply.

My business is in the affected area and has not been physically affected by the wildfires; however, my business has deteriorated substantially after the wildfires. Do my contracts for goods and services need to be performed?

Yes. Typically, impossibility excuses a party's performance only when the destruction of the subject matter of the contract or the means of performance renders performance impossible. In some situations, a party may be excused from performing its contractual obligations if performance is found to be impracticable. However, if a party has a choice of ways to perform the obligations and only one option is precluded, that is not generally considered impracticable, even if the remaining option is more burdensome or more expensive.

If my business has been taken over by police/fire or other state agency for relief work, are contracts for future performance excused?

Generally, yes. When the government, through its sovereign power, intervenes for the preservation of the country or makes performance of a contract impossible, the contracting parties generally are relieved of further liability. However, the standard for excused performance is still impossibility: the mere fact that a contract has become more difficult or expensive to perform because of a new law or regulation does not excuse performance. In addition, government intervention might only provide for a delay in performance rather than a permanent excuse.

Does a "force majeure" clause in a contract that my business has with another party automatically relieve the other party of its liability under the contract?

No. A "force majeure" clause is a provision in a contract that excuses a party to the contract from performing under the contract because of the occurrence of an event beyond the party's control. The other party may or may not be liable depending on the provisions of the force majeure clause. A party may excuse itself from liability under a force majeure clause only by showing that the event preventing its performance was contemplated by the force majeure clause. A force majeure clause may be drafted broadly (to include a few events such as an "act of war" and a catch-all phrase such as "or other events beyond its control" or "unavoidable causes") or more narrowly (listing the specific events that prevent performance and including only a narrow catch-all).

However, even if the contract does not contain a force majeure clause, or if the clause is not broad enough to include the events surrounding the wildfires, it is possible that a contract will not be enforced due to "impossibility" and related doctrines discussed above.

If the business owner or key employee is dead (or sick), does the business still need to perform contracts of personal service?

No. If the primary purpose of a personal services contract is to permit a specified person to perform in a certain manner, there is an implied intent by the parties to hold each other liable only if the health and life of that person permits continued performance. To be covered under this general rule, the act or acts to be performed must be ones that can be performed only by the particular individual named in the contract.

What happens to advances received from third parties (or given to third parties) where the performance of the contract is excused?

If goods or services are not supplied, advances must be returned.

What if I can no longer deliver or accept goods under my contracts? Can someone else perform on my behalf?

Absent a provision in the contract prohibiting assignment, a party may be able to delegate or assign its duties or rights under a contract to someone else unless the other party has a substantial interest in having the original promisor perform the acts required by the contract. The rights of the buyer or seller also may be assigned unless the assignment would significantly change the duty of the other party, increase the burden or risk imposed on him by the contract, or significantly impair the chance of obtaining return performance. Parties delegating or assigning duties will still be liable under the original contract. Many commercial contracts provide that duties of the buyer and seller cannot be delegated or assigned without the prior written consent of the other party.

Liability for Damaged Property

What if goods that were paid for by the buyer were destroyed before they could be delivered?

In the absence of an agreement to the contrary, the party that has title to property at the time it is destroyed bears the risk of loss. Title passes from the seller to the buyer in the following manner: (1) if a contract requires physical delivery of identified goods to a specific destination, title passes on tender of the goods at that destination (in other words, if the goods are destroyed before delivery to the destination, the seller is liable to the buyer); (2) if the contract does not specify a place of delivery, title passes at the time and place of shipment or if delivery is to be made without moving the goods, title passes at the time and place documents of title are to be delivered (under such a contract, liability depends on whether the shipment or delivery has been made); and (3) if no documents of title are to be delivered, title passes at the time and place of contract (the buyer bears the loss). An insurance policy may cover damage to or destruction of the goods.

If I have equipment that was either leased or purchased on credit and is now destroyed or damaged, am I obligated to continue making payments on the equipment?

This question is usually governed by the terms of the specific contract, lease, or credit agreement. In addition, the loss of equipment could be covered by an insurance policy. If the equipment was not covered by an insurance policy, most likely payments must continue to be made.

See the information on real estate below for additional information on damage to real property.

Is my business liable for damage to a customer's property caused by the wildfires? Is my dry cleaning or laundry business liable for damage to customers' clothing that was in the store? Is my jewelry/TV/watch repair store liable for damages to customers' property that was in the store for purposes of repair or maintenance?

Probably not. When the owner of personal property (a bailor) delivers the property to another (a bailee) for a particular purpose, with the understanding that the property must be returned to the owner, a bailment contract is formed. In each of the three situations above, a bailment relationship exists for benefit of both parties because the bailee receives compensation and the bailor receives a service. Therefore, you, the bailee, would only be liable to the customer, the bailor, for property damaged through your negligence.

Because the relevant legal standard is the bailee's negligence, it is necessary to consider how the property was damaged or lost and what actions you took to protect it. Destruction caused by the fires would not likely be a breach of the bailment contract. However, if all of the other jewelry stores carried customer merchandise out of the store and one jeweler did not, then that one jeweler may be deemed negligent. In addition, if all dry cleaners except one locked the door when evacuating, that one dry cleaner may be deemed negligent if a customer's clothes were stolen.

Lost Checks or Correspondence

Is there a contract if, in response to my offer, the offeree sends an acceptance by mail but I never received it because it was lost or destroyed?

Yes, there is a contract and thus an obligation to perform. Assuming that you, as the offeror, did not specify a mode of acceptance other than mail, acceptance of an offer is effective when the letter is dropped in the mailbox, and not upon receipt. The offeree has the power to accept and close the contract by mailing a letter of acceptance within a time specified in the offer (or within a reasonable time, if no time is stated).

If, for example, my insurance payment premium was due on October 25th and the payment was sent on October 22nd, would the policy cover damages that occurred on October 24th, even if the payment was not received on the actual due date or was destroyed in the mail?

The "mailbox rule" or "postal acceptance rule" described above also applies to insurance premiums. Assuming that the insurance company requested that the premium be mailed and the premium payment was mailed in a timely manner, the insurance company is obligated to defend and indemnify the insured party.

If you did not get a premium payment in the mail on time due to the fires, you may still be covered. Failure to pay a renewal premium for an automobile, homeowner, or certain commercial insurance policies will not result in a lapse in coverage without a notice of expiration from the insurer. Many policies also provide for grace periods during which coverage will remain in effect as long as the premium is paid before the end of the grace period. You should check your policy for provisions related to late payments. You may also ask your insurer for special consideration. For further information on insurance, including California Department of Insurance resources for fire victims, please see the Insurance section of this Handbook.

What if a check was mailed but it was not received?

There are different alternatives depending on the type of check that was lost:

Checks payable from debtor's account: A bank customer has a right to stop payment of any item, including a check, drawn on that customer's account. After the stop payment is made, the debtor may issue a new check without bearing the risk of loss should the bank fail to stop the original check.

Certified checks: Since certified checks are drawn by the bank, the bank is not required to stop payment on lost or destroyed checks and issue replacements unless an indemnity bond of twice the unpaid amount is posted. This serves to protect banks from potential double liability, should a holder of the lost check later present it for payment.

Business Licenses

My business was destroyed by the wildfires. Is my business license still in effect, and what do I do if it needs to be replaced?

For any issues relating to business licenses, contact the state or local authority that issued your license.

BUSINESS REAL ESTATE

The following questions are designed to provide general information for small businesses that rent their space from a landlord, and for landlords who rent space to small businesses. (For questions about landlord-tenant issues for a residence, please refer to the sections of this Handbook on Housing). As with other information in this Handbook, this is intended to provide general information that may be helpful in assessing the types of legal questions that may be faced by small businesses and landlords that rent space to small businesses.

Generally, the rights of both the tenant and the landlord will be determined by the provisions of your lease. There is no one single “standard” form of lease, even though many leases are based on preprinted lease forms. The provisions of a lease which cover these matters can vary significantly, even for different leases in the same building. A professional will need to check the provisions of your lease carefully to answer these questions for your particular case. The following is only general advice for tenants and landlords regarding property that is damaged or unusable as a result of accidental destruction relating to the wildfires and is based on general principles of state law in California and some of the form leases commonly used in those states.

Leases

What happens if the building or property that is leased is destroyed? Does the lease automatically terminate? Does the tenant have to pay rent?

To answer these questions, you will need to first check your lease to see if there is a specific written provision setting forth what happens if the leased premises are completely or substantially destroyed or partially damaged. Most business leases include this type of provision, and these provisions may include definitions that will help you to determine whether your building is classified as destroyed or partially damaged. If your lease contains such written provisions, those written provisions will govern and should provide the answer to your question.

If your lease does not contain specific provisions setting forth what happens when the leased premises are destroyed or partially damaged, or if you do not have a written lease, then this question will be answered based on general provisions of California state law.

Under California law, unless a lease contains specific provisions to the contrary, a lease automatically terminates only when the leased premises are either completely destroyed or “substantially damaged,” which is when the leased premises have been damaged to the extent that they are no longer fit for the use for which they were originally leased. This is a fact determination made on a case-by-case basis.

Whether the property is totally unfit for use will depend on several factors. The primary factor is the extent of damage. For example, a building that burns to the ground would be considered destroyed. But if the damage is limited (for example, if only the roof is damaged or smoke or water from firefighting only damaged the ceiling, floor, or carpet of a leased building), then the tenant probably cannot terminate the lease on the basis of that damage. Another factor is the landlord’s ability to repair the premises. If the landlord can repair the damage in a reasonable period of time, then the tenant may not be able to terminate the lease.

Once the lease is terminated, the tenant is relieved of any obligation to pay rent. But until the lease is terminated the tenant must continue to pay rent according to the terms of the lease. In some cases, depending upon the terms of the lease, the tenant may be able to pay an adjusted rent until necessary repairs are made, but the need for repairs does not automatically release the tenant from its obligation to pay rent.

