

Stuart Keeble Memorial Back Packs

Free for you to borrow

Ask a U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service
Volunteer
or staff

Birding & National Wildlife
Refuges: a perfect fit!

Donations
greatfully accepted

Stuart Keeble Memorial Back Packs

Stuart Keeble Memorial Back Packs At Trustom Pond NWR

Volunteer “check out list”

These are for visitors to use on the Rhode Island Refuges in hope of encouraging a sense of curiosity and appreciation for the wildlife around them.

- Backpacks may be checked out for the day
- The volunteer or staff is responsible to check the items before and after use.
- Here’s what each bag should have:
 - Binoculars with eye piece covers and soft case
 - Laminated field guides for
 - Rhode Island Birds
 - New England Trees and Wildflowers
 - Bugs and Slugs
 - Animal Tracks
 - Pond Life
 - Eastern Seashore Life
- The person checking out the back pack must provide a form of identification with a current home address to be recorded on the check out sheet.
- Will you be around when the person borrowing the backpack returns?
- If anything is missing note in on the card in the front pouch of the backpack.