Instructions for Supplement J, Confirmation of Bona Fide Job Offer or Request for Job Portability Under INA Section 204(j)

Department of Homeland Security U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services

USCIS
Form I-485
OMB No. 1615-xxxx
Expires xx/xx/xxxx

You must read these Instructions if you are filing Form I-485, Supplement J, Confirmation of Bona Fide Job Offer or Request for Job Portability Under INA Section 204(j) (Supplement J), to either confirm that the job offered to you in Form I-140, Immigrant Petition for Alien Worker, that is the basis of your Form I-485, Application to Register Permanent Residence or Adjust Status, remains available to you or to request job portability under the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) section 204(j).

What Is the Purpose of Supplement J?

You must use Supplement J if you are an employment-based applicant for adjustment of status who is filing or has previously filed Form I-485 as the principal beneficiary of a valid Form I-140, and you now seek, in connection with your Form I-485, to:

- 1. Confirm that the job offered to you in Form I-140 remains a bona fide job offer that you intend to accept once your Form I-485 is approved; or
- 2. Request job portability under INA section 204(j) to a new, full-time, permanent job offer that you intend to accept once your Form I-485 is approved. This new job offer must be in the same or a similar occupational classification as the job offered to you in Form I-140 that is the basis of your Form I-485.

NOTE: In adjudicating Supplement J, U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) does not make a determination whether you have current work authorization with an employer. The basis for adjustment of status to lawful permanent resident under a valid, Form I-140 is not actual (current) employment. Rather, the basis is prospective employment. Therefore, the adjudication of Supplement J, for applicants requesting job portability under INA section 204(j), is primarily limited to a determination of whether you have a bona fide job offer from a U.S. employer that is in the same or a similar occupational classification as the position for which the underlying Form I-140 was filed and approved.

Who May File Supplement J?

Unless you are filing Form I-485 together with a Form I-140 that names you as the principal beneficiary, you must file Supplement J at the time you file your Form I-485 to confirm that the job offered to you in the underlying Form I-140 is still bona fide and available to you. USCIS may request that you file Supplement J again prior to final processing of your Form I-485.

You must file Supplement J to request job portability to a new, permanent job offer under INA section 204(j). To do so, you must:

- 1. Have a properly filed Form I-485 that has been pending with USCIS for 180 days or more since the receipt date; and
- 2. Your Form I-485 must be based on an approved or pending Form I-140 that names you as the principal beneficiary.

If the underlying Form I-140 is currently pending with USCIS, you may still file Supplement J to request portability to a new, permanent job offer. However, please know that USCIS must first adjudicate Form I-140 prior to making a determination on your portability request.

You must have an approved underlying Form I-140 to be eligible to port to a new, permanent job offer under INA section 204(j).

When Should You File Supplement J?

If you are filing Supplement J to confirm that the job offer in the underlying Form I-140 is bona fide and still available to you, you must submit Supplement J when:

- 1. You initially file your employment-based Form I-485 with USCIS unless you are filing Form I-485 together with Form I-140; or
 - NOTE: You do not have to submit Supplement J at the time you file Form I-485 together with Form I-140. In adjudicating Form I-140, USCIS examines whether the job offer is bona fide. If Form I-140 is approved, USCIS may consider the approved Form I-140 and supporting documents, along with your filed Form I-485, as prima facie evidence that the job offer is bona fide and that you, the applicant, intend to accept the job offer if your Form I-485 is approved. However, depending on the length of time it takes to adjudicate the underlying Form I-140 and your filed Form I-485, USCIS may request that you submit Supplement J to confirm that the job offer in the underlying Form I-140 is bona fide and still available to you prior to final processing of your Form I-485, or that you have ported to a new, permanent job offer under INA section 204(j).
- 2. You have received a Request for Evidence (RFE) or a Notice of Intent to Deny (NOID) from USCIS requesting confirmation that the job offer in the underlying Form I-140 is bona fide and still available to you or, if applicable, that the job offer you have previously ported to under INA section 204(j) is bona fide and still available to you.