What degree of damage to the premises constitutes “partially damaged” or “destroyed” or “substantially damaged”?

The answer depends on the individual facts involved. To be considered “destroyed” or “substantially damaged,” the premises must cease to be fit for the use for which they were rented. While major fire damage will almost always result in “total destruction,” more limited fire damage and damage from smoke and/or water may be considered only partial damage. However, in the case of a ground lease in which the tenant rents the underlying land and is responsible for all improvements upon the land, then damage to the improvements will generally not permit the tenant to terminate the lease.

Is the landlord obligated to rebuild the building?

Again, it is important to refer to your lease, as commercial leases generally have provisions dealing with the landlord’s obligations to rebuild.

Absent an express provision in the lease, the answer generally depends on the severity of the damage. If the building is so seriously damaged that the premises are totally damaged or rendered wholly unusable, the landlord may terminate the lease rather than rebuilding.

Does the tenant have the right to terminate the lease if the landlord plans to rebuild the building?

Tenants should consult their own lease.

Can the landlord terminate the lease if the premises are partially destroyed?

A landlord can terminate a lease when (1) the lease itself gives the landlord a right to terminate when a disaster renders the premises partially unusable or (2) the landlord and tenant mutually agree to terminate the lease.

If the landlord terminates the lease, is the tenant entitled to receive its security deposit?

Yes, unless the express terms of the lease make it nonrefundable. According to California law, the landlord must refund the security deposit (less any lawful deductions) within 30 days after the tenant vacates the premises.

Is the landlord required to repair and restore the tenant’s furniture and equipment?

Generally, the landlord is not required to repair any damage to the tenant’s furniture and/or furnishings or any fixtures or equipment, improvements, or appurtenances that are removable. This damage should be covered by the tenant’s insurance company.

Is the tenant obligated to pay rent during the time that the landlord makes repairs on the building?

Again, this depends on the severity of the damage. Determining whether premises are totally or partially destroyed is a fact determination made on a case-by-case basis. To be considered “destroyed” or “substantially damaged,” the premises must cease to be fit for use. In the event the premises are destroyed or substantially damaged, the lease terminates with no further liability on the part of the tenant or the landlord. The tenant does not have to continue rent payments from the time of the destruction or substantial damage. Extreme fire is likely to be considered “destruction,” while minor fire, water, or smoke damage is most likely only a partial damage. Under California law, rent reductions for partial damage will be governed by the terms of the lease.

Once the landlord completes the restoration of the premises, the tenant may still have work to do to repair installations, phones, office equipment, etc. The tenant will be obligated to pay rent during this time period, but may be able to cover the cost of that rent from proceeds of the tenant’s business interruption insurance policy.

Note, again, that generally commercial leases have specific provisions governing rent abatement in the event of destruction of the premises, and these provisions dictate the rights of the landlord or tenant. Refer to your lease.

How long can the landlord take to repair the premises?

If the landlord elects or is required to repair the premises under the terms of the lease, the landlord must do so reasonably expeditiously, subject to delays due to adjustment of insurance claims, labor troubles, and causes beyond the landlord's control.

Can the tenant withhold rent if the landlord has failed to timely repair the premises after the disaster?

Generally, unless the lease provides otherwise, a tenant remains obligated to pay rent if the premises are usable and are not totally destroyed or made unusable, as discussed above. Thus, the requirement to pay rent is not generally dependent on whether the landlord makes timely repairs, unless the lease permits the tenant to terminate the lease on this basis. If the landlord fails to make repairs required under the terms of the lease, the tenant may sue for its economic damages resulting from the landlord's breach of its contractual duties.

Remember, however, that commercial leases usually have specific provisions regarding repairs and that the lease provisions will dictate the rights of the landlord or tenant. Refer to your lease.

If the landlord elects to terminate the lease, is the landlord obligated to help the tenant find alternative space or reimburse the tenant for related costs?

No, unless the lease contains a specific provision that provides for this.

Can the landlord rent the premises to someone else while the tenant is gone?

No, unless the lease expressly provides otherwise, a landlord cannot rent the premises to another party unless the lease has been terminated. The landlord has an obligation to make the leased space available to the tenant as long as the lease is in effect. The landlord cannot impair the tenant's "quiet possession" of the property unless there has been a default by the tenant and the lease has been terminated.

Condemned Buildings

Can the building be condemned?

Yes. Governmental agencies that have jurisdiction over a building may order it to be condemned if the building is not suitable for safe occupancy. Generally, either FEMA or the local building inspection department are the agencies that have jurisdiction to determine that a building cannot safely be occupied.

If the building is condemned, will the property owner be paid for the loss?

When the government condemns property based on a finding that it is no longer habitable or safe for occupancy, the government is not responsible for paying for the loss of the property. Generally, the government is only required to pay for the loss of the property when the property is taken by the government for a public use. Condemnation of property as unsafe generally is not a "taking" for public use. To the extent the owner can recover the lost value of the condemned property, the property owner might be able to recover all or part of the value of the property from the owner's insurance (depending on the terms of that insurance) or from FEMA or other relief agencies.

State and Local Tax Relief

I own a small building in the area which was damaged. Is there any relief from my obligation to pay property taxes?

Taxpayers with taxable property that was damaged or destroyed by the wildfires in the counties of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino and Santa Barbara may be eligible for property tax relief.

Applications for reduced assessments must be filed with the county assessor. Taxpayers should contact their local county assessor for more information.

Can I get an extension to file returns and pay my business taxes?

In connection with the Southern California wildfires in 2007, the California State Board of Equalization provided an extension to file returns and pay business taxes to taxpayers who work or reside in the affected counties, and who, as a result of the wildfires, could not meet tax-filing and payment deadlines. The California State Board of Equalization may provide a similar extension for taxpayers affected by the 2008 wildfires. This extension will apply to sales and use taxes, fuel use taxes, alcoholic beverage taxes, cigarette and tobacco product taxes, timber yield taxes, interstate user taxes, energy resource surcharges, natural gas surcharges, emergency telephone user surcharges, electronic waste and integrated waste management fees, tire recycling fees, hazardous waste fees, underground storage tank maintenance fees, oil spill prevention and response fees, and occupational and childhood lead poisoning fees. The State Board of Equalization also may extend deadlines for filings delayed by the disruption of the mail. In order to qualify for the extension, the taxpayer must include a statement signed under the penalty of perjury stating the cause for the late filing.

Can I get relief from interest and penalties if I am late filing and paying various business taxes?

Taxpayers who are unable to file their returns and pay taxes and fees in a timely manner may receive relief from interest and penalties. Such relief is available for sales and use taxes, fuel use taxes, alcoholic beverage taxes, cigarette and tobacco product taxes, timber yield taxes, gasoline taxes, energy resource surcharges, emergency telephone user surcharges, hazardous waste fees, integrated waste management fees, occupational and childhood lead poisoning fees, underground storage tank maintenance fees, jet fuel taxes, diesel fuel taxes, interstate user taxes, insurance taxes, natural gas surcharges, ballast water management fees, tire recycling fees, and oil spill prevention and response fees. In order to qualify for relief from interest and penalties, the taxpayer must include a statement signed under the penalty of perjury stating the cause for the late filing.

Can I get copies of State Board of Equalization tax records lost in the fire?

Business owners and fee payers may obtain replacements of State Board of Equalization tax records lost in the fire, free of charge. To obtain copies of such records, including prior tax returns filed with the State Board of Equalization, audits and permit application forms, taxpayers should call (800) 400-7115.

EMPLOYMENT

The answers to each of the following questions are based on the assumption that the affected employees are not covered by a collective bargaining agreement and do not have an employment contract with their employer. In the event that the affected employees are covered by a collective bargaining agreement or an employment contract, the employer should consult the terms and conditions of those agreements and contracts. Similarly, if the employer has certain established employment policies, the employer should consult and comply with its policies.

Salary and Leave

Does an employer have to pay its employees for the days that its business was closed as a result of the November 2008 Wildfires?

The answer to this question depends on whether the employee is considered an “exempt” employee or a “non-exempt” employee for purposes of federal and state wage-and-hour laws. Every employee must be treated as either exempt (not entitled to premium pay for overtime hours worked) or non-exempt (entitled to premium pay for overtime hours worked) under federal and state wage-and-hour laws. The determination of whether an employee is “exempt” or “non-exempt” is a complicated, fact-specific determination. Generally speaking, an employee is considered a non-exempt employee if the employee is paid on an hourly basis and not on a salary basis. In contrast, to be considered an exempt employee, an employee must be paid on a salary basis and must have certain job duties and responsibilities that are executive, administrative, or professional (among others) as required under the applicable federal and state wage-and-hour laws.

An employer is not required to pay its non-exempt employees for any days or hours that the employees did not work because the business was closed during the November 2008 Wildfires. On the other hand, an exempt employee should receive his or her full salary for any work week in which he or she performed any work without regard to the number of days or hours worked. Thus, if an exempt employee worked on one day of the work week, but worked no other days during the work week, then the employer should pay the employee his or her full salary for the entire work week.

In addition, to the extent employees perform work for the employer during the November 2008 Wildfires, employers should continue to pay such employees for such work on the days designated in advance by the employer (i.e., twice a month), whether or not the employer's offices are closed due to the November 2008 Wildfires.

Once an employer reopens its business, does the employer have to pay its employees for the days on which a transportation problem or some other obstacle prevented them from reporting to work?

This also depends on whether the employee is considered an exempt or non-exempt employee. For purposes of wage-and-hour laws, the employer is not required to pay a non-exempt employee for any days or hours that the employee was absent from work due to a transportation problem or some other obstacle that prevented him or her from reporting to work. An exempt employee should receive his or her full salary for any week in which he or she performed any work.

