Chosen By Their Peers! Celebrating Our Six Great 100 Nurses

Honored for nursing excellence

All of us here at Mission Hospitals are understandably proud of the six nurses chosen to be NC Great 100 Nurses. These RNs were chosen by their peers to be honored as some of the best nurses in North Carolina.

Our Great 100 will be honored by their Mission peers at a reception on Thursday, September 27. They will join 94 other honorees at a formal gala at the Joseph F. Koury Convention Center in Greensboro on October 6.

Jennifer Arledge, RN, CCM, began as a senior staff RN in CCU on the St. Joseph Campus in 1991. She has served as Medical Cardiology Case manager since 1998, in CICU since March, 2005. She recently accepted the position of STEMI case manager.

Arledge has served as team leader of the Acute Coronary Syndrome Team since 1999, which was instrumental in developing a program for Cath Lab 24/7 readiness for emergent PCI and implementation of Code STEMI system wide.

She has served as team leader of the Chest Pain Team since its origination this year, working with Asheville Hospitalists, cardiology and emergency medicine to coordinate the flow and care of chest pain patients throughout the system

Family Centered Care Team, and a nurse mentor. She is certified as a case manager through the Case Management Society of America and Case Management Outcomes Association.

“This year marks 30 years that I have been a registered nurse,” says Arledge. “When I ask myself what defines me as a person, I would have to reply that the principles of God’s word, the love of my family, and the ethics of my chosen profession have molded my life. Nursing is about having a ‘servant’s heart,’ ministering to the needs of patients, their families and our co-workers. The flexibility and challenges of my profession have allowed me to experience many different nursing arenas: from critical care to home health, to long term care. But in every practice setting, the passion has remained alive and vibrant. The tremendous advances in technology and medical research have taken the nursing profession to extreme heights.

“For those who are contemplating a career in nursing, I challenge you to seize the opportunity and pursue your goal with enthusiasm and commitment. It is my desire to preserve a strong nursing legacy to pass on to younger nurses, a profession that will afford great rewards.”

Laurie L. Downs, RN, CCRN, BSN, Coli ICU nurse manager, joined Mission in 1997 as a staff RN in Coli ICU, became NUS in 2000 and manager in 2006. She serves on the Magnet Steering Committee, the PMTT Task Force, the TJC (The Joint Commission) Medication Standards Committee, the Red Team TJC Tracer Committee and the Designated Harassment Investigator.

“If you are considering the nursing field as a career choice, please know that this profession is one of the most respected, most vital and one of the most challenging,” says Downs. “Do not enter it lightly or without great consideration and soul searching. Nursing is serious work and requires that we constantly do self examination and that we stay close to the heart of the profession which is true and unwavering compassion and concern for humankind. Whether the nurse works closely with sick human beings, in information technology or in the many varied areas we have to choose from, she or he must work for the good of the community at all times.”

Judy M. Gamwell, RN, BSN, MSN, FNP-C, joined St. Joseph’s as a staff nurse on 10 Stepdown at STJ in 1985 and on 4 South Orthopedics for 12 years. She has worked with the trauma team on call for orthopedics in the ER and currently works as the nurse practitioner for Drs. Michael LeCroy and Ken Graf, orthopedic trauma surgeons. She is responsible for QA for ortho-trauma and is involved in peer review of other mid-level practitioners’ credentialing.

“I hardly remember a time when I wasn’t a nurse,” says Gamwell. “I feel nursing is more than a profession; it is a way of life. I have looked at every part of my life from a nurse’s perspective. Nurses practice giving, caring and compassion, and in many ways are very selfless. Nursing is hard work but has great personal rewards. Nurses make a difference in the life of the patient; they help make it possible for the physician to do the things they do; and they bring comfort to the entire community. Nursing has been a great life for me.”

Did you know that since 1990, 135 Mission nurses have been honored as Great 100 Nurses?

Patricia Ramsey, RN OCN, BSN, is a staff RN in Radiation Therapy. She began at Mission Hospitals in June, 1982, as a staff RN on 7 East Oncology. Since then she has served as NUS, Interim Oncology Unit director.

“Nursing is a giving profession,” says Ramsey. “It is rare that I do not feel good about the job at the end of each work day. I love caring for cancer patients. So often with a cancer diagnosis, patients can experience a sense of loss of control and security. To be able to support and guide the patient through this time is rewarding.”

