Course Description

Join us for a special two-day conference that features new and exciting information on important infectious diseases of dogs and cats. The material will be presented by clinical infectious disease experts from small animal teaching hospitals across North America! Attendees will be brought up to date with information on topics such as canine infectious respiratory disease, vector-borne infectious diseases of dogs and cats, bartonellosis, antibiotic susceptibility test interpretation, fungal disease, and vaccination. The emphasis will be on information that is relevant to small animal practice. This is a unique event that should not be missed. The conference is designed for veterinarians, but technicians are also welcome.