May an employer require its employees to use their accrued vacation or sick leave to cover their absences from work due to the November 2008 Wildfires?

Once the employer reopens, if an employee is unable to report to work due to the November 2008 Wildfires, the employer may require an employee to use his or her accrued vacation or sick leave to cover his or her absences, provided that this is consistent with the employer's leave policies. If an employee's absence qualifies as a pregnancy disability leave under the California Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA), employer-mandated substitution of vacation leave may not be permitted. See below for discussion of the federal Family Medical Leave Act (FMLA), the California Family Rights Act (CFRA), and pregnancy-related leave under the FEHA.

Does an employer have to provide an employee with either paid or unpaid leave if the employee is unable to work as a result of an injury suffered during the November 2008 Wildfires?

Employers may be required to provide employees with unpaid leave (1) under the FMLA/CFRA if the employee or a member of his/her immediate family is suffering from a serious health condition; (2) under the California FEHA, for pregnancy, childbirth, or related medical conditions; or (3) under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)/California FEHA if the employee is disabled and if the granting of leave would serve as a reasonable accommodation to the employee's disability. Such leave is unpaid unless the employee substitutes accrued vacation or sick leave or the employer's policies provide for paid leave under these circumstances.

Leave Under the FMLA/CFRA. The FMLA/CFRA provides that a covered employee may take up to a total of 12 weeks of unpaid leave during any 12-month period for certain qualifying reasons. During the leave period, the employer must maintain the employee's health benefits under the same terms as before the leave (i.e., if the employee contributes a portion toward the monthly premium, the employee must continue to make that contribution). Further, with very limited exceptions, the employer must guarantee that the employee will be reinstated to the same or an equivalent position. FMLA/CFRA leave is unpaid, except to the extent the employee substitutes accrued, unused sick or vacation leave for unpaid leave, unless the employer has elected to pay employees during such leave. Substituting sick or vacation leave for unpaid leave does not extend the 12 week leave entitlement.

The FMLA/CFRA applies to only those employers that employ 50 or more employees for each working day in each of 20 or more calendar work weeks in the current or preceding calendar year. An employee is entitled to FMLA/CFRA leave if the employee: (1) has been with the employer for at least 12 months; (2) logged at least 1,250 hours of services during the 12-month period immediately preceding the start of the leave; and (3) is employed at a worksite where 50 or more employees are employed by the employer or within 75 miles of that worksite. FMLA/CFRA leave may be taken to care for the employee's spouse, domestic partner, child, or parent with a serious health condition or because of a serious health condition that makes the employee unable to perform the essential functions of the employee's position.

When leave is taken for the employee's own serious health condition, the employee may be eligible for partial wage replacement for up to a year through the California State Disability Insurance. A claim for state disability insurance must be filed with the California Employment Development Department (EDD). Information regarding filing such a claim can be found at http://www.edd.ca.gov/Disability/Disability_Insurance.htm. When the leave is taken to care for a spouse, domestic partner, child or parent with a serious health condition, the employee may be eligible for partial wage replacement for up to six weeks through the California State Family Paid Leave program. A claim for State Family Paid Leave benefits can be filed with the EDD. Information regarding filing such a claim can be found at http://www.edd.ca.gov/Disability/Paid_Family_Leave.htm. Employers are required to provide employees taking leave for a purpose that qualifies for California State Family Paid Leave with the California State Paid Family Leave brochure, which can be downloaded at http://www.edd.ca.gov/pdf_pub_ctr/de2511.pdf.

For more information regarding compliance with the CFRA, check out the following website: <http://www.dfeh.ca.gov/about/cfraDescription.aspx>.

Pregnancy-Related Leave Under California's Fair Employment and Housing Act. Under the FEHA, employers with five or more employees must allow female employees to take up to four months of leave for periods of disability due to pregnancy, childbirth, or related medical conditions. The employee may elect to use accrued vacation leave, and may be required to substitute sick leave, or any other accrued leave which is made available by the employer to temporarily disabled employees. Otherwise, pregnancy disability leave is unpaid, unless the employer has elected to pay employees during such leave. The employer must continue to provide the same benefits or privileges of employment granted by that employer to other employees. Additionally, if the employer is covered by FMLA and the employee is eligible for leave under that statute, the employer must maintain the employee's health benefits under the same terms as before the leave (i.e., if the employee contributes a portion toward the monthly premium, the employee must continue to make that contribution) for up to 12 weeks.

Employees taking pregnancy disability leave may be eligible for partial wage replacement for up to a year through the California State Disability Insurance. A claim for state disability insurance must be filed with the EDD. Information regarding filing such a claim can be found at http://www.edd.ca.gov/Disability/Disability_Insurance.htm.

For more information regarding FEHA, check out the following website: www.dfeh.ca.gov/publications.

Leave Under the ADA/California FEHA. Under certain circumstances, an employer may be required to provide an employee with disability leave under the ADA/California FEHA. The ADA/California FEHA requires employers, in certain circumstances, to provide reasonable accommodations to employees who have a disability. Such a reasonable accommodation may include providing an employee with an unpaid or paid leave of absence.

The California FEHA generally provides broader protections than its federal counterpart, the ADA. Though the ADA applies to only those employers that employ 15 or more employees for each working day in each of 20 or more calendar work weeks in the current or preceding calendar year, the California FEHA applies to employers with five or more employees. California employers are required to meet the more generous requirements of FEHA. Under the FEHA, an employee is “disabled” if the employee has a physical or mental impairment that limits a “major life activity” of an individual, including activities such as walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning, working, sitting, standing, lifting, or reaching. Generally, temporary impairments are not considered protected disabilities.

Is an employee entitled to either paid or unpaid leave so that he or she can care for children or family members injured by the November 2008 Wildfires?

As described above, employees may be entitled to FMLA/CFRA leave, which they can use to care for children or family members injured in the November 2008 Wildfires. If employees are entitled to FMLA/CFRA leave as described above, then the employer must allow them to take FMLA/CFRA leave. This leave does not have to be paid leave, but employees are entitled to use their accrued vacation or sick leave for the absence as well as unpaid leave. In addition, employees may also be eligible to receive benefits under the California Paid Family Leave program, described above, during a qualifying FMLA/CFRA leave if the leave is taken to care for a seriously ill family member. Employers also should be sure to comply with any specific company policies providing for leave under such circumstances.

Is an employee entitled to either paid or unpaid leave if the employee is too afraid or emotionally traumatized to return to work as a result of the November 2008 Wildfires?

If an employee is suffering from post-traumatic stress or some other mental condition, the employer may be required to provide the employee with unpaid leave under the FMLA/CFRA or as an accommodation under the ADA/California FEHA. However, the employee will have to meet the applicable requirements of the FMLA/CFRA and ADA, as set forth above. If the employer provides paid leave, the employee may be able to use his or her accrued vacation or sick leave for the absence.

If an employee does not qualify for the requirements of FMLA/CFRA or ADA/California FEHA leave, and does not return to work, employers can consider termination of employment, though consultation with legal counsel is recommended before doing so.

Where can an employer get more information about complying with the FMLA, CFRA, the ADA, and the California FEHA?

The United States Department of Labor’s website at <http://www.dol.gov/esa/whd/fmla/index.htm> contains detailed information about the FMLA, including a fact sheet, a compliance guide, the text of the statute and accompanying regulations, and relevant forms. For more information regarding compliance with the CFRA, please visit the following website: <http://www.dfeh.ca.gov/about/cfraDescription.aspx>.

The Department of Justice has online information about the ADA at <http://www.usdoj.gov/crt/ada/adahom1.htm>. The California Department of Fair Employment and Housing provides online information regarding the FEHA at www.dfeh.ca.gov.

What can employers do to help their employees recover psychologically from the trauma of the November 2008 Wildfires and their aftermath?

An employer’s health plan may experience an increase in mental health claims, as well as more requests for assistance under employee assistance programs (EAPs). Employers should advise their employees of both the availability and the importance of such counseling, both for themselves and their families. If an employer does not have an EAP, counseling and other related services are available on a fee-paying basis. If employees are veterans, assistance may be available from the Veteran Administration.

What should be done about Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (COBRA) coverage?

Employers having 25 or more employees who maintain health plans are required to offer continuation coverage under the federal COBRA to qualified beneficiaries (participating employees and/or their dependents) who lose health coverage due to a “qualifying event” (such as the death of the covered employee, termination of employment, or reduction of hours sufficient to cause the loss of medical coverage). Smaller employers (with 2 to 19 employees) who maintain health plans are required by the California COBRA (Continuation Benefits Replacement Act) to provide COBRA-like coverage to their eligible employees. Under both COBRA and California COBRA, employees must pay for this medical coverage themselves.

Once an affected employee loses coverage as a result of one of these events, the employer must take action to notify the plan administrator within the prescribed time period. Qualified beneficiaries must be informed of their right to continued health insurance coverage under COBRA within 44 days (the employer must notify the plan administrator within 30 days, and the plan administrator must then notify eligible dependents within 14 days) of a qualifying event. All required notices regarding COBRA should be carefully documented and timely. Generally, the qualified beneficiary has 60 days from the later of: (a) the date of termination of coverage or (b) his or her receipt of a COBRA notice to elect to continue coverage. COBRA coverage can continue for up to 36 months under applicable California law.

Employers, while not required to do so, have the option of extending certain non-mandated COBRA benefits in the wake of the November 2008 Wildfires (such as offering to pay COBRA premiums for a certain length of time, etc.).

Damage to Office and Records

If an employer’s records were destroyed as a result of the November 2008 Wildfires and their aftermath, what basic payroll records does the employer need to try to recreate?