“Cancer patients exhibit such courage and strength, I feel humbled. It is an honor and privilege to be an oncology nurse.”

Joy R. Steinmuss, RN, joined Mission in 1992 as a staff nurse in the Emergency Department at STJ. She worked for a time on Mission’s Healthline (Ask-A-Nurse), as a staff nurse in the Emergency Department on the Memorial Campus and is currently the Single Point of Discharge Champion in the Memorial Emergency Department. She is involved in the Single Point of Discharge Pilot Project, the Buncombe County Dental Task Force, the Health Partners Community Provider Forum and the Buncombe County Covering Kids Coalition.

“I would advise anyone considering a profession in nursing to be a good listener,” says Steinmuss. “Take time to give the patient your full attention. One of the rewards of nursing is the appreciation the patient shares because of a positive difference you made in their situation. As a nurse you are part of a team and greatness is accomplished by working together.”

Connie Wright, RN, is Nurse Liaison to Clinical Informatics. Connie joined Mission in 1988 as a staff nurse on 6 West which was Neuro, Orthopedics and Eye. She has also served as a staff nurse in AMed and MSICU.

Wright is chair of the CSID, the Committee for Standardizing and Improving Documentation, working to standardize nursing documentation throughout the system and utilizing documentation as a tool to promote evidence-based practice. She also led the CPOE power plan redesign team and is a member of NPC and other ICIS teams.

“Nursing to me is about serving others,” says Wright. “I consider it a great honor to serve patients, families, friends and my community. One of my favorite quotes is by George Bush, Sr., ‘For we are given power not to advance our own purpose, nor to make a great show in the world, nor a name. There is one use of power and it is to serve people.’ Nursing gives me the power to make a difference in someone’s life.”

Other Great 100 Nurses honored from our area include Kristie King and Sabrina Lacerna of CarePartners, M. Jean Sitton and Rebecca Sparks of Pardee Hospital, and Harry Stringfellow from Haywood Regional Medical Center.

Stretcher Safety

As you go through each day caring for patients, you may wonder how to reduce the possibility of an injury for yourself and injury and infection for your patient, especially when using stretchers. Help us improve stretcher safety at Mission by following these procedures:

1. Before placing a patient on a stretcher, ensure that the operating mechanics are in good working order, i.e. brakes, steering, etc. Make sure the mattress is not torn or taped.
2. If any part of the operating mechanics is not functioning, DO NOT USE that stretcher. Instead, find an "Out of Order" tag (consult with your department director if a tag is not available) and take the stretcher out of operation.
3. Complete the "Out of Order" tag to include your department, the date and description of problem: "Brakes are not operating properly." (See example.)
4. Contact your Zone Maintenance person to assist with getting the stretcher to the Facility Maintenance shop for repair. Or, take the stretcher down to the shop yourself.
5. If the mattress is in poor condition, do not use the stretcher. Blood and body fluids can penetrate the torn area on the mattress and represent an infection control issue.
6. To replace a mattress, notify your department director. The department director will need to replace it according to their budget administration. A mattress can be purchased through your department's purchasing agent.
7. Mattresses and stretchers that are no longer useful should be reported to Rick Kilby in Materials Management for disposal. The disposal cost will be charged to the department disposing of the mattress or stretcher.

Day of Caring

Mission CEO Joe Damore (right) presented a check to the United Way in the amount of $521,050.07 and the pledges continue to come in. Of all Mission staffers, 46.2% of them made a monetary pledge this year with an average gift of $157. Mission's participation represents 8.75% of the entire $6 million Buncombe County campaign. The check was presented at Day of Caring, September 6. On that day, more than 400 mission staffers pitched in to do everything from giving blood to raking leaves. As part of that campaign, Mission collected school supplies for more than 280 children, and collected more than 2,600 pounds of food for MANNA Food Bank. The fundraising campaign was led by Tom Knoebber of Performance Improvement. Kathy Hefner of Heart Services led the Day of Caring effort. Thanks to everyone who gave and everyone who participated.

