In the spirit of Catherine Spalding, Presentation Academy strives to create a diverse educational community, grounded in spiritual values, that challenges young women to develop their greatest potential as leaders in a global society.

Barbara Flanders Wine '67, Principal

Have you ever heard a song on the radio that takes you back in time? Suddenly, you remember sitting in geometry class wondering when you would ever be called upon to write a formal proof in real life. You remember cheering for the Toppers at a basketball game, singing in music class with two fingers between your teeth. You remember the smell of bacon frying because today is hot brown day. You remember the feel of the iron steps under your feet and the sound of blaring music from your boyfriend's car (or someone's boyfriend) as you wait for the final bell to ring.

Recently, I joined the senior class at their prom and watched them dance the Electric Slide, glide across the floor to the music of Frank Sinatra and then scream in delight as they began to gyrate to the beat of songs whose words I was unable to decipher. Dresses ranged from retro to sleek. The only style missing was the Southern Bell, popular in the 80's. As I looked at these beautiful young women, I realized that another generation of Pres girls was about to embark upon the world.

Since 1831, Presentation Academy has played a significant role in the life and culture of Louisville. In addition to being the oldest school in the metropolitan area, Presentation is an architectural and historic landmark. The Trustees of Presentation Academy embrace the school's commitment to its historic location in downtown Louisville. This summer, Presentation begins to implement Phase I of a five-year master facilities plan. Funds have been secured to begin the exterior repair of the building.

A vision for the future of Presentation includes stellar academics, diversity, service and leadership in a faith-based institution. An innovative internship program was piloted this school year as a component of the Leadership Curriculum. During the April meeting, nine impressive seniors presented portfolios to the Board of Trustees. It is our goal that within the next five years 100% of Presentation seniors will participate in this program.

Academic opportunities continue to abound because of our downtown location. In addition to taking Advanced Placement courses at Presentation, twenty seniors walk next door to Spalding University and will earn over 250 college credit hours in courses that include Logic, Calculus II, Archaeology and Introductory College Writing. Many of our students have had the privilege of taking classes from award winning author Sera Jeter Naslund who was recently bestowed the honor of Poet Laureate. Presentation artists have displayed their work at the Huff Gallery and the Louisville Free Public Library is used frequently.

Thank you to those alumnae who have committed to the 2004-05 Presentation Academy Annual Fund. If you have not done so, please consider making a pledge to the future of Presentation. Your gift does make a difference.

Sincerely,

Barbara Flanders Wine '67

May at Presentation is full of celebrations and promise...there are the final classes, recognition events, Spring Concert, and finally, Graduation. May is also anniversary month in Presentation's history. It was on May 24, 2004 that the Task Force, that would become the current Board of Trustees, met for the first time.

On that day one year ago the Presentation community began fulfilling a dream. A dream of independence, growth, and new ventures all rooted in the rich traditions that are Pres. Today, one year later, this dream is becoming a reality.

We are in the process of recruiting a Head of School who will further our community partnerships and be integral to fund raising.

This summer major repairs will be made to our school building including a new roof. Hopefully, the covered walkway will be just a memory.

We are in the early stages of identifying a future site for the construction of a Student Activities Center.

Great things have always happened at Pres and even greater things are on the horizon. Continue to give us your support and prayers as we do our best, "...for the girls."

Beth Mattingly Denham '83, Executive Director of Advancement

It's All About Gratitude!

Thanks to our many and generous benefactors, I am proud to announce that we have exceeded our fund raising goals for this current fiscal year! We rely on the philanthropy of our alumnae and friends to continue to accomplish our mission of educating young women. I am constantly in awe of the many "faces of Pres" that help us accomplish our goals.

My overwhelming emotion is gratitude!

- Gratitude to our alumnae who continue to support our beloved alma mater through time, talent and treasure.
- Gratitude to the parents who entrust their daughters in our care.
- Gratitude to our "Pres girls" who keep us focused on the awesome mission started by our founder, Mother Catherine Spalding.
- Gratitude to Mother Catherine Spalding for our existence.
- Gratitude to our faculty and staff for their untiring dedication and service.
- Gratitude to our Board of Trustees for their leadership and vision.
- Gratitude to our many friends for their ongoing presence and support.