Under applicable federal law, every employer must establish, maintain, and preserve weekly payroll records, including the following information for each employee:

- employee’s full name, as used for Social Security purposes;
- address, including zip code;
- birth date, if younger than 19;
- sex and occupation;
- time and day of week when employee’s workweek begins;
- hours worked each day and total hours worked each workweek;
- basis on which employee’s wages are paid;
- regular hourly pay rate;
- total daily or weekly straight-time earnings;
- total overtime earnings for the workweek;
- all additions to or deductions from the employee’s wages;
- total wages paid each pay period, including money paid in cash; and
- date of payment and the pay period covered by the payment.

Under applicable California law, payroll records must be maintained by the employer, who must make them available to the employee upon request. An employer’s failure to have such records in its possession may subject the employer to liability in the form of penalties under the California Labor Code, and possible civil liability. However, if such records have been destroyed due to the November 2008 Wildfires, these and other circumstances suggesting impossibility of performance may be considered as an affirmative defense per the California Labor Code.

When must an employer pay its workers if the employer's payroll records were destroyed?

California requires timely payment of wages according to a regularly-set schedule established by the employer, in compliance with the requirements of the California Labor Code. In most cases, employees must be paid at least twice per month, with payment for labor performed between the 1st and the 15th of the month paid for between the 16th and 26th day of the month during which the labor was performed, and payment for labor performed between the 16th and last day of the month, inclusive, paid for between the 1st and 10th day of the following month. If records are not available, the employer should make a reasonable effort to determine the hours worked by the employees, and make payment accordingly as promptly as possible.

If an employer has employees working from home because the employer's offices were destroyed, what does the employer need to know and how does the employer get the needed information?

Generally speaking, the same rules apply when employees work from a remote location as when they work in the office. For example, employees who are considered non-exempt under the wage-and-hour laws should be required to keep track of the hours of work for payroll and overtime purposes.

Does an employer have to reimburse its employees for the destruction or loss of any of their personal items, such as personal computers or cars that they may have used for business purposes?

You should consult with your insurance provider to determine whether loss of employees' personal property is covered by any insurance policy. Ordinarily, employers are not responsible for reimbursing employees for the loss or damage to personal property an employee chose to bring to the worksite.

Are employers able to obtain extensions for filing payroll taxes with the State of California due to the November 2008 Wildfires?

Employers in some areas, in particular Santa Barbara, San Bernardino, Orange, Los Angeles, Riverside, and Ventura Counties, may be able to request a 60-day extension to file their state payroll taxes and deposit state payroll taxes with the California Employment Development Department (EDD) without penalty or interest, where the employer's delay can be attributed to the November 2008 Wildfires. State payroll taxes include Unemployment Insurance, Employment Training Tax, State Disability Insurance, and California Personal Income Tax. For the most updated information regarding extensions, employers should contact the EDD by either visiting the EDD's website at www.edd.ca.gov or by calling the EDD Taxpayer Assistance Center at (888) 745-3886.

Layoffs and Closing the BusinessDoes an employer have to provide its employees with any prior notice of termination if the employer determines that it is necessary to lay off employees?

No; if the employer does not have an established policy requiring that prior notice be given, the emergency circumstances of the November 2008 Wildfires would relieve the employer of a notice obligation. Usually, employers with more than 100 employees (federal Workers Adjustment and Retraining Notification (WARN) Act) or more than 75 employees (California WARN Act) may have an obligation to provide certain notice to its employees and other local and state government agencies. However, both WARN Acts contain an "Act of God" provision if the layoff or shutdown is the result of a natural disaster. Note that employers with established policies requiring that prior notice be given may be required to comply with their policies. Because the penalties associated with failing to provide notice under the WARN Acts are significant, employers are advised to consult counsel before engaging in any layoff that does not occur immediately in conjunction with the November 2008 Wildfires.

Does an employer have to provide its employees with severance pay if the employer decides to lay off employees?

No, so long as the employer does not have a plan, policy, or practice providing for the payment of severance benefits. Neither California law, nor federal law, requires employers to provide severance pay to departing employees.

Is a self-employed, small business owner eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits?

No. Self-employed, small business owners (sole proprietorships and members of a partnership or limited liability company) as well as independent contractors are not eligible for unemployment insurance benefits. However, persons denied unemployment insurance benefits may be eligible for disaster unemployment assistance (DUA). For more information regarding DUA, see the Employment section of this Handbook.

Is an employer personally liable for its employees' wages if the failing corporation is unable to make payroll?

Under California law, the shareholder of a corporation is not usually personally liable for the acts or debts of a corporation. In the case of employers who have failed to pay wages as required under California law, courts have found that though corporate agents cannot be held individually liable for unpaid wages, any person acting on behalf of an employer who violates a statute or wage order pertaining to working hours may be subject to a penalty in the amount of the unpaid wages (pursuant to the California Labor Code). In addition, under the federal Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), an employer is broadly defined as "any person acting directly or indirectly in the interest of an employer in relation to an employee." As a result, depending on the circumstances and applicable law, corporate agents may be held personally liable for unpaid wages.

PERSONAL FINANCES

Because of the fires, I may not be able to pay off some or all of my bills on time or make mortgage or other loan payments, especially in the short term. What should I do?

You should immediately contact creditors, financial institutions, and any other parties to whom you owe or will owe money in the short term, discuss your specific circumstances with each creditor, and request that payments be reduced or delayed while you attempt to work things out. In all events, you should follow up any conversation with a letter that reiterates the substance of your conversation and any agreements reached during the conversation.

Additionally, after past disasters, certain federal programs (such as student loan programs) have granted limited forbearance to borrowers affected by the disaster. Contact your lenders to see whether such relief has been, or will be, granted as a result of the Southern California wildfires.

Further, you might want to contact the National Foundation for Credit Counseling at (800) 388-2227, or on the web at www.nfcc.org, to obtain credit counseling services.

As a result of the fires, my credit card, ATM card, and/or checks and related statements were destroyed. What should I do?

To replace credit cards, debit cards, and/or checkbooks, contact your financial institution. Most banks and credit card companies have toll-free numbers to report lost or stolen cards. If you need replacement checks or bank statements but have no identification, you should go to the branch where you opened the account. For your bank's contact information or information on how to gain access to your funds, you may call the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's (FDIC) toll-free hotline from 7:00am-8:00pm ET Monday – Friday or from 8:00am-8:00pm ET Saturday – Sunday at (877) ASK-FDIC or (877) 275-3342, or visit their website at www.fdic.gov.

I do not have a permanent address at this time. Can I still receive replacement documents or monthly account statements?

If you are no longer at your home, you can have replacement documents sent to you as long as you have a fixed address. To file a forwarding request, you can go to the U.S. Postal Service website, www.usps.com, visit any post office, or call (800) ASK-USPS.

What happens if my bank has lost my records?

Be assured that banks are required to have extensive contingency plans for all types of disruptions to operations, including natural disasters. Banks should have back-up systems of records and other built-in duplications that are housed in safe locations so that financial records can be reconstructed and restored.

The local banks (or banks at which I do not have an account) will not cash my checks or let me withdraw money from teller stations; what can I do?

If you do not have an account relationship with the bank, it may be concerned about whether there are sufficient funds in your account. Ask the local bank to call your bank to determine your account balance. You can also establish a new account with the local bank where you have relocated and then contact your hometown bank to wire funds from your existing account to the new account. If you do not have the documents traditionally required to open a new account, such as a driver's license, you can ask a local bank if it has instituted any special programs for victims of the fires or you can call the FDIC hotline for more information: (877) ASK-FDIC or (877) 275-3342.

How can I deposit or cash any insurance checks that I may receive?

If you receive checks, such as insurance payments, your bank should be able to receive the check or cash the check for you, even if your bank or local branch has been affected by the fires. If your bank or local branch is still not ready to receive checks, it is anticipated that arrangements will be made with neighboring banks to help you. Alternatively, you can contact another bank and ask about establishing a new account so that you can deposit or cash your checks through a new account.

If my local bank was destroyed, is my money still insured?

Yes, your money is still insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Deposits with an FDIC-insured bank or savings institution will continue to be protected up to $250,000 per depositor (through December 31, 2009).

What about the contents of my safe deposit box? Does FDIC insurance cover safe deposit boxes?

Deposit insurance does not cover safe deposit boxes. Most safe deposit boxes are held in the banks' vaults, which are fireproof and waterproof. If possible, contact the branch or office where your box was located to find out the condition of your box.

My regular direct deposit is not showing up in my account, and I need money. How can I clear this up with the bank?

Sometimes there are delays in the processing of transactions, including direct deposits, as banks activate back-up plans. The banks will process the transactions once these back-up plans are implemented and your direct deposit may be among the transactions waiting to be processed. You should contact your bank to ask about your pending direct deposit. You can also contact the individual or company that is making the deposit to ask whether it has any information.

If my ATM card does not work, what should I do?

If your ATM card will not work, it is probably because your bank's verification system is not working. You may consider other options, such as cashing a check in the area where you are located or using a credit card. You may also contact one of the emergency service organizations, such as FEMA or the Red Cross, and request assistance.

I need cash immediately and my ATM card is lost/stolen/destroyed. Will the bank let me get cash?

You should call your financial institution to ask how you can access your account without an ATM card. Your bank may be able to wire transfer money to another financial institution that is convenient to you and can arrange to send you a replacement ATM card (if you have an address to receive a new card).

I have access to my bank account through an ATM, but the amount of money I can withdraw each day is limited. How can I withdraw more than the daily limit?

Please talk to your bank about increasing your daily ATM withdrawal limit.

I have my bills set up to automatically deduct payments from my account. I do not have enough money to cover those deductions. How do I go about stopping these payments?

By law, you must call or write your bank requesting a stop on an automated debit at least three business days before the scheduled debit. If you make an oral request, the bank may require you to confirm it in writing within 14 days of your call. Because of the fires, your bank may be willing to waive the three-business-day period. Notify your bank of any errors within 60 days of the statement showing the error.

