

HONOR CODE STATEMENT

I affirm by the Honor Code of Berkeley Law that the work I do for the 2014 California Law Review Write-On will be my work, and my work alone. I affirm that I will read and abide by the procedures and rules contained in the information packet I receive with my packet of materials. I specifically affirm that:

1. I will not read or use any materials beyond those provided in the official packet, including the sample materials put on reserve and on bSpace prior to the Write-On;
2. I will not receive any assistance from any person in completing the packet, nor discuss the substance or style of the packet with any person. "Assistance" includes any brainstorming, rewriting, or editing, including looking for typographical or grammatical errors. Any person who types my casenote will be specifically instructed not to correct any errors I may make;
3. Once I have completed the Write-On, I will not discuss the substance or style of the packet with any transfer student or potential transfer student who may take part in the Transfer Write-On later in the summer; and
4. I have never entered a California Law Review Write-On before the May 2014 Write-On.

FERPA Waiver: California Law Review

The purpose of this waiver:

The California Law Review collects demographic information about the students who participate in the journal's annual Write-On and who are accepted and elect to join the membership of the Law Review. This information will not affect admission decisions to the Law Review and is used solely to help the journal assess areas of focus for future outreach efforts. However, because this information is protected by the Family Educational and Privacy Act (FERPA), CLR may collect this information only if students expressly agree.

About FERPA:

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) of 1974 establishes the rights of students with regard to educational records. The act makes provision for inspection, review and amendment of educational records by the students and requires, in most instances, prior consent from the student for disclosure of such records to third parties. The consent must be in writing, signed, and dated by the student and must specify records to be released, reason for release, and the names of the parties to whom such records shall be released. The act applies to all persons formerly and currently enrolled at an educational institution. Access to educational records does not give permission to make changes to the student's record.

PLEASE SELECT ONE OF THE FOLLOWING:

I hereby permit Berkeley Law personnel to provide information I have previously disclosed in my application for admission to Boalt Hall to the Diversity Editor, Senior Development Editor, and Editor-in-Chief of the California Law Review. I hereby agree to release data regarding my gender, age, geographic origin, race, disabilities, and family income. I understand that this information will not include or be attached to my name, but will be attached to my student ID number. It will be collected for statistical and academic purposes only, and it will not affect admission decisions onto CLR.

I do NOT permit Berkeley Law personnel to provide information I previously disclosed in my application for admission to Boalt Hall to the Diversity Editor, Senior Development Editor, and Editor-in-Chief of the California Law Review.
