SECTION I: PREPARATION OF THE ANNUAL SECURITY REPORT

Emory University's Annual Security Report, Annual Fire Safety Report and Statement of Campus Security Policy (the "Report") is prepared, published and distributed in accordance with the requirements of the Campus Security Act of 1990, the Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act of 1998, the Higher Education Amendments of 1998, the Higher Education Opportunity Act of 2008, the 2013 reauthorization of the Violence Against Women Act, including the Campus Sexual Violence Elimination Act (Campus SaVE), which amends the Clery Act,¹ and all implementing regulations issued by the U.S. Department of Education (34 C.F.R. §668.46; hereinafter collectively the "Regulations").

Each year, personnel from the Emory Police Department (EPD), the Office of the General Counsel and the University Communications Office collect and compile, for all campuses, the statistics, information and other data required for this Report, in accordance with applicable statutory and regulatory requirements.

EPD maintains a daily crime log and an incident report database on an annual basis. EPD records, by date, crimes reported to EPD that occurred on "campus," in a "noncampus building or property," "on public property," or within EPD's patrol jurisdiction. It is important to note that under the Regulations, each of the foregoing italicized terms has a special definition that requires the reporting of statistics for certain crimes that occur outside the specific geographic boundaries of the campus property owned by Emory University.

As required by law, EPD determines which crime classification to assign to a reported incident by using the definitions of crimes found in the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Uniform Crime Reporting Guidelines (UCR). Emory also maintains a working list of Clery Crime definitions on its website. EPD also makes the determination as to whether or not a particular crime can be classified as a "hate crime" by using the UCR's definition of that term. For Clery statistical purposes, EPD uses the following categories of bias to determine if a crime is a hate crime: race bias, gender bias, religion bias, sexual orientation bias, gender identity bias, ethnicity bias, national origin bias, and disability bias.

EPD compiles its crime statistics based not only on information that it receives directly, but also from crimes reported to the following sources on or near all Emory campuses: (a) other "campus security authorities" (as that term is defined in the Regulations), including campus security officers, Residence Life personnel, and Campus Life personnel; and (b) crimes reported to local police authorities. Reports of crimes made to persons or agencies outside EPD are solicited by written request from EPD. A formal police report of a crime is not necessary for the crime report to be included in the statistical compilation. Crime victims' names are not disclosed in the statistical report.

¹ The Campus SaVE Act amends the Clery Act, which addresses campus sexual assault policies within the Higher Education Act of 1965. Although it became law on March 7, 2013 as part of the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) Reauthorization, implementing regulations have not been finalized. Accordingly, the Department of Education has issued guidance stating that until final regulations are published and effective, institutions must make a good faith effort to comply with statutory provisions as written.

ANNUAL SECURITY AND ANNUAL FIRE SAFETY REPORT: 2014

The statistics and any additions or changes to policy or informational statements are compiled into a draft Report by the EPD and the Office of General Counsel. The Chief of Police serves as the Campus Security Survey Administrator and submits the annual Report to the Department of Education. The Vice President of Communications Office notifies all students and employees by email of the posting of the Report on the Internet.

SECTION III: SECURITY POLICIES AND INFORMATION APPLICABLE TO ALL CAMPUSES

A. POLICY ENCOURAGING THE REPORTING OF CRIMES

Emory strongly and actively encourages all of its students, faculty and employees to report crimes and any suspicious activity to the EPD, campus security personnel or local police authorities and to cooperate with those authorities in their law enforcement activities. These procedures are detailed in the Emory University-wide Policy 4.68, Theft and Other Criminal Incidents, and the University-wide Sexual Misconduct Policy, Policy 8.2.

B. CONFIDENTIAL REPORTING OF CRIMES

The confidential reporting of crimes is optional if the report is made through a confidential EPD phone line, (404) 727-8477, or through the Emory Trust Line (888) 550-8850. A student may request confidentiality in reporting a crime to a Residence Life or Campus Life staff member, or to a staff member of the Office of the Dean of any School, Department or Division; however, in cases of reports of sexual violence or sexual misconduct covered by Title IX and Department of Education guidance, confidentiality cannot be guaranteed in all instances. The student will be encouraged to make an official police report, but if the student elects not to or is unable to make such a report, the EPD collects details sufficient to enable appropriate classification of the incident so that it can be included in the statistical section of this Report.