Can I file for bankruptcy as a result of the wildfires?

The wildfires have not changed the requirements for filing for bankruptcy, so the answer really depends on the circumstances of your personal situation. By way of background, bankruptcy generally allows you to get rid of most of your debts, but it also requires you to use almost all of your assets (bank accounts, cars, stocks, etc.) to pay off as many (and as much of) of your debts as possible. Other bankruptcy options currently include keeping your assets but rescheduling your debts to pay them off over time.

Although a bankruptcy filing can provide an individual with certain benefits, it is not without its costs: a bankruptcy filing will affect your credit score, may make it more difficult to get a mortgage or other loans, and usually does not wipe out fines, certain taxes, and most student loan obligations.

Bankruptcy is a serious decision that should only be made after careful consideration, preferably with the help of a lawyer qualified to give advice concerning bankruptcy issues. If you want to contact an attorney about bankruptcy and are unsure whom to contact, State Bar-certified lawyer referral services are listed in the “Lawyer Referral Services & Legal Aid” section.

Am I entitled to a modification/reduction of my child support obligations because of my losses due to the wildfires?

Possibly. An uninsured catastrophic loss may be a basis for requesting a reduction in the child support you pay or for requesting an increase in the child support you receive. The change in your child support is not automatic. You must file a motion to request it. If you have an attorney for your child support case, you should contact him or her immediately. If you do not have an attorney, you may obtain assistance through the Office of the Family Law Facilitator. The Office of the Family Law Facilitator can be reached at the following local contact information:

Although the information provided here is based on the general tax provisions applicable to presidentially declared disasters such as the wildfires, it is possible that more specific administrative or legislative guidance will be released in the future that alters the tax provisions described here. Accordingly, you are strongly urged to obtain updated information by consulting your accountant or other tax advisor, checking the IRS website at www.irs.gov, or calling the IRS at (866) 562-5227 (Monday-Friday, 7:00 a.m. – 10:00 p.m. local time).

Can I defer paying taxes or reduce my taxes as a result of the wildfires?

In connection with certain disasters in the past, including the Southern California Wildfires in 2007, the IRS has extended deadlines for affected taxpayers in the disaster area to file certain tax returns or to make certain tax payments (including estimated tax payments), and has waived interest or late filing or late payment penalties that would otherwise apply to such tax returns or payments. Although the counties of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and Santa Barbara have been declared disaster areas by President Bush, the IRS has not yet announced (as of the date of this Handbook) whether it will offer such extensions and waivers for victims of wildfires. Accordingly, you are strongly urged to obtain updated information by consulting your accountant or other tax advisor, checking the IRS website at www.irs.gov, or calling the IRS at (866) 562-5227 (Monday-Friday, 7:00 a.m. – 10:00 p.m. local time). For more information, go to www.ftb.ca.gov/individuals/disaster.html.

Is there any additional tax relief for which I might qualify if my property has been damaged?

With respect to property taxes on real property damaged or destroyed in the wildfires, see the “Housing” section of this handbook.

For federal income tax purposes, the IRS allows certain deductions for property damaged or destroyed due to casualties, such as the wildfires. The amount of your deduction depends on the nature of your property (personal-use versus business-use) and, in the case of business-use property, whether it is completely destroyed.

With respect to casualty losses of personal-use property, you may deduct such losses but must reduce such losses by any insurance or other reimbursement you receive or expect to receive, further reduce each loss by $100, and then further reduce your total casualty losses of personal-use property for the year by 10% of your adjusted gross income.

With respect to casualty losses of business or income-producing property (such as rental property), the amount you may deduct depends on whether the property is completely destroyed. If it is not completely destroyed, first determine: (1) the decrease in the fair market value of the property as a result of the casualty, and (2) your adjusted tax basis in the property, and then, from the smaller of these two amounts, subtract any insurance or other reimbursement you received or expect to receive. Conversely, if the property is completely destroyed, your loss is your adjusted basis in the property, reduced by any salvage value and any insurance or other reimbursement you received or expect to receive.

If your property is covered by insurance, file a timely insurance claim for reimbursement of the loss. Otherwise, you may not be able to deduct the amount of the loss for which you failed to claim coverage. (This does not apply to any portion of the loss not covered by insurance.)

You have the option of claiming fire-related casualty losses on your federal income tax return for either 2008 or 2007. Claiming such casualty losses on an amended return for 2007 may qualify you for a refund now, but waiting to claim the losses on your 2008 return could result in a greater tax saving, depending on other income factors. If you want to claim such casualty losses on an amended return for 2007, you should write “Southern CA Wildfires 2008” in red ink at the top of the amended return.

If your loss deduction is more than your income, you may have a net operating loss (“NOL”). You do not have to be in business to have a net operating loss from a casualty. Generally, if you have a NOL for a tax year ending in 2008, you must carry back the entire amount of the NOL to the 3 tax years before the NOL year (the carryback period), and then carry forward any remaining NOL for up to 20 years after the NOL year (the carryforward period).

For more information on casualty losses, please refer to IRS Publication 2194, “Disaster Losses Kit for Individuals – Help From the IRS,” or IRS Publication 2194B, “Disaster Losses Kit for Business – Help from the IRS.” These publications contain information about IRS tax services, forms and publications that will assist you with your loss. You may download and print IRS forms and publications from the IRS website at www.irs.gov or call the IRS at (800) 829-3676 to order free forms and publications. Additionally, you may want to consult with your accountant or other tax advisor.

May I take a deduction on my California state income taxes for my personal property that has been lost, damaged, or destroyed?

California law generally is similar to federal law for casualties and disasters. The Franchise Tax Board will allow victims to receive additional tax refunds this year by immediately reporting their disaster losses through amended 2007 returns. Please refer to FTB Publication 1034 for more information on claiming disaster losses. You can download this publication at the Franchise Tax Board’s website at www.ftb.ca.gov or order one by calling (800) 852-5711. In order to expedite your refund, you should write “Southern CA Wildfires 2008” in red ink at the top of side 1 of the return. If you e-file your tax return, you should follow the software instructions to enter the above information when prompted.

Taxpayers whose losses exceed their income may qualify for 100% carryover of any excess casualty loss to future taxable years. At the time of printing of this Handbook, the Legislature had not yet enacted such legislation. For the latest information, please check the California Franchise Tax Board’s website at www.ftb.ca.gov or call (800) 338-0505.

Must I declare amounts of money received from my homeowners’ insurance company as income on my tax returns?

It depends. You may be able to offset proceeds from insurance relating to property damage against the adjusted basis of the damaged property. In that case, only the excess proceeds will be treated as taxable income, and you may be able to elect to defer recognition of that income if you use the proceeds to purchase similar property within a specified time period. If you receive insurance proceeds for a loss for which you have already claimed a casualty loss deduction, the insurance proceeds generally will be taxable to you in the year of receipt. Additional rules apply if the amount received exceeds the amount of the claimed deduction. The rules relating to insurance recoveries are complicated. You are strongly encouraged to consult a tax advisor when filing tax returns for periods during which you received insurance proceeds or for which you are electing to defer gain.

If I receive a grant from a federal or state program, charitable organization, or employer to cover medical, transportation, or temporary housing expenses, is it taxable?

Generally no. If you are in the areas declared a disaster due to the fire, you generally do not have to include any of the following receipts in gross income, unless the same expenses are also reimbursed to you through insurance or otherwise through:

- Grants for reasonable and necessary personal, family, living, or funeral expenses incurred as a result of the fire;
- Grants for reasonable and necessary expenses incurred for the repair or rehabilitation of a personal residence, or for the repair or replacement of its contents, to the extent attributable to the fire; and
- Payments made by a federal, state, or local government in connection with the fire.

Are other relief payments taxable?

Generally yes. You generally do have to include in gross income the following relief payments:

- Grants or other relief payments for expenses for which you are also reimbursed by insurance or otherwise; and
- Payments in the nature of income replacement; for example, payments to individuals of lost wages, unemployment compensation and payments in the nature of business income replacement.

DOCUMENT & RECORD REPLACEMENT

A number of my personal records and identification cards (Social Security card, tax returns, passport, driver's license, etc.) were destroyed as a result of the fire. What should I do?

Social Security

Social Security Card

You should apply to the Social Security Administration for a replacement Social Security card. To apply, mail or bring the following documents to your local Social Security office:

- 1) Form SS-5, which is available at your local Social Security office, online at www.socialsecurity.gov/online/ss-5.html, or can be mailed to you upon request by calling (800) 772-1213; and
- 2) Evidence of your identity.
 - A) If you are a U.S. citizen, then you must provide a U.S. driver's license, U.S. state-issued non-driver identity card, or U.S. passport. If you do not have these specific documents, then you will be asked to provide a U.S. military identity card, Certificate of Naturalization, employee identity card, or school identification card. For young children, medical records, a final adoption decree, or school records may be accepted. Birth certificates, however, will not be accepted as evidence of identity.
 - B) If you are not a U.S. citizen, you must provide U.S. immigration documents such as a Form I-551 with a machine-readable immigrant visa, I-94 with your unexpired foreign passport, or work permit card (I-766 or I-688B).
 - C) If you are a U.S. citizen born outside of the U.S., you must provide evidence of your U.S. citizenship or current lawful immigration status, such as a U.S. passport or unexpired document issued to you by the Department of Homeland Security showing your current immigration status.

The documents presented as evidence must be either originals or copies certified by the issuing agency. Uncertified or notarized photocopies will not be accepted. They must also have been recently issued.

To find your local Social Security office, visit www.socialsecurity.gov/locator or call (800) 772-1213. If you live in an area serviced by a Social Security Card Center, you may need to visit the Center in person.

