

New York State/Republic of South Africa State Partnership Program (SPP)

Who We Are: We are the New York National Guard, part of a 376-year tradition of service to state and nation. Our members are everyday citizens -- farmers, teachers and businesspeople in time of peace; soldiers and airmen in time of war or domestic emergency. We wear the title "Citizen-Soldier" with pride. Army and Air Guard members live, work and serve in communities throughout New York State, trained and ready in case of war, terrorist attack, hurricane or flood other emergency both overseas and right in our own hometowns.

What We Do: The State Partnership Program (SPP) is a National Guard initiative that grows relationships, enhances international security and builds capacity across all levels of society. Our mission is to create a link between our partner nation, the Republic of South Africa, and the New York National Guard which promotes the exchange of free ideas and opens doors of cooperation in the political, military, economic and social realms.

- Military to Military activities benefit the armed forces of both partners. Frequent events both in New York and South Africa bring together military professionals to share perspectives on topics of mutual interest. The United States Africa Command sponsors most of these events in coordination with the US Ambassador and staff.
- Military to Civilian partnership initiatives capitalize on the National Guard's role as a key player in US domestic emergency response. We participate in disaster preparedness planning, security support and a host of other interagency programs as requested by our South African partners.
- Civil Security Cooperation engagement helps strengthen democratic institutions, economic opportunities and prosperity. Our National Guard members belong to many civic associations, church groups and other agencies, which naturally leads to the establishment of civilian partnerships based on bonds of openness and trust.

New York and South Africa: The political and military leadership of South Africa and New York State initiated a partnership in August 2003. Since then we have participated in many activities designed to increase security cooperation with our partner nation's armed forces. We are currently seeking opportunities to support South Africa as it accepts growing leadership responsibilities on the continent of Africa in terms of regional stability and economic prosperity.

Benefits: The SPP benefits the people of South Africa and New York State in many ways.

- Enhanced Security Cooperation: Experts in areas such as aircraft maintenance and water survival work together to build capacity and increased interoperability among the partners' military forces.
- More Capable Domestic Emergency Support: Cooperation in such matters as urban search and rescue, hazardous material containment and blast trauma treatment clearly profits both the South African military and New York National Guard forces.
- Growth of Democratic Institutions: By modeling an effective civilian-led military force, our National Guard ambassadors help foster support to democracy abroad while serving as examples of a professional reserve force accountable to the people.
- Greater Social and Economic Links: Many National Guard members are also leaders in their communities and civilian professions. The SPP works to create introductions between American and South African civic, social and business organizations, enabling them to then build their own partnerships.