Pursuant to the University's Sexual Misconduct Policy, sexual misconduct is broadly defined to include sexual violence, sexual assault, domestic violence, intimate partner/dating violence, stalking, gender-based bullying and other offenses involving unwelcome behavior of a sexual nature. Because sexual misconduct may constitute both a violation of University policy and criminal activity, persons having knowledge of a possible violation are strongly encouraged to report alleged sexual misconduct promptly to the EPD, or to local law enforcement authorities for incidents that occur off campus. Every University employee who is informed about an allegation of sexual misconduct is required to notify the University Title IX Coordinator either directly or through the employee's reporting structure, the Title IX Coordinator for Students, or a Deputy Title IX Coordinator, who are all identified in Policy 8.2. The Title IX Coordinator(s), in turn, provides the reported information to EPD.

Except as otherwise specifically disclosed or unless consent is obtained in a particular instance, if a report of a crime is made to a "pastoral counselor" or "professional counselor" as those terms are defined in the Regulations, and a person has requested confidentiality, no report will be made of the crime to EPD. However, a counselor can provide a de-identified (anonymous) report containing information about an incident to the EPD for statistical reporting purposes, provided the counselor so informs the person making the report in advance of receiving information. Pastoral and professional counselors may, in their professional discretion, encourage a person to file an official police report and may obtain consent from the person to disclose the incident to EPD, for investigation or for inclusion in the statistical section of this Report. Non-licensed sexual assault response advocates at Emory also can receive information confidentially, and may periodically provide limited statistical information to the University's Title IX officials without identifying the individuals involved. More information about confidentiality and reporting of sexual violence or sexual misconduct is available on the Sexual Misconduct Resources webpage.

C. ALCOHOL POLICY

At all of its campuses, Emory University abides by and enforces all state and local laws, regulations and ordinances regarding the possession, consumption, sale or distribution of alcoholic beverages.

The legal drinking age in Georgia is 21 years of age. Any student or employee under the age of 21 who purchases or knowingly possesses an alcoholic beverage is in violation of state law and University policy. Similarly any person who furnishes an alcoholic beverage to a person under 21 years of age is also in violation.

Alcohol is not permitted in the common areas of residence halls at the University's main campus, and Campus Life prescribes a number of additional rules, regulations and requirements by which students and University organizations must abide with regard to the serving of alcohol at various events.

At the University's Oxford College campus students are prohibited from on-campus possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages, due to the fact that the vast majority of Oxford College students are underage.

All students, faculty and employees of the University at all of its campuses must abide by the requirements of the "Emory University Alcohol and Drug Abuse Policy for Faculty, Staff and Students," summarized below in this Report.

D. ILLEGAL DRUG POLICY

The unlawful manufacturing, distributing, dispensing, possessing or using of a controlled substance is strictly prohibited on all Emory University property. Any students, staff, faculty or other members of the Emory University community who manufacture, distribute, dispense, possess or use controlled substances may be referred for prosecution according to state and or federal law, as well as referral for University disciplinary sanctions. As a recipient of federal grants and contracts, Emory University adheres to the provisions of the Drug-Free Workplace Act of 1988 (as amended) and any applicable regulations issued pursuant thereto.

E. SEXUAL MISCONDUCT POLICY

Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972 protects people from sex discrimination in educational programs and activities at institutions that receive federal financial assistance. Emory University has two primary policies that prohibit conduct constituting sexual discrimination and sexual misconduct, Policy 1.3 - Equal Opportunity and Discriminatory Harassment Policy, and Policy 8.2 - Sexual Misconduct Policy. Sexual Misconduct is broadly defined to include sexual harassment, sexual violence, intimate partner violence, domestic violence, dating violence, stalking, and other behavior of an unwelcomed sexual nature. Emory fosters a safe learning and working environment that supports academic and professional growth of students, staff, and faculty. Emory does not tolerate sexual misconduct in its community and will take prompt action when misconduct occurs. The university takes seriously every allegation or report of sexual misconduct received.