Medicare Card

If your Medicare card was destroyed, you should also apply to the Social Security Administration for a replacement card. There is no charge for this service. You can request a replacement card at your local Social Security office, online at www.socialsecurity.gov/medicarecard, or by telephone at (800) 772-1213. Requests usually take 30 days to process. If you need proof right away that you have Medicare, contact your local Social Security office or call the toll-free number noted above, and the office can provide you with proof that you can use until you receive your replacement Medicare card.

Federal Income Tax Returns

Copies of your federal income tax returns may be obtained from your tax preparer or the IRS. Alternatively, transcripts of your federal income tax returns may also be obtained from the IRS. (Transcripts are computer-created records of returns which include most of the line-items as filed with the IRS, including any accompanying forms and schedules.)

To apply for a copy of a tax return from the IRS, complete Form 4506, "Request for Copy of Tax Form," write "Southern CA Wildfires 2008" in red ink at the top of the form, and send it to the address indicated on the instructions to the form. To apply for a transcript of a tax return from the IRS, complete Form 4506-T, "Request for Transcript of Tax Return," write "Southern CA Wildfires 2008" in red ink at the top of the form, and send it to the address indicated on the instructions to the form. Both forms may be obtained online at www.irs.gov or by calling (866) 562-5227 (Monday-Friday, 7:00 a.m. – 10:00 p.m. local time). Copies and transcripts of tax returns from the IRS are free and expedited for affected taxpayers.

State Income Tax Returns

To get a free copy of your lost or damaged California state returns, you should complete Form FTB 3516, "Request for Copy of Tax Return." Write "Southern CA Wildfires 2008" in red ink at the top of the request. You may download the form at the Franchise Tax Board's website at www.ftb.ca.gov or order one by calling (800) 852-5711 (Monday-Friday, 7:00 a.m. – 6:00 p.m.).

Passport

Information and forms about replacing a U.S. passport are available online at <http://travel.state.gov> or through the U.S. Passport Information Center at (877) 487-2778 (Monday-Friday, 8:00 a.m. – 10:00 p.m.). You will have to submit an application for a U.S. passport (Form DS-11) and a statement regarding a lost or stolen passport (Form DS-64) in person at a Passport Agency or Acceptance Facility.

If your passport was issued by a country other than the United States, you should contact that country's consulate and make an application for a replacement passport.

Visa/Resident Alien (Green) Cards

For information on how to replace your visa/resident alien (green) card, please see the "Immigration" section of this Handbook.

California Driver's License/ID Card

To replace your California driver's license and/or identification card, you should make an appointment to visit your local DMV office either online at <http://www.dmv.ca.gov> or by calling (800) 777-0133 (available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week). You must submit application form DL 44 (available at your local DMV or by mail if you call the previously mentioned number), give a thumb print, and have your picture taken. You will be issued an interim license and/or receipt for your ID card until you receive your new card in the mail.

If you have been affected by the wildfires, you do not need to pay any fees to replace your California driver's license and/or identification card. Under Governor Schwarzenegger's Executive Orders, the general application fees ($22.00 for license, $23.00 for ID card, or free for a senior citizen ID card) have been waived. The application process will remain free until the Executive Orders are rescinded.

Certificate of Title (Cars, Boats/Vessels)

To obtain a replacement certificate of title, you must complete an Application for Duplicate Title form (Reg 227) and attach the damaged title if mutilated. Reg 227 may be obtained online at <http://www.dmv.ca.gov/forms> or at your local DMV. You may submit the application either in person at your local DMV office or mail it to:

Department of Motor Vehicles
Registration Operations
P.O. Box 942869
Sacramento, CA 94269-0001

Instructions are available at <http://www.dmv.ca.gov>.

If you lost your certificate of title due to the wildfires, you do not need to pay any fees for a replacement.

Governor Schwarzenegger recently passed Executive Orders waiving the general application fees of $17.00 ($15.00 for boats/vessels). The process will remain free until the Executive Orders are rescinded.

Birth Certificate, Marriage Certificate, Divorce Decree, Death Certificates

Certified copies of birth, death, and marriage certificates may be obtained from the County Recorder's office in the county where the birth, death, or marriage occurred. You must fill out an application with information such as the full name of the person, date of event, and place of event. If you need the documents quickly, you should go directly to the office to apply for the certificate. A list of the recorders' offices in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, Santa Barbara, and Ventura counties is at the end of this section.

If you were affected by the wildfires, the general fee will be waived under recent Executive Orders by Governor Schwarzenegger. Normally, a fee in the amount of $17.00 for a birth certificate, $13.00 for a marriage certificate, or $12.00 for a death certificate, is required. The fee will remain waived until the orders are rescinded.

Certified copies of birth, death, and marriage certificates may also be obtained from the Office of Vital Records by mailing your request to:

California Office of Vital Records
Department of Health Services
MS: 5103
P.O. Box 997410
Sacramento, CA 95899-7410

If using a courier service that requires a physical address for delivery, use:

California Office of Vital Records
Department of Health Services
MS: 5103
1501 Capitol Avenue
Sacramento, CA 95814

Instructions and forms for requesting such certified copies are available at www.cdph.ca.gov. The Office of Vital Records has announced that it will expedite applications from fire victims that are directed from local assistance centers. For the assistance center nearest you, see the "FEMA/State Local Assistance Centers" section of this Handbook.

To replace a divorce decree or judgment, contact the clerk of the court in the county where the judgment was issued. Procedures vary from court to court. To find the location, phone number, and website of the superior court, visit www.courtinfo.ca.gov.

As a result of the fires, records related to real property I own (such as the deed to my house) were destroyed. What should I do?

Certified copies of deeds to real property may be obtained from the County Recorder's office in the county where the property is located. To apply, you will need the name of the owner of the deed, property address, recorded year of the deed, and the title of the document or document number. Copy fees vary from $1.25 to $6.00 for the first page, and from $1.00 to $3.00 for each page thereafter.

As a result of the fires, my credit cards, debit cards, and/or checks and related statements were destroyed. What should I do?

To replace credit cards, debit cards, and/or checkbooks, contact your financial institution. Most banks and credit card companies have toll-free numbers to report lost or stolen cards. If you need replacement checks or bank statements but have no identification, you should go to the branch where you opened the account which has your original signature card on file.

As a result of the fires, my will and/or family trust document was destroyed. What should I do?

If the will and/or family trust was prepared by an attorney, you may be able to obtain a copy of the document by contacting the attorney who drafted it. If you do not have the attorney's current address, contact the State Bar of California at (415) 538-2000 or search for the attorney's contact information online at <http://members.calbar.ca.gov/search/member.aspx>. If the attorney does not have a copy of the document, you should have a new will or other document drafted.

As a result of the fires, my insurance policy, premium notice, or other insurance-related document was destroyed. What should I do?

If insurance documents are destroyed, contact your insurance agent or insurance company to obtain a copy of the policy.

COMMUNICATION SERVICES

How can I get public safety and news information about the wildfires?

In addition to free over-the-air broadcast channels, XM Satellite Radio is broadcasting news updates and public safety information, including traffic, weather, and evacuation news regarding the California wildfires on its 24-hour radio channel Emergency Alert (XM channel 247). Anyone who has an XM receiver (even if you are not an XM subscriber) can tune in to this station. So, for example, if you have an XM radio in your car (even if you do not pay to subscribe to XM), you can tune in to these updates.

How can I have my calls forwarded if I have evacuated?

Several telephone companies are offering free call forwarding and other services to customers who have evacuated due to the wildfires.

Verizon customers are eligible to add call-forwarding to their account at no charge. This will permit calls to be automatically forwarded to another location where you might be staying, or to your wireless number. Verizon will not charge for the one-time set-up fee or monthly charges for this call-forwarding, although customer will be responsible for any toll charges on forwarded calls (as well as wireless airtime charges). Residential customers who have been affected by the wildfires and who wish to add this call-forwarding service should call Verizon at (800) 483-1000. Business customers should instead call (800) 483-2000.

AT&T California customers displaced by the wildfires are also eligible for several free services to stay in touch with family and friends. Specifically, AT&T California is providing voice mail, call-forwarding services, and installation of a phone line free of charge for 30 days to displaced residential and small business customers. This will permit customers to redirect their phone calls to a temporary number or a wireless phone. For customers who need a local service line installed at a temporary or new location, AT&T will waive the installation fee. Residential customers should call AT&T at (888) 338-3291 from Monday through Friday 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 pm. for information regarding these free services.

Is there anywhere I can make free calls or check my email if I have evacuated?

For those displaced from their homes, T-Mobile is temporarily offering complementary Wi-Fi Internet service at nearly 260 T-Mobile HotSpot locations in Southern California, including airports, FedEx Offices, Borders Books & Music, Hyatt Hotels, and Red Roof Inns.

IMMIGRATION

Do I need to be a U.S. citizen or legal resident to apply for disaster relief?

Not necessarily. FEMA non-emergency disaster assistance and unemployment assistance programs are available to U.S. citizens, non-citizen nationals, and qualified aliens (anyone with legal permanent residence who has a “Green Card”). If any member of the household is eligible, including a minor child, then the entire household is eligible, and FEMA states that it will collect no information regarding the status of non-qualified individuals. Undocumented immigrants may qualify for emergency, non-cash, FEMA disaster assistance, including Crisis Counseling, Disaster Legal Services, and other short-term, non-cash assistance. Furthermore, state and local agencies, and private organizations such as the American Red Cross, provide services to undocumented immigrants. Contact the specific organizations for eligibility information.

I am an undocumented immigrant but my child was born in the U.S. Is my child eligible to receive disaster relief?

Yes. If you have a minor child who is a U.S. citizen or a qualified alien residing with you, you may apply for FEMA assistance on your child’s behalf. FEMA states that it will collect no information regarding your status. You will be asked to sign a declaration that your child is qualified as a U.S. citizen, non-citizen national, or qualified alien. You may also be required to provide his or her Social Security number.

