This web page describes background checks for firearm transfers conducted in 2006. The statistical tables below provide the number of applications checked by state points of contact and local agencies; the number of applications denied and the reasons for denial; and estimates of applications and denials conducted by each type of approval system. Data are also provided on appeals of denied applications and arrests for falsified applications. The Firearm Inquiry Statistics Program is an ongoing data collection effort focusing on the procedures and statistics related to background checks in selected states.

NCJ 221786

Summary findings

- Nearly 79 million applications for firearm transfers or permits were subject to background checks from the inception of the Brady Act on March 1, 1994, through December 31, 2006. Almost 1.5 million applications were denied.
- In 2006, 1.6% of the 8.6 million applications for firearm transfers or permits were denied by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) (69,930) or by state and local agencies (64,512).
- A felony conviction or indictment was the most common reason for a denial by a state or local agency (44%) or the FBI (36%).
- Among all agencies conducting background checks, more than 60% of applications were denied due to reasons other than a felony conviction in 2006, compared to only 28% in 1999.
- Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) field offices investigated 9,432 National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) denials that were referred by the FBI in 2006.

Background

The Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act of 1993 (Pub. L. No. 103-159, 107 Stat.1536 (1993), codified as amended at 18 U. S.C. Section 921 et seq.) mandates a criminal history background check on any person who attempts to purchase a firearm from a Federal Firearms Licensee (FFL). The permanent provisions of the Brady Act established the NICS, which is accessed by the FBI or a state point of contact (POC) prior to transferring a firearm. The NICS is a system comprising data on persons who are prohibited from purchasing or possessing a firearm under the Brady Act or under state law.

The Brady Act prohibits transfer of a firearm to a person who —

- is under indictment for, or has been convicted of, a crime punishable by imprisonment for more than 1 year
- is a fugitive from justice
- is an unlawful user of, or addicted to, a controlled substance
- has been adjudicated as a mental defective or committed to a mental institution
- is an illegal alien or has been admitted to the United States under a nonimmigrant visa
- was dishonorably discharged from the U.S. Armed Forces
- has renounced U.S. citizenship
- is subject to a court order restraining him or her from harassing, stalking, or threatening an intimate partner or child
- has been convicted of a misdemeanor crime of domestic violence
- is under the age of 18 for long guns or under the age of 21 for handguns.

An FFL contacts either the FBI or state POC to determine whether a prospective purchaser is prohibited from receiving a firearm. The FBI conducts all NICS checks for 29 states. POC agencies, which may be statewide or local, conduct all NICS checks for 13 other states. In the remaining 8 states, NICS checks are conducted by POC agencies on handgun transfer applicants and by the FBI on long gun transfer applicants. Several states require an additional background check, usually by a local agency that does not access the NICS but uses only state records. State laws may require a check on a permit applicant or a person who seeks to receive a firearm from an unlicensed seller.

For more information on the NICS, visit the FBI Criminal Justice Information Service (CJIS) website.

The Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) began the Firearm Inquiry Statistics (FIST) project in 1995 to provide national estimates of the total number of firearm applications received and denied pursuant to the Brady Act and similar state laws. The FIST project collects counts of firearm transfers and permit checks conducted by state and local agencies, and combines this information with FBI NICS transaction data. Under FIST, additional information is collected on reasons for denials, appeals of denials, and law enforcement actions the FBI and the ATF take against denied persons.

Additional information

Components of the national firearm check system

About 3,000 federal, state, and local agencies conduct background checks on persons who apply to purchase a firearm or for a permit that may be used to make a purchase. Variations in federal and state procedures for determining firearm possession eligibility are summarized below.

Overview of the NICS

Prospective firearm applicants undergo a NICS check that has been requested by a dealer or the applicant must present a state permit that the ATF has qualified as an alternative to the point-of-transfer check.

ATF-approved permits are those that —

- allow an applicant to possess, acquire, or carry a firearm, and
- were issued not more than 5 years earlier by the state where the transfer is to take place, after an authorized government official verified that possession of a firearm by the applicant would not be a violation of law.

All permits issued since November 29, 1998, must have included a NICS check. Many state-qualifying permits may be used for multiple purchases while valid. State laws often provide that a permit will be revoked if the holder is convicted of an offense or otherwise becomes ineligible after receiving the permit. Prior to transferring a firearm under the permanent Brady provisions, an FFL is required to obtain a completed Firearm Transaction Record (ATF form 4473) from the applicant.

An FFL initiates a NICS check by contacting either the FBI or state POC. Most inquiries are initiated by telephone. In 2002, the FBI added E-Check to allow FFLs to electronically request a check.

The FBI or POC queries available federal, state, and local systems and notifies the FFL that the transfer may proceed, may not proceed, or must be delayed pending further review of the applicant's record.

State and local NICS participation

Each state government determines the extent of its involvement in the NICS process.

- Three levels of state involvement currently exist:
- A full POC requests a NICS check on all firearm transfers originating in the state.
  - A partial POC requests a NICS check on all handgun transfers; FFLs in the state are required to contact the FBI for NICS checks for long gun transfers.
  - The state does not maintain a POC; FFLs are required to contact the FBI for NICS checks on all firearm transfers originating in the state.

Methodology

The Regional Justice Information Service (REJIS), through a cooperative agreement with BJS under the FIST program, collected the data from federal, state, and local agencies.

State and local background checking agencies were stratified by size of the population served: state agencies that served an entire state population; local agencies that served a population greater than 100,000; local agencies that served a population between 10,000 and 100,000; and local agencies that served a population of less than 10,000. Population size was based on 2000 Census Bureau information. The population categories were chosen to be consistent with those used by the FBI when conducting similar studies.