Stewardship is an attitude of gratitude and I am proud to celebrate our success! As you continue to make your charitable gift choices, please place Presentation Academy on the top of your philanthropic list! Your gifts are proof of your confidence in us and our hopes and plans for the future.

It's all about Presentation! It's all about you!

Ruth Hans '87, Director of Public Relations/Recruitment

Within me is infinite power, before me is endless possibility, around me is boundless opportunity... Why should I fear?

This quote sits on my desk and I read it everyday, sometimes more than once a day. It reminds me that you can't sit back and wait for life to happen, you have to make it happen. I see endless possibilities everyday for the students here at Pres. Since Pres is a smaller school every student is able to have more individual attention from their teachers and Pres offers many different courses to meet the needs of all academic levels. Pres girls not only have the opportunity to take AP courses they are also able to walk next door to Spalding University and take college classes in an actual college environment.

Students are also given the opportunity to shadow with someone in a career that may be of interest to them. Actually they are able to do this with 3 people in 3 different careers in their sophomore year. Then as a senior they may intern with that same person in one career of their choice. I have spoken to several girls upon completion of their internship and all have felt a total sense of satisfaction at having the opportunity to intern. One student even commented that she had gone to an information session at the university she was planning on attending on how to get into the post-graduate program of study she was interested in. The moderator of the session went through a list of things to concentrate on doing and told the group that it was ok to wait until their sophomore year of college to start working on those items. This young lady commented that she had already accomplished everything on the list and was only a senior in high school.

Pres is surrounded by boundless opportunity. Our downtown location allows Pres girls to experience the business and cultural aspects in the heart of Louisville. Pres students walk or take the trolley to many educational or interesting venues including: Actors Theatre, Brown Theatre, Cathedral of the Assumption, Courier Journal, Filson Club, Fourth Street Live, Glassworks, Hall of Justice, Kentucky Center for the Arts, Louisville Slugger Museum, Main Public Library, Norton Hospital, Science Museum, Speed Museum, and the YMCA. Being downtown also allows Pres students plenty of opportunities for easy access to organizations and businesses for completing volunteer hours, for internship opportunities or for after school jobs.

Being a Pres Student gives a young woman the power to make things happen and the courage to follow through with it!

"It's All About Presentation... It's All About Celebration!"

On Tuesday, January 25, 2005 Presentation Academy celebrated Independence from Spalding University. Spalding had assumed ownership of Pres in 1995 after the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth decided they could no longer operate the school. Now, after 174 years Presentation, is an independent and self-governing institution. Anne Northup, Archbishop Thomas C. Kelly, our Board of Trustees, SCN President Sister Shalini D'Souza, former teachers and principals, alumnae, faculty, students, and parents all celebrated that day with a press conference and reception. All four local TV stations were in attendance as well as the local print media. John Asher, Vice President of Communications at Churchill Downs and a member of Pres' Board of Trustees, was the master of ceremonies. John spoke of the similarities between Pres and Churchill Downs. Both were designed by the same architectural firm, D.X. Murphy and have been fixtures in the Louisville area for more than 130 years. The Kentucky Derby is America's longest continuously running sporting event, and Presentation Academy is the city's oldest continuously operating institution. After the formal portion of the press conference, the students conducted their own celebration with a futuristic fashion show, a career showcase, and performances by the dance and step teams.

Another event held prior to the press conference was a prayer service for the student body on Monday January 24th. Several faculty members as well as several alums planned a special service of remembrance. Portraying Mother Catherine Spalding, Sister Maria Vincent Brocato, SCN, told students the story of Pres' beginning. The students were then given a copy of a creed that was written by the Class of 1995 and their Pres little sisters from the Class of 1998.

Anniversaries, birthdays, and miracles are great moments of celebration! This year at Pres marks the beginning of the celebration for all of these occasions. January 25 we celebrated the tenth anniversary of Miracle Day, the second founding, or rebirth of Pres when we were a division of Spalding University. (This was a second connection with Spalding as well, since the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth once owned both schools).