Emory University's response is intended to ensure that all parties involved receive appropriate support and fair treatment, and that allegations of sexual misconduct are handled in a prompt, thorough, and equitable manner. University Policy 8.2 addresses processes for allegations of student-on-student sexual misconduct, and Policy 1.3 sets forth processes relating to Emory employees alleged to have engaged in harassing behavior. Each policy sets forth in detail how to report an allegation; the investigative procedures followed; applicable adjudication and appeal standards and processes, the range of sanctions that may be imposed upon a finding of a violation, and the rights and participation of the complainant/respondent (student context) or aggrieved person/alleged harasser (employment context). In addition, Policy 8.2 makes clear that the standard of proof that applies to sexual misconduct adjudication proceedings is "preponderance of evidence," describes interim measures that may be imposed by a university Title IX official, and provides information about accommodations and resources that are available for those impacted by sexual misconduct.

All faculty, staff, students, and individuals who are aware of crimes involving sexual assault or misconduct are strongly encouraged to make immediate and accurate reports of crimes to the Emory Police Department or to the appropriate local law enforcement agency, if an incident occurs at an off-campus location. If a victim is unwilling or unable to make a report on the victim's own behalf, individuals aware of a crime should contact the police to make a report.

In addition, Emory employees are required to report information they receive about sexual misconduct to (1) the University Title IX Coordinator, or the Title IX Coordinator for Students, if the matter involves a student; (2) to the Equal Opportunity Program, if an employee (and no student) is involved.

Victims' Bill of Rights

Emory complies with the Campus Sexual Assault Victims' Bill of Rights enacted by the U.S. Congress as a part of the Higher Education Amendments of 1992. This law requires that all colleges and universities participating in federal student aid programs afford sexual assault victims certain basic rights. It also requires the school to notify victims of their option to report their assault to the proper law enforcement authorities.

In cases of Sexual Assault on Campus:

- Accuser and accused must have the same opportunity to have others present for support and consultation.
- Both parties shall be informed of the outcome of any disciplinary proceeding.
- Survivors shall be informed of their options to notify law enforcement.
- Survivors shall be notified of counseling services.
- Survivors shall be notified of options for changing academic and living situations.

Emory complies with the Campus Sexual Assault Victims' Bill of Rights. Consult Policy 8.2 for information governing the conduct process for allegations of sexual misconduct and for references to support services that are available to individuals impacted by sexual misconduct or violence.

In addition to the information provided in Policy 8.2, the following is a reference list of offices (located on and off-campus) that a student may contact to report a possible sexual assault and to seek mental health and counseling services:

2) Post-Report Procedures

Once an alleged assault has been reported to the University, the appropriate campus police and/or local police authorities may be notified depending on the circumstances, including whether the victim wishes to pursue a police report and investigation. If a student or employee does not initially report the alleged assault to a law enforcement agency, the student or employee should be made aware that the option to report the occurrence to either the appropriate campus police or local police authorities exists, and upon request by the student or employee, the University, through EPD, will provide assistance in doing so. The student or employee should also be made aware that he or she may decline to notify such authorities and, where applicable, also be made aware of the rights of victims and the University's responsibilities regarding orders of protection, no contact orders, restraining orders, or similar lawful orders issued by a criminal, civil, or tribal court.

The victim of an alleged sexual assault should take care to preserve any evidence that may be necessary to prove the occurrence of the alleged criminal assault. In this respect, after an alleged assault has occurred, victims are advised to consult law enforcement authorities before showering/bathing or changing or laundering any clothing that was worn during the assault. More sexual assault resource information, including considerations for preserving physical evidence, is available in the Respect Program Student Resource Guide.

In order to accommodate the victim of a sex offense, the University will provide written notification to the victim about options for, and available assistance in, changing academic, living, transportation, and working situations, if so requested by the victim and if such assistance and accommodations are reasonably available, regardless of whether the victim chooses to report the crime to campus police or local law enforcement. The University may also impose any interim restrictions on students pending the University's response to an allegation or resolution of sexual misconduct allegations, as described in Policy 8.2. Interim actions may include no-contact or stay away orders between the complainant and the respondent, interim suspension, temporary exclusion from areas of campus, removal from or relocation to another residence hall, changes in academic/course schedules, or limiting participation in certain events, gatherings, or activities, among other measures. Interim measures are not to be construed to suggest that any decision has been made about the merits of the cases.

