James E. Holshouser Jr. Distinguished Professorship

To honor the Governor's long public service career, it is a pleasure to request your participation in creating a new James E. Holshouser Jr. Distinguished Professorship at the School of Government.

This professorship celebrates the Governor's lifelong emphasis on effective local government and the economic improvement of North Carolina's communities. The professorship will reside within the School of Government at UNC-Chapel Hill, whose mission for 80 years has been to provide education, advising, and research to help North Carolina's state and local government officials better perform the duties of public office. The Holshouser endowment will support a faculty member working in one or more areas including, but not limited to, local government law, public administration, community and economic development, and public leadership.

The faculty member holding this distinction will be identified in all official publications, programs, classes, and correspondence as the James E. Holshouser Jr. Distinguished Professor, for the duration of his or her tenure at the School.

Your leadership gift is critical to the success of this special honor for the Governor, and we thank you for your participation.