Pres' spirit surged through the air even as I walked towards the gym. Students greeted us, the Prezettes' songs danced with energy, and students' energy filled the gym as they gathered with alums, Board members (Trustees and Alumnae), and friends.

The official celebration of Pres as an independent Catholic school gave Pres its third birth, and with it the beginning of the 175th anniversary plans.

From now until the end of next year, we have many events to celebrate Pres' history as the oldest school in Louisville. We are working on a cookbook and an anniversary book, and events throughout to celebrate our rich history.

For our anniversary book, please check your files for memorabilia (Eagle, yearbook, class newsletters, photos) and send us copies. We will have a book party to return your items to you as we celebrate the book's publishing.

Welcome to our 175th celebration!

Pres receives check from sale of Gallopalooza horse!

2005 Alumna of the Year- Mari Sweeney Hammer '59

During the 46 years since her graduation from Presentation Academy, Mari Hammer has distinguished herself as a woman of service to her family, her community, and her alma mater.

During her 35 years as a teacher at Presentation Academy, Mari has stretched her students' minds by giving them far more than the basics, making the learning process rich and enjoyable. A life-long learner, Mari has taken advantage of a wide variety of opportunities to learn more about the world around her, always with a mind to how she will apply her life's experiences to her classroom teaching. She has attended summer institutes on topics ranging from Aristotle to Islam. She has traveled extensively throughout the United States and Europe, absorbing the history and culture of the places she visits. Consequently, students leave her classroom with not only facts, but a broader understanding of our complex world. A recent Pres graduate who was preparing to head off to college and face an 8:00 AM history class remarked, "I can only hope that the teacher is half as good as Mrs. Hammer."

In addition to teaching World Civilizations, Mari currently serves as Presentation's assistant principal. Throughout the lengthy and tiresome process of Presentation's separation from Spalding University, she willingly took on additional responsibilities, doing whatever needed to be done behind the scenes to help guide the school through this difficult time. Mari is admired by the faculty for her ability to provide positive guidance and support for their work in the classroom. At end of a long day, she can be heard playing a farewell song or two on the piano in her office.

Mari leads a well-rounded life. She is a dedicated wife, mother, and grandmother. She has a wide circle of friends, including a close-knit group of women she met long ago as a student at Pres. She has served as an active member of the arts community, including working as an usher at Actor's Theater. She has spoken to students at Our Lady of Lourdes and Presentation on the topic of Islam, helping to foster understanding and acceptance of the Muslim faith in our community.

Mari was honored at a reception held in the Spalding University Drawing Room on April 21.

Congratulations to Mari Sweeney Hammer '59!

Mari with her family; husband Joe, daughter-in-law Wendy and son Adam.

"With Sweetest Story..."

The following are letters received from our alumnae about how the four years they spent at Presentation Academy prepared them for college and beyond. If you would like to share your thoughts on Pres preparing you for the future, please send to Presentation Academy, 861 S. Fourth St., Louisville, KY 40203, Attn: Ruth Hans or e-mail rhans@presentationacademy.org.

I just wanted to write and say hello and thank you. In the past 3 or 4 months, I have been given a lot of really neat opportunities here at UGA.

I am doing great here. The town of Athens is beautiful. I have been working in a research lab for almost 2 years now and have really developed a love for science. I'm studying Hirano bodies, which are protein aggregations found in the brain cells of people who have died from neurodegenerative diseases. At the end of this semester, I will present this work at a symposium on campus. I also worked at Emory this summer doing research on how different toxins block sodium channels. I will be presenting this work at the National Undergraduate Research Conference in Virginia. Because of all my lab work, I was nominated as one of 4 students at UGA to apply to the national Barry S. Goldwater scholarship for excellence in science research.

On a non-science note, I will be living in Spain this summer, studying Spanish at the University of Valencia. Also I was just awarded a scholarship, which will pay for my remaining two years at UGA, pay for Spain this summer, and send me on three other international trips. I cannot even begin to tell you how excited I am!