Accommodations may be provided to individuals involved, regardless of whether formal conduct proceedings are instituted, including academic/course schedule changes; housing reassignments; safety escorts; safety/crime prevention briefings, and other protective or safety measures. Interim restrictions and accommodations are considered on a case-by-case basis by the Title IX Coordinator for Students.

The University may proceed with disciplinary and/or remedial actions in accordance with Policy 8.2. The complainant and respondent are entitled to the same opportunities to be accompanied in a disciplinary hearing by an advisor or attorney of their choice; however, advisors or attorneys supporting students in disciplinary proceedings are not permitted to advocate on behalf of or represent a student during conduct proceedings. Disciplinary proceedings for allegations of sexual misconduct are to be conducted by officials who receive annual training on the issues related to domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking, and how to conduct investigations and hearing processes that protect the safety of the parties involved and promotes respect, fairness and accountability. The investigation, adjudication, hearing, and appeals process shall be conducted in accordance with Sections 8.2.2, 8.2.3, and 8.2.3.1 of the Sexual Misconduct Policy.

Examples of sanctions or protective orders that the University may impose following a final determination of an institutional disciplinary procedure regarding rape, acquaintance rape, domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking include the following: expulsion or suspension from the University; residence hall probation or suspension; loss of privileges; written warnings; restitution; academic or therapeutic requirements or service to the University or community; or any other discretionary sanctions that are directly related to the violation or conduct and that are aimed at eliminating sexual misconduct, preventing its recurrence, and addressing its effects.

To the extent permissible by law, the University will not disclose any identifying information about the victim in any publicly-available recordkeeping without the prior written consent of the victim. The University shall, upon written request, disclose to the alleged victim of a crime of violence (as that term is defined in Section 16 of Title 18 US Code), or a non-forcible sex offense, the report on the results of any disciplinary proceeding conducted by the University against a student who is the alleged perpetrator of such crime or offense. If the alleged victim is deceased as a result of such crime or offense, the next of kin of such victim shall be treated as the alleged victim for the purposes of this paragraph.

The University conducts wide-reaching educational programs to make both students and employees aware of and to attempt to minimize incidents of sexual misconduct and sexual violence, including rape, acquaintance rape and other forcible and non-forcible sex offenses, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking. Some examples of training, education and awareness building include:

- Division of Campus Life and Residence Life personnel routinely receive training in sexual assault response.
- Emory Police Department officers continually receive training on Title IX, sexual violence, and intimate partner/domestic violence.
- Emory's Office of Institutional Equity and Inclusion (formerly Office of Equal Opportunity Programs) offers regular training and education on Policy 1.3, the University's Equal Opportunity and Discriminatory Harassment Policy, to Emory employees university-wide.

ANNUAL SECURITY AND ANNUAL FIRE SAFETY REPORT: 2014

- Emory Title IX officials and department of Human Resources engage in awareness building of Emory's Title IX policy and processes through continuing communications directed at university faculty and staff.
- The Faculty and Staff Assistance Program (FSAP), <http://www.fsap.emory.edu/>, a division of Human Resources, offers behavioral health counseling and other supportive services for employees dealing with sexual harassment or violence.
- Emory's first year student orientation (undergraduate, graduate, and transfer students), contains a training component focused on sexual violence awareness, and on Emory's Title IX policy and processes.
- On an ongoing basis, Emory's Division of Campus Life disseminates information and offers a broad range of programming about Emory's sexual misconduct policies and health, safety and support resources provided to students.

Examples of recurring education and awareness programs around sexual violence include: Safe Campus Awareness Month Observances; Residence Hall Director and Advisor Orientation; Freshman Health Seminars on Sexual Assault; Safety and Security Programs upon request; Sexual Assault Awareness Programs conducted throughout the year; Alcohol Awareness Programs; generalized safety and security programs conducted in residence halls; Fraternity and Sorority residence house programs; Personal Protection Programs; and rape awareness and response programs including "Take Back the Night Observances" co-sponsored by student organizations (includes participation on the University campus and with local law enforcement and the DeKalb County District Attorney Office); RespectCon; and Domestic Violence Awareness Month, among others. In addition, the University has partnered with the DeKalb County District Attorney to improve county-wide sexual assault protocols with regard to the general response, investigation, interviews, arrests, evidence collection and preservation, resource referral and counseling support, prosecution, pre-trial, trial and post-trial support, and probation and parole.