The sample for the FIST survey was selected from the population of 3,086 state and local checking agencies. Thirty statewide agencies were included, along with a stratified random sample of local agencies. Overall, 670 agencies provided data for a response rate of 84.9%.

Population served by agencies	Number of agencies
	Total	Sample	Responses	Response rate
Total	3,086	789	670	84.9%
Statewide	30	30	29	96.7%
Under 10,000	1,690	316	273	86.4%
10,000 to 100,000	1,242	397	330	83.1%
Over 100,000	124	46	38	82.6%

National estimates were developed using population weighting factors. When an agency did not provide data for all months, a simple linear extrapolation or interpolation was used to generate a 12-month total.

Michigan reported carry permit information by fiscal year, which was used to estimate for the calendar year. An estimate based on state population was used to determine the number of carry permit applications and denials in Mississippi. Pennsylvania reported 398,830 instant checks, included in the FIST national estimate, and 123,744 applications for nonexempt carry permits. Pennsylvania provided the combined number of denials of all applications, which was prorated to obtain the number of denials of instant checks. Full-year data were not available for Tennessee, but an estimate of the state's instant checks was included in the national estimate.

Definitions

National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) includes records contained within the systems searched by the NICS, which are: the Interstate Identification Index (millions of criminal history records); the National Crime Information Center (protection orders and active felony or misdemeanor warrants); and the NICS Index, a database created solely for the use of the NICS and containing information provided by local, state and federal agencies pertaining to persons prohibited under federal law from receiving or possessing a firearm. Additionally, a fourth search of the applicable databases via the Department of Homeland Security's United States Immigration and Customs Enforcement is conducted for background checks initiated on all non-United States citizens.

Firearm is any weapon that is designed to or may readily be converted to expel a projectile by the action of an explosive.

Handgun is a firearm that has a short stock and is designed to be held and fired by the use of a single hand, such as a pistol or revolver.

Long gun is a firearm with a barrel extended to around 30 inches to improve accuracy and range, and commonly with a shoulder butt, designed to be fired with two hands, such as a rifle or shotgun.

Federal Firearms Licensee (FFL) is also known as a federally licensed firearms dealer. A dealer must be enrolled with the FBI NICS Section in order to be classified as an FFL.

Application for firearm transfer is information submitted by a person to a state or local checking agency to purchase a firearm or obtain a permit that can be used for a purchase; includes information submitted directly to a checking agency or forwarded by a prospective seller.

Denial occurs when an applicant is prohibited from receiving a firearm or a permit that can be used to receive a firearm because a disqualifying factor was found during a background check.

Transactions are inquiries to the Federal NICS system and may include more than one inquiry per application.

Instant check (instant approval) systems require a seller to transmit a purchaser's application to a checking agency by telephone or computer; the agency is required to respond immediately or as quickly as possible.

Purchase permit systems require a prospective firearm purchaser to obtain, after a background check, a government-issued document (called a permit, license, or identification card) that must be presented to a seller to receive a firearm.

Exempt carry permit is a state carry permit (issued after a background check) that exempts the holder from a check at the time of purchase under an ATF regulation or state law.

Other approval systems require a seller to transmit a purchaser's application to a checking agency by telephone or other electronic means; the agency is not required to respond immediately but must respond before the end of the statutory time limit.

<sup>b</sup>Agencies that conduct exempt carry permit checks in Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Dakota, South Carolina, Texas, and Wyoming request an FBI background check, but the state agency makes the decision to approve or deny an applicant. Applications in these states are included in FBI checks but denials are included in state and local checks, causing a reduction of FIST total applications by 160,286 in 2006 and 592,923 for 1999 to 2006.

<sup>c</sup>Instant check requires a seller to transmit a buyer's application to a checking agency by telephone or computer; the agency is required to respond immediately or as soon as possible.

<sup>d</sup>Purchase permit systems require a buyer to obtain, after a background check, a government-issued document such as a permit, license, or identification card that must be presented to a seller in order to receive a firearm.

<sup>f</sup>Other approval systems require a seller to transmit an application to a checking agency, with transfers delayed until a waiting period expires or the agency completes a check.

9Totals were estimated. See Methodology for more detail.

Criminal record systems

About the data collection

	Total	Percent
FBI denials referred to ATF Brady Operations	77,233	100 %
Brady Operations referred to ATF field divisions<sup>a</sup>
Total referred to field<sup>b</sup>	9,432	12.2 %
Delayed denials <sup>c</sup>	3,073	4.0
Standard referrals <sup>d</sup>	6,359	8.2
Not referred to field	60,736	78.7
Not referred and overturned	7,065	9.1
Reasons for referrals to ATF field divisions
Domestic violence misdemeanor	2,272	24.1 %
Subject to protective order	2,105	22.3
Convicted felon	2,053	21.8
Under indictment or information <sup>e</sup>	905	9.6
Unlawful user of controlled substance	792	8.4
Illegal or unlawful alien	763	8.1
Other reasons <sup>f</sup>	542	5.7

<sup>a</sup>A denial is referred if it is likely to merit prosecution under ATF and U.S. Attorney criteria.

<sup>b</sup>Includes 100 delayed and 334 standard denials overturned after referral to a field division when a subject was found to not be prohibited.

<sup>c</sup>A firearm may be obtained during an "open transaction" where the FBI has not completed a check in three business days and the dealer is allowed to transfer the firearm. If the FBI completes the check and finds that the buyer is prohibited, a delayed denial referral is made to ATF.

<sup>d</sup>A standard referral involves a person who is not allowed to receive a firearm because the FBI found a prohibitory record within three business days.

<sup>f</sup>The category "other reasons" is compiled from seven other prohibiting categories utilized by the Brady Operations Branch to refer denials for field investigation.

Branch.