Golfers Hit the Links Against Cancer

Cliffs Valley Golf & Country Club was the setting for the 17th annual Chakales Memorial Golf Tournament. More than 150 golfers and volunteers turned out for a great day of golf raising $100,000 to benefit Mission Hospitals' cancer services. The tournament, named for John Chakales who died of cancer in 1990, was a way for his family and friends to support cancer services and thank the staff who cared for John. Golfers and volunteers learned at this year's award banquet that the tournament was being renamed the Chakales Patton Memorial Golf Tournament. Buddy Patton, a longtime supporter of the Chakales Tournament, died of cancer in 2007. The Patton family car dealership, Harry's Cadillac Pontiac Buick GMC Saab, has served as the tournament's presenting sponsor since 1999, donating over $150,000 to Mission's cancer programs. Both families agree that joining the two friends' names is a fitting tribute. If the Patton name sounds familiar, it should. Marilyn Patton, Buddy's wife, is a familiar face to many. As a Mission volunteer, Marilyn has donated more than 21,000 hours of service. Marilyn also serves as a Mission Healthcare Foundation trustee. Pictured left to right are Mary Chakales, Chris Young, Ramona Whichello, Joe Damore, Bruce Thorsen, Karen Grogan and Harry Patton.

Record Number of Donors Make Mission's Blood Drives Successful

Next blood drive on Friday, September 28

When the call for blood goes out, Mission staffers respond! The August 1 American Red Cross blood drive held on the St. Joseph Campus turned out to be the largest blood drive ever held at Mission Hospitals. We collected a total of 125 productive units! It's also amazing to note that 25 of these individuals were first-time donors! Due to the extremely low inventory of blood which the region has experienced throughout the summer months, these donations are greatly appreciated.

Mission Hospitals' next blood drive will be held on Friday, September 28, from 7 a.m. until 4 p.m. in the Kate B. Reynolds Classrooms in the Latta Parking Lot.

Those with appointments will be taken before walk-ins. We encourage staff to make an appointment to donate by emailing Aubrey Gilbert (Aubrey.Gilbert@msj.org) to advise her of a time that is convenient for your schedule.

Thank you, Mission staffers, for giving back to our community through your gift of life-giving blood! We thank Mission staff for their ongoing help in giving back to our community through the Gift of Life and we hope you will again donate blood at our drive on September 28th.

Earning the blood drive "badge of honor"

Our thanks to the following individuals who are making a difference in the world, by bringing hope to other people, their families and loved ones through their donation of blood on August 1! We honor you and thank you!

Mission Prepares for Emergencies

September is Preparedness Month

September marks the fourth annual National Preparedness Month. Its goal is to encourage Americans to prepare for emergencies in their homes, businesses and communities.

At Mission, we are doing our part by first, making you aware of the observance so that you can begin researching and discussing emergency plans with your family, and also to let you know what kinds of things Mission Hospitals does to prepare in the case of an emergency.

At Mission we use the Hospital Incident Command System (HICS) to provide a unified structure for managing mass casualty events or situations that cause disruption in services, such as a long-term water outage. Hidden within the cabinetry of one of our board rooms is the technology we need to turn a simple conference room table into “command central.” Computers, fax machines, extra phones, two-way radios, satellite phones and resource manuals remain updated and ready for the team to move into place.

Once the Code is called, specially trained Mission staffers report to the incident command center to coordinate staff, supplies and communication. Most recently we used this system for the T.C. Roberson incident when students were exposed to an unknown agent.

Basic Incident Command structure calls for an Incident Commander, a Public Information Officer, Safety Officer, Liaison Officer and a Medical/Technical Specialist. Depending upon the incident, we could also name an Operations Section Chief, a Planning Section Chief, a Logistics Section Chief and a Finance/Administration Section Chief. All report to the Incident Commander.

The Command Structure stays in place until the incident is resolved and an “all clear” is called.

According to Mike Barnett, Mission’s Disaster Planning Committee chair, Mission is required by the Joint Commission to hold emergency drills of this type at least twice a year. One of these drills must involve the community, and one has to involve an influx of patients. We are also required to do “all hazard” planning to analyze the most likely scenarios for an incident in our region, for example, a massive snowfall, an outbreak of SARS, pandemic flu or a chemical spill, and practice those scenarios.

Of course there are other ways Mission prepares for emergencies.

COMMUNITY COORDINATION

Remember in 2004, when a series of hurricanes blew through the region causing flooding in many areas (including Biltmore Village) and the interruption of Asheville’s water supply? To continue operations, Mission relied on a local milk distributor for fresh water, and regional fire departments to pump water through our cooling system to keep it up and running.