My “Green Card” was destroyed by the wildfire. How do I replace it?

If your Green Card was lost or destroyed, it is important that you replace it as soon as possible. To replace your Green Card, you must submit a Form I-90. To complete this form, you must have your legal name, A-number (alien registration number), and Date of Admission. If you do not have this information, then make an appointment to see a U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (“USCIS” (formerly known as INS)) officer at www.uscis.gov, then click on INFOPASS.

The Form I-90 is available at www.uscis.gov (click on “Immigration Forms”) or you may call the USCIS Forms request line at (800) 870-3676. You may also pick up the form in person at the Los Angeles Field Office in room 1001. All I-90 forms must be mailed to: USCIS, Post Office Box 54870, Los Angeles, CA 90054-0870. You may also file the Form I-90 electronically if you have a credit card in your name or your spouse’s name. The filing fee for the Form I-90 is $290.00. There may be an additional $80 biometric (fingerprint) fee (see special instructions for details). All checks or money orders are payable to the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. Once USCIS receives the Form I-90, a receipt will be issued within 1-2 months. If you file the Form I-90 electronically, you will receive a receipt immediately. Within 2 months, you will receive the biometric appointment. For the biometric appointment, you will need to bring an identity document, such as a driver’s license, passport, or a copy of another document containing your name, date of birth, photograph, and signature. Processing time for the Form I-90 is approximately 6-12 months.

How can I obtain “temporary proof” that I am a U.S. Lawful Permanent Resident while my Form I-90 is being processed?

Once you have the Form I-90 filing receipt described above, you may request an I-551 stamp. The I-551 stamp is legal proof of your lawful permanent residency status. This stamp is valid for travel and/or employment purposes. To request an I-551 stamp, go to www.uscis.gov and click on INFOPASS to schedule an appointment. Bring your passport so the USCIS officer can place the stamp in your passport. If you do not have a valid passport, then bring 2 passport photos. The USCIS officer will create an I-94 document with the I-551 stamp.

My Naturalization Certificate was destroyed by the wildfire. How do I replace it?

If your Naturalization Certificate (“Citizenship Paper”) was lost or destroyed, it is important that you replace it as soon as possible. To replace your Naturalization Certificate, you must complete a Form N-565. To complete this form, you must have your legal name, A-number (alien registration number), Certificate Number and 2 passport photos. If you do not have this information, then make an appointment to see a USCIS officer at www.uscis.gov, click on INFOPASS.

The Form N-565 is available at www.uscis.gov by following the links for “Immigration Forms” or you may call the USCIS forms request line at (800) 870-3676. All N-565 forms must be mailed to: USCIS, Nebraska Service Center, Post Office Box 87565, Lincoln, NE 68501-7565. You may also pick up the form in person at the Los Angeles District Office in room 1001. The filing fee for the Form N-565 is $380.00. All checks or money orders are payable to the Department of Homeland Security. Remember to include 2 passport photos with the form. Once USCIS receives the Form N-565, a receipt will be issued within 1-2 months. Processing time for the Form N-565 is 4-6 months. In some cases, the Form N-565 can be “expedited.” Bring your N-565 filing receipt with you if you schedule an appointment with an officer to discuss expediting your form.

How do I replace a lost work permit?

To replace a lost work permit, you must complete and submit a Form I-765. The Form I-765 is available at www.uscis.gov by following the links for “Immigration Forms,” or you may call the USCIS forms request line at (800) 870-3676. Along with the completed form, include a photocopy of any applications or documents that entitle you to obtain a work permit, such as application of asylum, suspension of deportation, or adjustment of status. Depending on your status, you may have to pay a $340 filing fee. Check the website or call the toll-free number to determine whether you are entitled to waive the fee. Completed I-765 forms may be mailed; check the website to determine the proper mailing address for your status. You may also be able to submit this form electronically through the USCIS website. In some cases, the Form I-765 can be “expedited.” Bring your I-765 filing receipt and any documents from your employer with you if you schedule an appointment with an officer to discuss expediting your form.

For further information or questions regarding the replacement of immigration papers, contact USCIS at www.uscis.gov or call (800) 375-5283.

Do I need to let USCIS know that I have moved as a result of the wildfires?

Yes. All non-U.S. citizens are required to promptly notify the USCIS of any change of address. To report a change of address, you must file a Form AR-11. The Form AR-11 is available at www.uscis.gov by following the links for “Immigration Forms,” or you may call the USCIS forms request line at (800) 870-3676. Filing the Form AR-11 electronically or by mail is recommended. All AR-11 forms must be mailed to: DHS/USCIS, Change of Address, Post Office Box 7134, London, KY 40742-7134. Go to www.uscis.gov to file a Form AR-11 electronically. In most cases, filing this form will update information for any case you have pending, but you should check the website to confirm.

Additional immigration information is available from USCIS at (800) 375-5283 or at www.uscis.gov. CONSUMER TIPS & FRAUD PREVENTION

Could I become a victim of fraud?

Unfortunately, after a disaster some people try to take advantage of victims by engaging in financial scams and frauds. In some cases these individuals and companies claim to be offering help by engaging in what may be legal acts but which in reality result in additional financial hardship to those already suffering. In the aftermath of the wildfires, you should take precautions and be on the lookout for financial scams and con artists.

What should I be doing to prevent a fraud or a financial scam?

The old saying applies: Things that sound too good to be true usually are. As a general matter, the following tips should be followed when hiring or contracting with anyone: (1) verify that the company or person is licensed with the appropriate regulatory agencies if the industry is subject to state licensing; (2) obtain multiple estimates of the cost of the service to be performed from different sources so you know that you are getting a fair price; (3) obtain estimates in writing; (4) ask for references so you can speak directly with prior customers to determine whether they were satisfied; (5) when individuals show up at your home, ask for identification to verify that they are who they say they are; (6) read all contracts or service agreements before signing; and (7) file complaints with the appropriate regulatory agencies if confronted with potential fraud or abuse. Additionally, whenever you have telephone calls with any person at a company or agency, keep a log of the calls for your records. You should log the name of the person you spoke with, the date and time of the call, and the subject matter of the call.

If you believe that someone is attempting to defraud you, contact the California Department of Consumer Affairs at (800) 952-5210 or file a complaint online at www.dca.ca.gov. To report fraud, waste, abuse, or mismanagement involving disaster relief operations, contact the National Center for Disaster Fraud Hotline at (866) 720-5721.

What if someone asks me to sign something?

You should look out for anyone that is in a hurry to have you sign a document or contract. A red flag should go up if someone says that you must sign right away in order to get a low price or a special deal. A person or company that is really trying to aid victims and/or provide legitimate services will not make such demands when asking you to sign documents but will want you to truly understand what you are signing. Most importantly, read everything before you sign it and make sure you understand what you are signing. Do not be afraid to ask questions about the meaning of the contract. Consider getting the assistance of a qualified attorney (if you do not have your own attorney, you may want to refer to "Lawyer Referral Services & Legal Aid"). Get copies of everything you sign at the time you sign.

What is a public insurance adjuster and what should I look for if I decide to hire one?

Public insurance adjusters claim that they can maximize your insurance benefits by finding damage that an insurance company adjuster might not find. It is generally recommended that you try and settle an insurance claim directly with your insurance company before you hire a public insurance adjuster. Your insurance company provides an adjuster to you at no charge. If you use the insurance company's adjuster, you still have the right to separately hire a public adjuster to help you. Public adjusters are paid a fee or a percentage of your claim. It is important that you understand what the fees are and how they are calculated before you hire a public adjuster. It is always a good idea to rely on referrals from friends and family to determine which public adjusters are legitimate. If you decide to hire a public adjuster, do so in writing and make sure that they are licensed. Call the California Department of Insurance (CDI) at (800) 967-9331 or access the CDI's website at www.insurance.ca.gov for licensing verification and other information regarding public adjusters. You can also file a complaint at the website or by calling the CDI's consumer hotline at (800) 927-4357.

What do I need to consider if I am offered a home loan?

Before you get a loan to rebuild your house, you should always shop around for different lenders to determine which one is offering you the best interest rates and the lowest fees. Before getting a loan from a private lender, always check to see if you qualify for any government assistance programs, such as FEMA, HUD programs, or assistance from the State of California (see “Housing: Repair or Rebuilding”). If a lender promises you a low interest government loan, verify their credentials and check with the government agency to be sure the loan is in fact available under the terms promised. Be on the lookout for “guaranteed loans,” when a person contacts you and “offers” a guaranteed loan for an upfront fee. Legitimate lenders do not guarantee that you will qualify for a loan before you complete an application and they run a credit check. Legitimate lenders may charge a small application fee but they do not promise that you will get the loan until they complete their review.

Make sure that you are dealing with a licensed lender. In California, most lenders are regulated by the California Department of Corporations, which you can reach online at www.corp.ca.gov or by phone at (866) 275-2677. Real estate brokers, who may also act as mortgage brokers, are licensed by the California Department of Real Estate. You can reach that department online at www.dre.ca.gov or by phone at (916) 227-0931. If you are not sure which department licenses the lender, you can check real estate and financial services license records from multiple departments at once online at http://www.dre.ca.gov/gen_lic_info.html.

What should I look out for when hiring contractors to do repair work on my house?

