Renew in June

Every year, the Agricultural Review newspaper is required by law to update its mailing list. To make this process as easy as possible, we ask readers to cut out the mailing block on the front of the June paper that contains their address and mail it back.

Please do not mark out the bar code above the subscriber's name. That bar code contains subscription information and is used to update the account.

Subscribers can also go online at www.AgReview.org to update their account. Subscribers will need their subscription number to complete the process. The subscription number is the one printed above the name and mailing address on the June newspaper. You CANNOT update your account with your name only.

We also ask that subscribers not call in to renew their accounts.

Accounts that we do not receive a renewal card or online update for will become inactive in September.

Please watch for the renewal card in the June newspaper. It will be in the space below this notice.

Got to Be NC Festival runs May 21-23 in Raleigh

The Got to Be NC Festival returns for its third year with more activities, food and family friendly fun for visitors. The three-day event will be held May 21-23 at the State Fairgrounds in Raleigh.

Returning to the entertainment lineup is antique tractors and farm equipment, a daily tractor parade around the fairgrounds, a draft horse pull, a tractor pull, lawn mower races, a Harley Davidson drive in, classic cars, a bluegrass music competition, a fiber fair, rides and games.

"This festival showcases some of North Carolina's rich agricultural heritage through displays of farm equipment, fiber arts, locally produced specialty products and working farm machinery," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "We are looking forward to drawing more exhibitors, more competitors and even more visitors this year as this event continues to grow."

On the food front, festival goers will find plenty of good eats – seafood, barbecue pork, deep-fried treats and North Carolina specialty products.

On May 21, the Amran Shriners will hold a fish fry from 11:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., with all proceeds benefitting the Shriners Hospital. On May 22, Masonic lodges from across the state will compete in the N.C. Pig Jig – a pig cooking contest.

Once judging is complete, the pork will be chopped and sold as sandwiches and plates. The proceeds will benefit the Masonic Home for Children and the Central Children's Home.

In the Expo Center, North Carolina food and wine products will be featured in the N.C. Food Expo. Visitors can sample and purchase some of the state's finest and tastiest products.

"No festival would be complete without music and we have a variety on tap this year," said Jim Knight, festival manager. "The Bluegrass competition returns to the flower show area on May 22, while beach, country and alternative music will be featured on the Geico Triangle Stage near the Expo Center."

The Fiber Fair will see a major expansion in 2010 with more demonstrations and products for sale.

"Also be sure to check out the NASCAR Street Tour," Knight said. "Several tricked out Ford vehicles with big screen TVs with satellite reception will be on display near Dorton Arena."

Following is a schedule of NCDA&CS offers grants for specialty crops

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services is offering grants to fund new projects to enhance the competitiveness of specialty crops in the marketplace. The program, managed by NCDA&CS, is funded through a U.S. Department of Agriculture grant established by the 2008 farm bill.

"We are happy to again be able to offer this program, making nearly $1.2 million available this year through a competitive grant process," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "These grants will benefit the specialty crop industry, and will help small farmers and local food efforts."

NCDA&CS will accept grant applications ranging from $10,000 to $100,000 from non-profit organizations and corporations, commodity associations, state and local government agencies, colleges and universities. Applicants must reside or their business or educational affiliation must be in North Carolina. Applications must be submitted by 5 p.m. on June 4.

Projects involving the following specialty crops are eligible: Fruits, vegetables, tree nuts, dried fruits, horticulture, Christmas trees, turfgrass/sod, and nursery and greenhouse crops. Funding opportunities are (See Specialty crops, pg. 2)

Tobacco Trust awards $6.1 million in grants

The N.C. Tobacco Trust Fund Commission announced $6.1 million in new grants for a record 36 projects funded.

The grants place a priority on projects that address ways to stimulate the agricultural economy in local communities, decrease unemployment and strengthen sales of local foods. Projects that support North Carolina's agricultural economy, especially in areas affected by changes in the tobacco industry, were targeted.

"The rural economy in North Carolina has continued to face challenges in a post-tobacco buyout era," said Billy Carter, the Commission's chairman. "With this new grant cycle, the Tobacco Trust Fund Commission placed a high priority on projects that will stimulate sales of North Carolina products, assist dislocated workers with workforce development and fund other innovative projects."

Since 2002, the NCTTF has awarded grants to public and nonprofit agencies that meet the goals of strengthening the rural and tobacco-dependent economies of North Carolina.

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services received more than $1 million in grants for research, marketing and international trade initiatives.

From the tractor by Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler

Each year, our Statistics Division compiles information on what farmers intend to plant for the coming year. This year's results indicate a significant boost in cotton production, a double-digit increase in peanut production and a small increase in sweet potato plantings. On the down side, wheat, soybeans and tobacco production are expected to drop this year.

Based on the information gathered, growers plan to plant 540,000 acres of cotton, up 44 percent over 2009. This marks a big comeback after a three-year decline in production.

Peanut acreage is expected to be up 19 percent above last year with 80,000 acres planted.

North Carolina leads the country in sweet potato production, and I don't think that will change based on planting intentions. Sweet potato production is expected to jump 6 percent above 2009 numbers, making it the largest production year since 1950. A total of 50,000 acres of sweet potatoes are expected to be grown this year.

Wheat production seems to be taking the biggest hit in 2010, down 21 percent from 2009 at 550,000 acres. Soybean plantings are projected to drop by 8 percent, while tobacco is expected to be down 6 percent based on the tobacco companies' purchasing contracts. Soybean acreage is projected to be 1.65 million acres, with tobacco acreage at 167,000.

Corn production is expected to remain the same as last year at 870,000 acres.

We regularly experience this up and down in commodity production and prices, as farmers look to boost profitability. For example, many farmers moved away from cotton production as corn and soybean prices rose in the past few years. Crop rotation also figures into the decision making. Rotating crops helps the soil, and coupled with better cotton prices, many farmers appear to be rotating from soybeans to cotton production this year.

Commissioner Troxler

Whatever crop farmers are planting, I am hopeful for a great growing season, with ample rain to carry farmers through.

Tobacco grants

The 2010 grants include projects such as jump-starting local foods coalitions across the state, job skills training at 24 community colleges, funding for new farmers markets, a new campaign to assist nursery and landscape companies and expanded research on crops such as raspberries, organic canola and hard winter wheat.

These projects will complement an already diverse grant portfolio that includes such statewide initiatives as energy efficiency programs, a major drought response project that more than 1,000 farmers have benefitted from and cost-share assistance to help small farmers diversify their operations.

The General Assembly created the Tobacco Trust Fund Commission in 2000 to help soften the financial impact to farmers and tobacco-related businesses caused by the sharp decline of tobacco in the agricultural economy. Funding comes from monies paid by cigarette manufacturers under the 1998 Master Settlement Agreement.

For more about the 2010 grants, go to www.tobaccotrustfund.org.