Mission also maintains agreements with a local community college as an alternate care site and has staff members who regularly attend community and regional emergency preparedness meetings and participate in drills with public health, medicines, number of masks, decontamination equipment, etc. The NC State Office of EMS can monitor this data to determine where in the state that care and resources are available.

Mission participates in NC Detect, which is a procedure to monitor all emergency patients for biological exposure. Through a series of questions during triage, we are able to determine if a patient has traveled to an infected area in the recent past, which could at some point aid us in reducing exposure in our area to pandemic flu.

EMERGENCY EQUIPMENT

Over the last few years, we have been subject to more standards from The Joint Commission, OSHA and the state and federal government than ever before. Through the Mission Healthcare Foundation, Mission has received more than $500,000 in HRSA (Health Resource and Service Administration) preparedness grants with specific guidelines to help us purchase emergency preparedness equipment and training.

With some of these funds, we purchased a portable decontamination unit with four shower units.

How about you? What steps have you taken to get ready in case of an emergency? If you have small children, pets, or elderly parents to prepare for, you will want to think about their needs. Do you have plans for a long-term power outage? What if you can’t get to the grocery store or the pharmacy? Preparation depends on your level of need. You can find lots of helpful tips to help your family prepare to weather the storm or whatever else comes along. Visit www.redcross.org or www.ready.gov, or simply search “preparing for emergencies” in Google for more information.

emergency management, law enforcement, EMS and other hospitals. We participate in the SMARTT System (State Medical Asset Resource Tracking Tool), a database that receives input daily and during an emergency event from most NC hospitals. Mission’s Bed Coordinators update this system daily on how many different kinds of beds we have available,

We participate as a host hospital for the Western NC State Medical Assistance Team (SMAT) mobile hospital for our region. Combined with mobile hospitals from other regions of North Carolina, we can deliver a hospital and supplies to the wounded. We also participate in the CDC Chempack project, with stores of nerve gas agent antidote that is pre-staged at Mission by the Centers for Disease Control for use by Mission, the community and other local hospitals.

“This year, we have installed the radio equipment we need to be able to operate on the new NC Medical Communications Network,” says Barnett. The NCMCN connects Mission to EMS, SMAT, other hospitals, emergency management, public health and the state, and local Emergency Operations Centers during a disaster.

“Through the help of this grant money and with the hard work of Facility Planning, we’ve also been able to purchase and install isolation equipment we need to convert rooms on 7 East Memorial Campus to negative air pressure floors during a respiratory emergency, such as SARS,” adds Barnett. This same equipment is now being installed in the 7 West renovation.

EXPERTS ON SITE

Through preparedness grants, Mission has been able to have a state health epidemiologist, Rachel Long, and regional emergency response and recovery coordinators, Debbie Gilbert and Rieley Bennett, on site.

All of Mission’s Emergency Department staff and Regional Transport staff have been trained in decontamination and mass casualty procedures, according to Barnett. He is now training key staff members on HICS, the Hospital Incident Command System.

SUPPLIES ON HAND

Because the type of disaster can’t be predicted, Mission maintains a supply of N-95s, extra respiratory-related supplies, bottled water, waterless bath kits and isolation gowns.

“Depending on the season, we may change the levels of what we keep on hand,” says Billy Myers, Director of Materials Management. “During flu season, we keep more isolation supplies in stock.”

Giving Hope, Sharing Life

Organ donation changes lives

How do you give hope when you feel so much has been lost? Families that lose a loved one sometimes face just this question. When a spouse, a sibling or a child suddenly dies from a heart attack or accident, their loved ones may be faced with unexpected decisions about organ donation.

In the closing days of this summer, friends, staff and physicians grieved alongside five families of patients treated at Mission that have experienced just this kind of loss. In a week’s time, five families confronted the hardest of news. Their loved ones had died. All five families said “yes” to organ donation. Through their grief, they could hear the wishes of their family member. “He always wanted to help others...this just makes sense,” they said. “She put a heart on her license...we remember her saying that she wanted to be a donor,” a family recalled. And so, they gave hope...they shared life. Here’s just some of what happened as a result of the decisions of these families:

- A 55-year-old gentleman in North Carolina received a liver transplant. He is married with two adult children. He is doing very well after his transplant and can’t wait to get back to work.