F. MANDATED CHILD ABUSE REPORTING POLICY

Emory University is committed to maintaining a supportive and safe educational environment and to enhancing the well-being of all members of its community, and places importance on creating a secure environment for children. To that end, Emory has adopted a Child Abuse Reporting policy, Policy 4.119, that sets forth the requirement and processes for reporting suspected child abuse. The Child Abuse Reporting Policy applies to Emory faculty and staff, including student employees; Emory volunteers, including students; and Third-Parties whose capacity of employment or duties involve interaction with children.

Unless there is an exception under Georgia law, Emory University requires all Emory University faculty, staff, volunteers, students and Third-Parties to report suspected Child Abuse of which they are made aware in their capacity of employment or duties. Policy 4.119 makes clear that the safety and welfare of a child is paramount, any uncertainty about whether reporting is required should always be resolved in favor of making a report, and that failure to make a report of suspected child abuse may be a criminal offense under Georgia law (O.C.G.A. § 19-7-5).

H. CAMPUS LAW ENFORCEMENT POLICY

The Emory Police Department is a full-service police agency with the same law enforcement powers, including the power of arrest, as a law enforcement agency of the local government. Officers have jurisdiction to exercise police authority:

- On property owned/operated by Emory University
- On any public/private property within 500 yards (excluding Oxford College EPD division).
- On one-quarter mile of any public street or sidewalk connecting different buildings and campuses (excluding Oxford College EPD division).

The Emory Police Department provides complete law enforcement services for the Emory campus, Oxford campus, and Emory Midtown Campus (effective February, 2010).

ANNUAL SECURITY AND ANNUAL FIRE SAFETY REPORT: 2014

The Emory Midtown Campus employs the use of in-house security personnel to provide on-site security services and utilizes the Emory Police Department for law enforcement services. The Carter Center Campus employs the use of in-house security personnel to provide on-site security services and utilizes the Atlanta Police Department for law enforcement services. The Emory University Grady Area Campus employs the use of contract security personnel to provide on-site security services and utilizes the Atlanta Police Department for law enforcement services. The Emory Johns Creek Hospital Campus employs the use of contract/in-house security personnel to provide on-site security services and utilizes the City of Johns Creek Police Department for law enforcement services. The Emory Saint Joseph's Hospital Campus employs the use of contract/in-house security personnel to provide on-site security services and utilizes the City of Sandy Springs Police Department for law enforcement services. Security personnel at each campus have only those arrest powers that belong to any citizen of Georgia, i.e., the power to make arrests for misdemeanors and felonies committed in the presence of the officer or within the officer's immediate knowledge. Security personnel report crimes in progress and summon local law enforcement assistance from the Emory Police Department or other local police departments, as appropriate. The university maintains an active and cooperative working relationship with local municipal law enforcement agencies surrounding each campus. There are no formal mutual aid agreements in place.

Emory strongly and actively encourages all of its students, faculty and employees to report crimes and any suspicious activity to the EPD, campus security personnel or local police authorities and to cooperate with those authorities in their law enforcement activities. I. MISSING STUDENT NOTIFICATION POLICY & PROCEDURES

Emory University's Missing Student Policy, Policy 8.13, establishes procedures for the University's response to a report of a missing student as required by the Higher Education Opportunity Act (HEOA) of 2008.

The policy applies to students found to be missing or absent from the University for a period of more than 24 hours without any known reason or which may be contrary to usual patterns of behavior. A student will be considered missing immediately if his/her absence has occurred under circumstances that are suspicious or cause concerns for his/her safety. Such circumstances include, but are not limited to: reports or suspicions of foul play, suicidal thoughts, drug use, any life threatening situations, or where a student may be known to be with individual(s) who may endanger the welfare of the student.

If any member of the University community has reason to believe that a student may be missing, an immediate report should be made to the:

- 1) Emory Police Department at (404) 727-6111 or call 911 (for Emory main campus) or
- 2) The Emory Police Department at Oxford College at (770) 784-8377 (Oxford campus).