Anyhow, I wanted to tell you all about these things that have happened to me recently because I know that all of you have taught me many lessons that my current success is based on. I've always felt that you believed in my future, and that kind of support has put me where

I am today. I heard we have become independent from Spalding, which is really exciting. Thank you again for everything. All of you have touched my academic career in a special way.

Excerpt from a letter sent by Caelin Cubenes, Class of 2003

Being back at Pres Saturday evening for the Class of '84 twenty-year reunion reminded me how important Presentation was in my life. Being a "Pres girl" played a huge role in making me who I am today. I hope the school will be around to give future generations of girls the opportunity to have that experience.

Excerpt from an e-mail sent from Kristen Beck, Class of 1984

We are using genetically engineered herpes simplex viruses to inject directly into brain tumors. I give a lecture each year to graduate students as to the utility of these viruses and summarize the clinical trials as well. Pres' former science teacher Mrs. Mitchell was my inspiration to go into science. I owe Pres and her teachers so much, and would love a chance to repay her for all she has done for me by motivating other young women to pursue their dreams.

Excerpt from an e-mail sent by Jackie Parker, Ph.D., Class of 1981

I am so proud to have graduated from Pres. It was the happiest four years of my young life and I carry fond memories to this day. Lifelong friendships were formed and memories of many of the teachers will always be with me.

My education at Pres affected every facet of my life and I am grateful to all who were involved. Thanks for the memories.

Excerpt from a letter sent by Linda Cook Salazar, Class of 1966

I just finished reading the Summer 2004 edition of The Tower. I would like to commend those who contributed to the new format. Each time I receive a copy of The Tower it brings back so many cherished memories, feelings of connection, and a strong sense of pride. I graduated from Pres in '64. When I read the comments of Lindsey Willett, Miss Presentation for 2004, I could echo 40 years later that the lessons, principles, and values I began developing as a student at Pres have continued to motivate, guide, and touch my life. I graduated from Ohio State University and Indiana University. While I highly value my degrees, the experiences in both of these well-respected places of higher education did not affect me as a whole person. I was challenged intellectually and academically to do my best, but who I was as a person was not of particular concern to others.

There is something to be said for the ability of smaller places of education and formation to provide a more intimate atmosphere that allows for the individual person to be noticed and honored, with all their gifts, quirks, and needs. But an atmosphere that fosters connection and the valuing of the person is not imbedded in beautiful atriums, high tech computer labs, or high class lounges. I cannot tell you today the name of anyone in the state universities with whom I studied. But I recognize the name of nearly every classmate from Pres, and I lift them in thought and prayer when I see that they have lost someone.

I feel connected to Pres, not just as an alumnus, but also as part of a community of women who are committed to integrity, to valuing the good in others, and to service. I see this reflected in the accomplishments and bio sketches reflected in the newsletter. Thank you for continuing to publish The Tower, as it gives me a way to remember the strength of my roots, and to encourage the goodness and principles that are so expressive of the Pres spirit.

As a pastoral counselor and therapist I frequently sit with people who lack or are yearning to establish roots that will bring energy, motivation, passion, and meaning. Remembering my roots allows me to draw from a well far deeper than myself and to hold their hope until they can claim it for themselves. Thank you.

Excerpt from an e-mail sent by Penny State Zimmerman, Class of 1964

My experience at Pres empowered me with self esteem and fearlessness I needed to succeed in college. I am still using lessons learned from high school in medical school to stand up for myself and my ideas with conviction. The great thing about Presentation is that young women can learn to be confident in an environment that fosters having that far-fetched great idea or reaching for what might be an unreachable goal.

Excerpt from an e-mail sent by Paige Nealy, Class of 2000

"It's All About Leadership"

Presentation Academy challenges young women to develop their greatest potential as leaders in a global society. Since 1995, Presentation has offered an innovative leadership program-layered with traditional curriculum. Freshmen and sophomores identify and develop individual leadership skills during their regular classes. Then, as juniors and seniors, students focus on team leadership skills.