- A 68-year-old married father of two children received a kidney transplant. He is a retired truck driver.

- One donor’s heart was transplanted into a 59-year-old mother of two. She is a bus driver who loves traveling, gardening and cooking. The donor’s lungs were transplanted into a 63-year-old gentleman in Pennsylvania.

- A 54-year-old married mother of two received a liver transplant. She is a homemaker who is caring for her developmentally challenged son.

- Lungs from one donor were transplanted into a gentleman from Ohio. Disabled due to his disease, he is looking forward to more time with his family and the possibility of returning to an active life.

- One kidney recipient is a 72-year-old married mother of three. She is a retired school teacher who loves sketching and reading.

In all, 15 persons received 17 life-saving, transplanted organs. In addition, 7 people improved their sight through corneal transplants. Tissue transplants completed in the future will help more than 100 people.

Decisions about organ donation are deeply personal. We all need to learn about donation and think through our own decisions. We also need to have some awareness of the good that can come through these gifts of life. What’s your decision about organ donation? Who have you told? For more information, go to <http://www.lifesharecarolinas.org/>.

Like to get involved? Get more information at the Mission’s Benefits Fair on October 1. Plan to provide your faith community with information during Donor Sabbath in November. Just call 213-1080 and we’ll get your request for information to LifeShare of the Carolinas or you can e-mail Melissa Parker at Melissa.Parker@msj.org.

Ask Dr. Sig

Dear Dr. Sig,

My husband recently had a spinal fusion under the direct care of Dr. Rhoton. As nervous as he was, I was not because of Dr. Rhoton's reputation and the nursing unit he would be going to post-operatively, the Spine Unit. I chatted with Beth Carlson (the CNS for Neurosciences and NTICU) weeks before the surgery; asking her questions and learning what to expect.

As I sat in the room with my husband, we both experienced a professional and well educated staff. Jeannine greeted us post-op and started our stay. Jeannette came in that night. We had Kristy for the next two days with a great CNA named Jennifer. Vickie was our night nurse for two nights (I was so comfortable with her that I went home to sleep that third night). Darla discharged us. I could write a book about each one of these nurses/CNAs; instead I will compliment each of them on their skill, patience (with me and Mike), and their knowledge about this surgery and how to care for us. Notice I said, "us." Thank you for your concern!!

No surgery is pleasant, but the experience on the Spine Unit here at Mission Hospitals was! I am grateful that it is over. Mike's pain is under control and he is walking in the driveway every evening. He has no pain or numbness in his right leg as he did before surgery. Thank you all for this success story, and thank you for your allowing me to work at such a great place with such great nurses!

Dear Dr. Sig,

As a Junior Volunteer leader, I have worked with Tammy Israel and Renee Eggleston of the Volunteer Services department for the last two years. Tammy and Renee always go out of their way to help everyone they meet — volunteers, staff members, patients and visitors. These two staff members are very special and their caring and positive attitudes have benefited thousands of different people. Although August 10th was my last day as a volunteer (500 hours service), Tammy and Renee will always be dear to my heart. They have done so much for me. Tammy and Renee are leading the best "bus to greatness" in the entire Volunteer Services Department.

— Adam King

Dear Dr. Sig,

I think people who use voicemail need to listen to their own greeting. Some are so long it's ridiculous. Some also tell the caller "You've reached my voice mailbox." That more or less goes without saying, so why put that in your message?

I think messages need to be short, polite and to the point. No need to repeat your phone number when we've just dialed it. No need to go on and on about your name, department and that you are with Mission Hospitals. We know that already. I get so weary listening to greetings, I usually hang up without leaving a message.

— Enough Already

I agree that both our greetings and voice messages should be short and to the point, but I don't get that upset about it. Did you know you can hit the # key during the greeting and go straight to the beep tone — skipping the message? Then state your business (briefly), leave your phone number (slowly) and hang up.

Dear Dr. Sig,

I think that the hospital needs this outlet (Dr Sig) for issues that need to be addressed, such as visitors smoking, the color of the new floors or how the pictures on the walls are nice and make conversation pieces. But I think that the people that send in letters about co-workers or situations that are happening in their department need to go to their supervisor or their department director and speak with them about their problems instead of airing out the dirty laundry for all of the hospital employees that read Dr. Sig.