Problems with home repair contractors such as abandonment and shoddy work often happen after disasters. Watch out for door-to-door offers of repair services, never provide the contractor with a cash deposit, and do not pay for the entire job up front. Ask for proof that the person has a contractor’s license for the type of work that needs to be done. Make sure that he or she carries workers’ compensation insurance and general liability insurance. Otherwise, you may be liable for accidents or damage. You should also get a written contract that details every aspect of the work to be done including the scope of work, materials, costs, and payment schedules. Before signing a contract with a contractor, be sure to check his or her license status and references. You can check licenses online or file a complaint at the California Contractor State License Board’s website, www.cslb.ca.gov. In addition, you can contact the CSLB’s free automated telephone number to verify that a license is valid: (800) 321-2752. You can also learn more about contractors through the Better Business Bureau online at www.bbb.com or by phone at:

- (909) 825-7280 (Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, and San Bernardino Counties)
- (858) 496-2131 (San Diego and Imperial Counties)
- (805) 963-8657 (Ventura, Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo Counties)

What should I look for when hiring a professional engineer?

If your home was damaged by the fires, you may need to consult with a professional engineer to determine if the building is safe to occupy and can be safely repaired or rebuilt. Your county or city Building and Safety Department, Department of Public Works, and County Surveyor’s Office can tell you about what is required to repair damage to your home. If your project requires the advice of a professional engineer, make sure that individual is licensed by the Board of Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors. This information is available online at www.pels.ca.gov or by phone at (866) 780-5370. You can also find out if there have been any complaints or disciplinary actions against that person. As when hiring a contractor, get a written contract and check references before beginning any work.

Is loan consolidation a good idea?

While the decision whether to consolidate loans or transfer loans to a new finance company depends on your particular situation and the terms being offered, you should be aware that some financial companies may try and take advantage of you during a disaster. Because of the disaster, you may not be able to pay your creditors on time. As such, you may be contacted by finance companies promising to consolidate your home mortgage, credit card debt, car loans, and repair loans. They will claim that such consolidation will lower your monthly payments and give you more time to pay the debt. Such companies often pressure you to sign multiple loan agreements without giving you a chance to review the documents or consult with an attorney. In many instances, these refinancings result in high fees, payments to bogus creditors, and defaults on the loan. You should carefully review the terms of the refinancing, verify that the company you are dealing with is legitimate and licensed, and have referrals from previous customers. It is also recommended that you hire an attorney to review the documents and provide advice.

Can I do anything about being hassled by a collection agency?

Creditors are not required to let you know that they are referring your account to a collection agency. However, you have certain legal rights that protect you from the harassment of a collection agency. For example, debt collectors may only call between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. (They can contact your employer in writing for certain information, as well as contact you at your work place, however.)

Debt collectors cannot use obscene or profane language or make threats to harm you or your property. There is no law that limits the number of calls that an agency may make, but repeated calls over a short period are prohibited if they would constitute harassment. You can request that a debt collector not contact you at work, or contact you only by mail. You should make your request in writing.

You can obtain more information about your rights with respect to collection agencies by consulting the California Attorney General's website at: <http://ag.ca.gov>. Click on the "Consumers" link, then "Consumer Alerts, Info, & Complaints," and then "Debt Collectors." You can also file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission online at <https://www.ftccomplaintassistant.gov>. You can contact the Commission by mail at Consumer Response Center, Washington, DC 20580-0001; by telephone at (877) FTC-HELP; or through its website, at www.ftc.gov.

What if I am the victim of identity theft?

Identity thieves steal personal information and use it to obtain credit cards, loans, or bank accounts in other peoples' names. When the bills aren't paid, the victims may be held responsible for the charges.

Identity theft is likely to happen in the chaos following a disaster, because people may be forced to evacuate in a hurry, leaving personal information vulnerable. Identity thieves may also pose as authority figures to steal personal information or impersonate disaster victims to obtain FEMA checks or other emergency services.

You should never give your complete Social Security number, bank account number, or credit card information to anyone unless you are certain that the person actually is a representative of a legitimate organization. If you would like to stop pre-approved credit offers from being mailed to you, you can contact the Consumer Credit Reporting Industry at (888) 567-8688, or opt out online at their official website: www.optoutprescreen.com.

If you believe that you are a victim of identity theft, you should: (1) contact the fraud department of the three major credit agencies to request a 90-day fraud alert — you can call Experian at (888) 397-3742, Equifax at (800) 685-1111, and TransUnion at (800) 888-4213; (2) contact your local police and report the identity theft — be sure to obtain a copy of the police report; (3) fill out the ID Theft Affidavit provided by the Federal Trade Commission at: www.ftc.gov/bcp/edu/resources/forms/affidavit.pdf, and (4) contact your creditors and request information about the fraudulent accounts. You can use the police report and affidavit to help prove that you were the victim of identity theft.

If you request copies of documents related to your ID theft from creditor companies, or request that companies relieve you of your responsibility to pay debts related to your ID theft, you may want to create an ID theft report. An ID theft report is a detailed police report regarding the identity theft that helps you recover more quickly and gives you certain legal rights. You can aid the process of creating an ID theft report by filing a complaint online provided by the Federal Trade Commission at <https://www.ftccomplaintassistant.gov> — be sure to print a copy of the ID Theft Complaint to help you file an Identity Theft Report.

For more information on reacting to identity theft, including a victim checklist and other guides, visit the California Office of Privacy Protection’s website at: www.privacyprotection.ca.gov, or call (866) 785-9663.

What do I look for when hiring a moving company?

When hiring a moving company that you are unfamiliar with, you should: (1) ask for references; (2) make sure the mover is licensed and in good standing by calling the California Public Utilities Commission at (800) 877-8867 or by checking the index of licensed movers maintained by the Commission at their website, www.cpuc.ca.gov; (3) get an estimate in writing of the cost of the move and how long it will take — telephone or internet estimates are not binding and are prohibited; (4) know that if you do not get a written estimate, the moving company must provide a “not to exceed” price for all household moves; (5) get copies of everything you sign before the move begins; and (6) make sure you understand the moving company’s insurance limits and consider whether you should purchase additional insurance.

More information, including an updated list of licensed movers, information about maximum rates, and several consumer-protection resources, is available at: www.cpuc.ca.gov. Click on the “Transportation” link, then “Moving Companies.” Also, you can file a complaint against a moving company online at www.cpuc.ca.gov or by calling (415) 703-1216 or (800) 366-4782.

What do I look for when hiring a storage company?

Before you turn your belongings over to anyone for storage you should make sure that: (1) the storage company is legitimate and reputable, by talking with people who have used their services; (2) you have a written agreement with the storage company that lists what will be provided, the cost to you, and, specifically, the property you are turning over for storage; and (3) the storage company is licensed and bonded.

If the storage is for a period shorter than 90 days, you may direct complaints to the California Public Utilities Commission at www.cpuc.ca.gov or by calling (415) 703-1216 or (800) 366-4782.

What do I look for when hiring an attorney?

It is important to always start with a referral from a trusted source. If you do not have a trusted friend or family member who can refer you to an attorney, you may want to inquire with a local lawyer referral service that has been certified by the State Bar of California. We have listed such certified services for the affected counties in the “Lawyer Referral Services & Legal Aid” section. To obtain a listing of State Bar-certified referral services in other counties, you can call the State Bar at (415) 538-2250 or (866) 442-2529 or look them up on the internet at www.calbar.ca.gov. Additionally, you may want to review the State Bar’s consumer pamphlets, “How Can I Find and Hire a Lawyer?” and “What Can I Do If I Have a Problem with My Lawyer?” which are located online at www.calbar.ca.gov. Click the “Public Service” link, then the “Consumer Information” link, and then the “Pamphlets” link. To order printed copies of the pamphlets, send an email to pamphlets@calbar.ca.gov or call (415) 538-2280 for more information. Finally, if you need to file a complaint against an attorney, you should contact the State Bar of California at (800) 843-9053 or (213) 765-1200 or visit their website at www.calbar.ca.gov and click on the “Attorney Complaints” link.

After a disaster can a seller of products radically increase the price to make a quick buck?

After the governor declares a state of emergency, it is illegal for businesses to increase the cost of certain goods by more than 10% unless they can prove it was based on an increase in their supplier’s price. The prohibition on price gouging applies to food, emergency and medical supplies, gasoline, repairs, and reconstruction. If you suspect price gouging, contact your local District Attorney or the California Attorney

General's Office at (800) 952-5225 or online at: <http://ag.ca.gov/consumers>.

What if I want to give money to help relief efforts?

After a disaster, some people take advantage of the circumstances by stealing charitable donations intended to help victims. If you're considering giving money to a charity assisting with relief efforts, it's important to know where your donation will end up. Give to known charities that work in disaster assistance or research unfamiliar charities before giving. You can research California charities on the Attorney General's website, www.ag.ca.gov/charities, or at the Better Business Bureau's Wise Giving Alliance, www.give.org. Legitimate charities won't rush you to give and will be willing to send you information before you donate. Be wary of solicitors who say they can only accept cash, who offer to come and pick up your donation, or who will not give their name or a call-back number. Don't respond to unsolicited (SPAM) e-mails or click on e-mail links; go to the charity's official website, call, or make your donation by mail. Always make out checks to the name of a charity, never to an individual, and never give out personal information such as a credit card or bank account number unless you clearly know who you are dealing with.

Our house was destroyed by the fire, including the barns and stables we used to shelter our larger animals. Although we were able to evacuate the animals, we now must find some place to keep them. Can anyone help?

Many shelters in the affected areas are continuing to care for animals displaced by the fire, sometimes at no charge. Southern California VCA Animal Hospitals are offering free boarding for pet evacuees through November 30, 2008. Information on VCA Animal Hospital locations can be found at <http://vca.know-where.com/vca>. Most Red Cross evacuation centers are accepting household pets in carriers or crates. If possible, pet guardians are urged to bring their own supplies such as food and leashes. Animals that have been injured, orphaned, or otherwise affected by the wildfires may be eligible to receive aid through the United Animal Nations' LifeLine Crisis Relief program. Grants usually range between $100 and $400. The guidelines for the program and an application can be obtained at <http://www.uan.org/index.cfm?navid=167>.