Leadership skills are integrated into every academic course at Presentation with a continuing emphasis on leadership skills in key areas: ethics and values, planning, decision-making, communication, problem solving, goal setting, and team building. These skills are further enhanced by the opportunity for students to play key roles on leadership committees to plan, organize, and present seminars and programs

The Presentation Academy leadership curriculum includes a series of special leadership sessions for all grade levels. Led by a faculty moderator and limited to 12-15 students, these interactive focus sessions provide opportunities for small groups to look at ways to apply core leadership skills in academic work, school activities and beyond.

Freshmen are given the opportunity to learn about different careers by attending leadership sessions throughout the year. Professionals come to Pres and speak to freshmen about their experiences in the business world.

Clare Nguyen '05 interning at Today's Woman Magazine.

Sophomores and juniors can shadow professionals in three different careers of interest. Following their shadowing experience, they have the opportunity for mentoring in one. Some of the careers students have shadowed include: pet therapy, marine biologist, attorney, set construction, photographer, pharmacist, advertising, pediatric physical therapy, physical therapy, pediatrician, teacher, deputy mayor, political activist, air force, pediatric/psych nurse, veterinarian, news anchor/reporter, sports nutritionist, neonatal nurse, and video journalist.

Seniors can intern in a chosen career and gain high school credit. Some of the careers students have interned in include: Office of International Affairs with Metro Government, equine veterinarian, journalism/photojournalism with Today's Women, marketing/advertising with Creative Alliance, pediatric physical therapy at Kosair Children's Hospital, patient simulation program at U of L medical school, speech therapy at Frazier Rehab, neonatal nursing at Baptist Hospital East, chemical engineering at ZeoChem, radiology at Baptist Hospital East, counseling/social work with Jefferson County Drug Court Program, Ballet with the Louisville Ballet, and environmental planning with Metro Government.

Research data from the National Center for Education Statistics reveals that choosing a school is one of the most important decisions a parent must make. Parents who choose private/Catholic schools do so for several reasons: quality academics; a safe and orderly environment; they want their children immersed in moral and ethical values and in a school that promotes religious and spiritual values.

Statistics indicate that Catholic school students:

1. Perform better on standardized tests than their counterparts.
2. Go on to college at a 90% rate compared to 66% of public school graduates.
3. Students from low socioeconomic backgrounds are three times as likely to complete a bachelor’s degree than comparable public school students, which helps break the poverty cycle.
4. Are racially, ethnically, and economically diverse: 23% are non-caucasian and 28% come from families with annual incomes under $50,000.
5. Are 50% more likely to take advanced placement classes or international courses in math and science.
6. Participate more in community service than public school students.
7. Students who complete at least 8th grade in a Catholic/private school are twice as likely to complete a bachelor’s degree by their mid-twenties.
8. Are significantly more likely than others to feel safe and be safe in their school.

Freshman Awarded Sister Miriam Corcoran, SCN Scholarship

The recipient of this year’s Sister Miriam Corcoran, SCN Endowed Scholarship is Emily Ott. Emily is the daughter of Rebecca Ott. She is a member of Northside Christian Church and attended Hazelwood Middle School in New Albany, Indiana.

Emily was selected from a group of twenty-eight freshmen that applied for the scholarship. The scholarship is based on merit, character, behavior, academic standing, and financial need. The students must write a 300-500 word essay on a topic concerning Presentation.

A group of 1963 Pres graduates established the scholarship as a way to say “thank you” to the nurturing spirit of Sister Miriam and Presentation. Sister Miriam was honored at a reception held at Presentation Academy on April 19.

TECHNOLOGY: "It's Not Just About Computers Anymore"

Students in the new Digital Photo & Video class are learning that technology and creativity can go hand-in-hand. Whether the students are editing their digital photos in Photoshop Elements or their digital videos in Windows Movie Maker, creativity plays a role in every assignment for this class.

Students have proven themselves to be up to the task, producing a variety of creative pieces: morphed photos of Presentation faculty members, the cover of the Presentation Academy Spring Concert program, a music video, and virtual tours of the school for the Presentation website, to name just a few.