If you are filing Supplement J to request job portability to a new, permanent job offer under INA section 204(j), you may file Supplement J only after your Form I-485 was properly filed and has remained pending for 180 days or more since the receipt date, and:

- 1. You have received a new, permanent job offer from a U.S. employer that is in the same or similar occupational classification as the job offered to you in the underlying Form I-140, and now you would like to request that the new job offer is used in connection with your eligibility to adjust status to that of lawful permanent resident;
- 2. You have received an RFE or a NOID from USCIS in connection with your pending Form I-485 asking for confirmation that the job offered to you in the underlying Form I-140 is still available to you, but that job offer is no longer available to you for any reason; or
- 3. You have received a NOID from USCIS regarding your Form I-485 because the petitioner has withdrawn the Form I-140 filed on your behalf, or the petitioner has gone out of business and USCIS has automatically revoked the approval of the underlying Form I-140.

NOTE: USCIS will reject Supplement J if you file it before your Form I-485 has been pending for 180 days or more since the receipt date. You can check your case status online at www.uscis.gov.

What Evidence Must You Submit With Supplement J?

- 1. If you are filing Supplement J to confirm that the job offer represented in the underlying Form I-140 is bona fide, then you only need to complete Parts 1., 2., and 3. of Supplement J and have the Form I-140 petitioner complete Parts 4., 5., and 6.
- 2. If you are filing Supplement J to request job portability under INA section 204(j), you, the applicant, must complete Parts 1., 2., and 3., and the employer offering a new permanent job offer under INA section 204(j) must complete Parts 4., 5., and 6. In addition, you must submit the following documents with Supplement J:
 - A. A copy of Form I-797, Notice of Action, establishing the receipt date and acceptance of your Form I-485 under INA section 245, which shows that your Form I-485 has been pending for 180 days or more. If you do not have such documentation, USCIS will review the electronic record for the Form I-485 receipt number provided in Part 2. of Supplement J and/or any other USCIS records for evidence that you have filed a Form I-485 that has remained pending for 180 days or more;

- B. If available, a copy of Form I-797 showing that you are the principal beneficiary of an approved or still pending Form I-140. If you do not have such documentation, USCIS will review the electronic record for the Form I-140 receipt number provided in Part 2. of Supplement J and/or any other USCIS records for evidence that you are the principal beneficiary of an approved or still pending Form I-140; and
- C. A letter from the employer on the employer's letterhead describing the new job offer referenced in Part 5. of Supplement J (including job requirements and duties in the new position), and how the new job offer as described in Part 5. of Supplement J is in the same or a similar occupational classification as the job offer in the underlying Form I-140.

NOTE: If you do not have the evidence listed in Items A. or B. above, you may provide information on Supplement J or other secondary evidence to demonstrate that you have filed Form I-485 which has been pending for 180 days or more since the receipt date, and that you are the principal beneficiary of an approved or still pending Form I-140. Failure to provide the evidence listed above or secondary evidence may result in delayed processing or denial of your request for job portability.

NOTE: USCIS will review Supplement J in assessing whether the new job offer is in the same or a similar occupational classification as the job in the underlying Form I-140. The applicant and/or employer may submit any other evidence that is relevant in showing the new job is in the same or a similar occupational classification as the job specified in Form I-140.

How Does USCIS Determine What Qualifies as a Same or Similar Occupational Classification?

To determine whether the new job qualifies as the same or similar occupational classification as the job in the approved permanent labor certification (if applicable) and Form I-140, USCIS will review Supplement J along with the employer letter and any additional evidence submitted by the applicant and/or employer.

In determining whether the new job is in the same or a similar occupational classification as the job specified in Form I-140, USCIS will consider factors, including, but not limited to:

- 1. The similarity of the job duties and responsibilities;
- 2. The similarity of the educational and training requirements; and/or
- 3. The similarity of the offered wage or salary.

USCIS may refer to resources published by the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL) and its Bureau of Labor Statistics to assist in determining whether the new offer of employment is in the same or similar occupational classification. These resources include:

- 1. DOL Occupational Outlook Handbook at www.bls.gov/ooh;
- 2. DOL O*NET system at www.onetonline.org; and
- 3. Standard Occupational Classification system used by DOL's Occupational Employment Statistics program at www.bls.gov/soc.

These resources contain detailed information on job titles, duties, educational and training requirements, rates of pay, and, in many cases, information on similar or related occupations. Applicants may also use any of these resources or other relevant evidence to demonstrate that the new job is in the same or similar occupational classification as the job specified in Form I-140.

USCIS may request additional information if Supplement J is not fully completed and/or the evidence submitted with Supplement J does not establish that the new job is in the same or a similar occupational classification as the job specified in Form I-140.
