 TIP!

Stuck? Imagine that you are writing a letter to a close friend.

Use every day casual language to tell your friend what job you are applying for and where. Why are you qualified? What are you excited about the job?

After you're done, go back and translate your letter using professional language to an employer.

Piece of cake, right?

Dear Mr. Hiring Person,

1st Paragraph: should clearly state the purpose of your letter and should indicate the position for which you wish to be considered, including position title if provided. Also, indicate how you learned of the opening (web site, newspaper, college job board, etc).

2nd Paragraph: The body of your letter should consist of one to two paragraphs. This section of the letter should address the responsibilities of the position and should draw upon your experiences in related settings and your academic preparation. Use this part of the letter to share with an employer your achievements and the special skills that you can contribute as a new employee (refer to your enclosed résumé). Also talk about what you know about the organization.

3rd Paragraph: tell how you will follow through. For example, "I'll call your office early next week to see if we could meet soon and discuss this job opening."

Sincerely,

Jeremiah Job Hunter

Stacey Kent, Administrative Director
School of Management
John F. Kennedy University
100 Ellinwood Dr.
Pleasant Hill CA 94523

Dear Ms. Kent:

I was excited to see the part-time position of Administrative Assistant II posted on the JFKU website. I am a graduate student at JFKU in the School of Management and after visiting your office last week, I became convinced that my background in writing, editing and designing would contribute to the Marketing Department's continued growth and success.

Highlights of my qualifications include:

- Experience in marketing communications producing newsletters, brochures and flyers
- General office support (filing, phones, serving walk-in traffic, ordering supplies)
- Outreach support: staffing booths at career fairs, public speaking, fundraising
- Computer proficiency with MS Excel, Word, Access and PowerPoint
- Two years' university work experience serving faculty and students

I am eager to learn more about the department's strategic goals for rebranding JFK after our recent change of leadership. I think that my studies, coupled with my past experiences can be a great asset to your efforts.

I look forward to discussing my qualifications with you further in person. I can be reached via phone (925) 555-2343 or email jlacey@hotmail.com. I'll follow up early next week to see if you have any questions.

Thank you for your time. I look forward to hearing from you soon!

Sincerely yours,

Jill Lacey

Employability Soft Skills

Employability Skills are skills that employers often cannot train us in but expect us to have. For example, an employer can train you in the office procedures of their organization, but cannot train to you to show up to work on time; that is expected.

Awareness: be observant of what needs to be done, as well as the needs of others, pay attention to both your words and actions and how they affect others

Communication: be able to effectively and confidently communicate your thoughts and ideas verbally, non-verbally and in writing

Flexibility: be ready to make changes, adapt quickly and easily

Initiative : be a self-starter and self-directed, look for things to do before being asked

Integrity : be honest and ethical in both your work and your treatment of others, give an honest day's work for a day's pay

Leadership : lead by example, encourage others, and give clear and concise directions

Presentation : speak slowly, clearly and confidently, always act and dress professionally and appropriately

Problem Solving : be creative, open-minded, practical and helpful when approaching difficulties and problems

Respect: be considerate of other's feelings and differences, treat all people equally and recognize their value

Responsibility : be accountable for the work that you do, be dependable and accept the responsibilities given to you

Task/Time Management : accomplish work within the designated time, plan activities with realistic expectations for completion, multi-task to get things done, be punctual

Teamwork : be respectful, collaborative, and cooperative with co-workers, share and contribute to accomplish goals

Have you mentioned your employability skills on your resume?

Did you:

❖ Content

- Focus on the specific results of your work, significant achievements, and recognition received?
- Use action verbs (pg 8) to describe your experience?
- Emphasize your employability skills (pg 9)?
- Emphasize your strongest qualifications; what do you want the employer to read first?
- Create a résumé tailored to the job you are seeking?
- Remember to describe both your paid, unpaid internship & volunteer experiences?
- Use short phrases, not long and complex sentences?
- Use quantitative information: #, %, $?
- Keep your résumé up-to-date?
- Have somebody you trust proofread your résumé for spelling and grammatical errors?
- Hint: Career and Transfer has resume drop-ins!

Visit the DVC online job system for Résumé guides and videos!
www.dvc.edu/career

❖ Format

- Change margins to .5 top/bottom; .75 on the sides
- Use readable and common fonts
- Use BOLD, italics or underline for section headings
- Make your résumé clear, concise and easy to read
- Send your résumé with a cover letter
- Print your résumé on high quality 8 ½ by 11 paper

Avoid :
❖ Use résumé templates included in word processing software	❖ “References available upon requests.” If they want them they will ask. Reference should be professional, not personal
❖ Personal pronouns “I”, “my” or “me”	❖ Salary information
❖ Mailing or faxing a résumé if email is an option.	❖ Lies. Brag but never lie.
❖ Personal information (Ex: Your age, height, weight, date of birth, marital status, sex, ethnicity, health, religion, or political affiliations)