A campus officer is available to respond to a call 24 hours a day and seven days a week. If the initial report that a student is missing is made to an academic department or university division other than the EPD, the staff member or faculty receiving the report will ensure that the EPD is contacted immediately. The EPD conducts an investigation to determine the location and well-being of the student, with notification to appropriate university staff to aid in the search for the student. If the student is not located within 24 hours of a report, or it is apparent immediately that the student is a missing person (e.g., a witnessed abduction) the EPD shall report the student as a missing person and the Dean for Campus Life (or designee) notifies the emergency contact or parent or guardian on file with the University.

In all cases of a missing student, where the student is declared missing by the Emory Police Department after an initial investigation, the Emory University Office of University Media Relations will provide information to the media that is designed to obtain public assistance in the search for any missing student. Any media requests to the college will be directed to the Office of University Media Relations. Prior to providing the Emory University community with any information about a missing student, the Office of University Media Relations shall consult with the Emory Police Department and with law enforcement authorities to ensure that communications do not hinder the investigation.

J. EMERGENCY RESPONSE AND EVACUATION PROCEDURES POLICY

With any notice to Emory Police or campus officials of a possible emergency situation, an Emory Police Officer will be dispatched to the scene to assess the situation. In the event of a confirmed emergency or dangerous situation that is determined to be an immediate threat to the safety, security or health of the University community, Emory will, without delay, activate various components of the University emergency notification system unless the notification will, in the professional judgment of the responding authorities, compromise efforts to assist victims or to contain, respond to, or otherwise mitigate the emergency. The Emory Police Department is responsible for initiating the community alert.

The emergency notification system includes the following components: e-mail; text messaging; Emory and Oxford home page banner; communication through on-campus television and an outdoorsiren / loudspeaker system. Initial messages will identify the emergency situation. Emory's website will provide the most-up-to-date information on the incident. The emergency notification tools are tested on an annual basis. The components of the emergency notification system are coordinated by the Office of Critical Event Preparedness and Response (CEPAR) and the Emory Police Department.

The Emory Police Dispatch will notify key representatives of the University leadership, CEPAR and the crisis management team. CEPAR maintains comprehensive information about the University's general emergency management processes. General guidelines about what to do in an emergency can be found in the campus emergency guides, "Just in Time, What to do in an Emergency" and "Just-in-Time" Emergency the Oxford Campus, available throughout the Emory campus and electronically at http://emergency.emory.edu/docs/Emergency_Cards.pdf, and Oxford College Just in Time Guide is distributed electronically only at <http://oxford.emory.edu/life-at-oxford/campus-police/just-in-time-safety-guide130821/>.

Building Evacuation / Procedure

Depending on the circumstances, Emory University Police and other first responders may decide to either partially or totally evacuate any University building. Under a partial evacuation request, occupants may be simply asked to relocate to another portion of the building deemed safe by the police, fire or other first responders. Complete evacuation will result in all persons leaving the building and moving to a designated assembly area.

Drills and Exercises

Emory conducts emergency response and evacuations exercises in the form of tabletop and practical drills on at the least an annual basis. The actual type of drill conducted is determined by the scenario and items necessary for evaluation. Scheduled and unscheduled building fire and evacuation drills are conducted on a semi-annual basis in residence halls and an annual basis in all other campus buildings. Emory tests components of the emergency notification system on a monthly basis. CEPAR maintains records of drills and exercises, documenting the date, time, and description of the exercise, as well as whether it was announced or unannounced. Records pertaining to the annual and semi-annual Fire Drills are maintained by the Office of the Director of Fire Safety. These records are available by request.

Emory follows a Timely Warning Protocol, as described below, for providing all of its campus communities (as appropriate) with timely notification of occurrence of the certain "Notice Crimes"² covered by the Clery Act. The Timely Warning Protocol applies to all campuses listed below. Timely warnings, known at Emory as "Public Safety Notices," are provided to heighten safety awareness by giving students, faculty and staff notification of crimes in relevant geographic areas. Upon receipt of information by the EPD from a complainant or from a Campus Security Authority (CSA)³, the EPD in consultation with the Emory General Counsel's Office will determine which situations warrant the issuance of a Public Safety Notice. The determination will be made on a case-by-case basis. Factors considered in determining whether a continuing threat exists and a timely warning will be issued generally include, but are not limited to —

- The nature of the crime or conduct and whether the reported incident represents a crime reportable under the Clery Act;
- The location of the incident;
- The time elapsed between the incident and when the incident was reported to the EPD by an individual or a CSA;
- The nature and duration of any relationship between the individuals involved in a reported incident, and the alleged conduct in the context of their relationship;
- Whether sufficient and reliable information is available about the reported incident, or meaningful safety education can be provided along with the notice about the incident, so that if disseminated, members of the Emory University community can reasonably use it to protect themselves or prevent a similar crime from occurring.

