

Teaching with Museum Collections

I Want To Be A Cowboy Hat

March 2003/May 2004

□ Overview of the Teaching with Museum Collections initiative

The National Park Service [NPS] Teaching with Museum Collections [TMC] introduces lesson plans for teachers to use NPS museum collections in student-centered activities. NPS museum collections tell the story of America, its peoples, cultures, varied habitats, significant events, and ideas that continue to inspire the world. Collections are located in the very places where people and events shaped the nation's history and environment. TMC emphasizes the links between the 'real things,' the collections, and the sites where those collections were found, collected, or used. NPS collections include cultural objects, natural history specimens and archival documents and photographs. TMC lesson plans contribute student-centered learning while increasing understanding of park themes and resources. TMC has the potential to be incorporated into over 320 NPS sites. Lesson plans will be developed for history, social studies, math, and language and visual arts. They will be linked to national education standards.

Lesson Plan Elements

□ I Want To Be A Cowboy Hat

- Steve Medemar, Jim Konen, Bob Schalk

□ Grade Level: 8

□ Length of Lesson: 45 minutes to 1 day

□ Overview of object-based lesson plan

- Theme/Goal: hat Understand the importance of the different styles, functions and importance of the cowboy hat in the western era.
- Park name and collections: Grant-Kohrs Ranch National Historic Site
- Relevance: Cowboy or Western hats are one of the unique trademarks of the cowboy. Hats of felt are worn in cold weather and straw hats are worn in hot weather. The important parts of a cowboy hat are the brim, crown, and crease. Felt is the material of choice for a cowboy hat for good reason. Felt is matted fur. Because it is matted, and the hairs run in all directions interlocking with each other, felt is stronger and lighter than woven materials. A water resistant fur / felt is desirable to help the hat hold its shape and shed water.
- Teacher Information:
Beaver and muskrat are the best and most expensive furs and felts. Rabbit, or a combination of rabbit with one of the other felts, is most common. Wool felt will not hold its shape. Nothing looks worse than a droopy cowboy hat. Felt hats are usually made of rabbit and beaver hair. The 5X, 10X, and 100X refers to the percentage of rabbit to beaver hair in the felt. Depending on the standards each hatter sets for their own product - a 5X hat might be all rabbit, a 10X hat 50% rabbit and 50% beaver, and a 100X hat 100% beaver.