We are supposed to be professional, educated employees and we need to start acting that way.

Let's appreciate our jobs and look to ways that we can better our job and not pull everyone around us down. We are here to help patients and make their visits as pleasant as we can. Thanks for listening.

I agree with you on several points. First, that we are here for the patients. But I also understand that we need to have a pleasant working environment in order to accomplish that goal.

I also agree that staff members should spend more time talking to their supervisors and their directors about their problems instead of writing anonymous letters to Dr. Sig. It is unfortunate, but a fact, that some staffers feel uncomfortable taking problems to their supervisors for whatever reason. That's one of the reasons I'm here.

Third, I agree that we should be building each other up more and sniping less. No workplace is perfect. If a co-worker does something to upset you, it's probably true that you do something that upsets someone else.

Dr. Sig is actually a conduit for connecting problems with their solutions. When I receive a letter, I immediately route it to the person who is most likely to have the solution, confidentially of course, and try to obtain an answer. I hope Mission's leadership can view Dr. Sig as a tool that they can use to get correct, useful information out to our staff members. It's a place to clear up rumors, and a way to let our leaders know that something is not working. It's also a place for staff members to talk about what they like about our health system

With MissionOnDemand, Mission's new Intranet, you'll see Dr. Sig used in a different way. We'll be able to take polls to see how staffers feel about a particular issue, and we'll be able to print forums that will be dedicated to a single issue, such as parking or health insurance. I hope you'll check it out.

Dear Dr. Sig,

Is there any way we can get some of the green OR scrub bottoms in a longer length? Some of us who are tall are forced to get an extremely large size or to wear "highwaters" all day.

I asked Laundry Manager Bill Holt about your highwater dilemma. It seems like a reasonable request, but it's not as easy as it looks.

The folks in Laundry and Linen try their best to keep the right numbers of 22 different scrub items in about 16 different user locations. This magic act is their single most frustrating responsibility and to add extra long in each size would certainly make a difficult situation more difficult. Besides, institutional scrubs do not come in in extra long so they would have to be specially ordered from specialty suppliers where cost would be prohibitive. So, while everyone deserves scrubs that fit nicely, some of us end up trying to do the best we can with what there is.

Dear Dr. Sig,

On nights we frequently have to wait 3 to 4 hours for meds to be entered on patients. Some meds are not needed but a post op patient waiting for pain meds doesn't understand that the Pharmacy is three hours behind. Yes, we can override some meds but not all of them.

— Left Waiting

Dear LW,

Ellen Williams, Pharmacy Director, responds: "I'm sorry you've had difficulty with the process in the evenings. This is a very complex issue, and more than we can resolve in a Dr. Sig response. Please contact me directly so that we can discuss your specific issues."

A Dr. Sig MERIT Extra Mile Award to Teiara Mills of the Bean Shop.

"Teiara Mills, who works at the Bean Shop in the mornings, is always a joy to encounter (even at 6 in the morning)! She always greets you with a smile, calls you by name and in most cases she already knows what you want; plus she never lets you leave without telling you to have a good day! I want you to let her know that her actions have not gone unnoticed and to encounter her smiling face and warm heart in the mornings makes my day start off on the right foot. Thank you, Teiara!

PTO Donation Policy Change

Beginning October 1, PTO can only be donated to employees who are on an approved leave of absence for a medical emergency and have exhausted all of their own PTO bank.

Employees approved to receive donations prior to October 1 will be allowed to continue for the approved period.

The change in policy is the result of a recent private ruling of the Internal Revenue Service which clarifies how IRS rules apply to employee donations of leave for benefit of other employees. The private letter ruling cited Revenue Ruling 90-29, 1990-1 C.B.11, providing that an employee's leave will be considered taxable wages to the employee donating the hours unless the hours are donated to an employee who qualifies under the medical emergency definition. Mission is revising our current program to ensure compliance with the IRS rules.

There are two forms necessary: The PTO Donation Program Request Form for Medical Emergencies for the recipient's request and PTO Donation Form for Medical Emergencies for the donor. These can be found on the Intranet and Internet under HR Forms. They can be found in our new MissionOnDemand under HR Forms. The revised HR Policy will be posted once it is completed.