A Public Safety Notice may be issued even if all of the facts surrounding a reported incident are not yet available and are subject to further development in an investigation.

The Emory Chief of Police (or designee) will draft a Public Safety Notice and provide it to University Communications and the General Counsel (or designee) in advance of its distribution. The EPD Chief notifies the University Communications VP/AVP, the VP for Campus Services, Special Assistant to the Sr. VP and Dean for Campus Life, Health Sciences Communications AVP and the EHC ranking administrator (EHC President/CEO or designee) and provides pertinent information. NOTE: This is for notification purposes only, not consultation. The final Public Safety Notice is distributed via Emory listserv, which includes all Emory and Emory Healthcare email addresses and covers all campuses, by University Communications.

(2) Any individual or individuals who have responsibility for campus security but who do not constitute a campus police department or a campus security department under paragraph (1) of this definition, such as an individual who is responsible for monitoring entrance into institutional property.

C. POLICIES CONCERNING SECURITY OF AND ACCESS TO CAMPUS FACILITIES

1) Emory University Campus:

- Residence Halls—All residence halls are locked 24 hours per day. Residents who enter or leave by secured security doors are responsible for leaving the doors locked. Propping doors open is a violation of Residence Life policy. Residents are advised to lock their windows and doors at all times when not present. Keys and ID should be carried at all times. Keys are not to be loaned or duplicated. Assigned Facilities Management personnel do carry keys to residential facilities exterior doors to service the buildings and after hours and weekend emergencies; however, they do not carry keys for individual room access. Residents should report suspicious activity, or any lost or stolen items to the EPD.
- Other Emory Facilities—Faculty and staff who must enter or remain within a facility after normal business hours must possess valid identification and a key or valid access card to the location. Facilities Management maintains a record of all keys that are issued to departmental representatives located at the various facilities; those representatives may then further issue such keys to appropriate personnel. Students who remain in or enter facilities after normal business hours must possess a valid student identification card and a valid facility use permit, which permits are issued by EPD at the request of deans or department heads. Assigned Facilities Management personnel check exterior lighting as well as emergency lights and exit lights in every residence hall for proper operation. Assigned maintenance staff check and replace batteries for smoke detectors in individual resident rooms on a semi-annual basis or when reported by the resident as needing attention. Smoke detectors and fire extinguishers in common areas of residential halls are inspected and or tested every month for proper operation and serviceability. Anything not working is reported and repaired within the week. In addition, Campus Services in collaboration with the Campus Services Student Advisory Board, conduct annual safety walks to identify safety concerns throughout the campus which are then prioritized and programmed for execution accordingly. EPD patrols all areas of campus regularly by car, bicycle and foot patrol.

2) Oxford College Campus:

- Residence Halls—Residence halls are equipped with exterior security lighting; smoke detectors; panic-bar type exit doors; and card access. All Residence halls are equipped with sprinkler systems for fire suppression. All emergency alarm systems at Oxford are directly wired to EPD Dispatch Center on the Emory main campus in Atlanta which monitors the systems. A student must have a card key to enter any lobby or hallway off the lobby entrance. EPD patrols the residence halls periodically in the evening and early morning hours.
- Other Facilities—Many buildings on the campus are equipped with fire, intrusion, and panic alarms and these alarms are monitored by the EPD Dispatch Center. Police officers routinely monitor all buildings on campus for any type of safety and security problems such as broken locks, malfunctioning alarms, and malfunctioning security lights. These problems are reported on a web-based maintenance repair request report, and appropriate departmental or maintenance personnel are notified to take appropriate corrective action.

3) Emory University Hospital Midtown Campus:

- Residence Halls—There are no residence halls located on this campus.
- Other Facilities—All facilities on the Emory University Hospital Midtown Campus, including parking facilities, are patrolled by Hospital Security, 24 hours per day.