Senior Meredith Spann, who plans to pursue a career in graphic design, has particularly enjoyed the video portion of the class. She has had an opportunity to "learn about the behind-the-scenes stuff that movie makers do." She and junior Kristen Holland created a video for the school website in which they featured the class photos hanging in the halls of Presentation. They included interviews with some of the current Presentation teachers who are also alumnae. She says she enjoys assignments such as this, because "you're learning, but you're also helping the school."

Check out the students' work on the Future Toppers page of the Presentation website: www.presentationacademy.org/future_toppers.htm.

Technology Tidbits

- 🔗 Presentation provides a weekly e-mail update for parents.
- 🔗 Students' grades are posted to Presentation's website every 3 weeks.
- 🔗 Presentation is implementing the iSafe internet safety training curriculum for faculty, students, and parents.
- 🔗 Students in the Web Design class create pages for Presentation's website.
- 🔗 Students from the Applied Technology class use Adobe PageMaker to do the layout for the monthly Principal's Newsletter.
- 🔗 Every Presentation teacher has a laptop computer with wireless internet access.

From Probes to PC's: Science Students use a Variety of Tools

The times, they are a changin', especially in the Presentation Academy Science Department. Science students use a variety of technological tools, including laptop and desktop computers, Vernier interface devices, and pocket PC's to enhance their learning.

During a recent experiment involving gas laws, Debbie Vice's chemistry students used Vernier LabPro interfaces with probes to measure air pressure in a syringe, then transmitted their data directly into laptop computers to analyze the relationship between pressure and volume. In Sandy Schroerlucke's Physical Science classes, students used an online roller coaster simulator to investigate the physics of roller coasters, then designed their own roller coasters and tested them in class.

One of the exciting new developments this year is a pocket PC program being piloted with Jamie Beach's 8th-period Biology class. Students use the pocket PC's to do internet research, to organize data in Excel spreadsheets, and to type assignments. They then "beam" their work to the teacher for grading.

The pilot program has been an overwhelming success, according to teacher Jamie Beach, who has seen improvements in her students' test scores, behavior, self-esteem, and overall level of engagement in class activities since the program's inception in January. According to freshman Heather Smith, a participant in the program, "The pocket PC's are helpful with organization because it's harder to lose a PC than it is to lose a piece of paper." Paige Medley adds, "The pocket PC's really helped with classwork and research." Mrs. Beach hopes to secure the necessary funding to expand the program to other science classes in the near future.

Mrs. Vice helps chemistry students Maria Kennedy and Jessica Bellamy investigate Boyle's Law with a Vernier interface device and a laptop computer.

"You Go Girl!"

The Center for Women and Families named Letitia 'Letty' Walter '53 a "2005 Women of Distinction" at their 18th Annual Celebration of Service on Thursday March 10, 2005. Way to go Letty!

Two former Pres students are members of The University of Louisville rowing team, they are Lauren Blalock '02 and Audrey Gray '04.

Twelve students represented Pres at the Kentucky United Nations Assembly (KUNA) from March 20-22.

They were among over 1,200 teenage delegates representing over 86 schools from across the state. The students represented the country of Nicaragua and spent hours in committees debating proposals from schools representing other countries. Pres students researched and developed a proposal, and designed and constructed a display reflecting Nicaragua. Sophomore Paula Cissell was selected to be one of 17 session leaders, and sophomore Stacie Harris was one of only 37 students selected as "outstanding speaker" at the convention. Other students representing Pres were: Sarah Cox, Sarah Domhoff, Nicki Harris, Sara Klingsmith, Alex McConnell, Jamie Mulet, Madalyn Payne, Kaelin Schmidt, Rachel Thomas, and Melissa Wingfield.

Haylea Sweat '05 was selected as a "High School Hero" by Bellarmine University and WLKY-TV. Haylea was featured in several commercial spots honoring her achievement.

Jennifer Kennedy '03 made it to the top 30 of about 1,000 women at the tryouts for a new MTV reality show, "Making the Band 3", produced by P. Diddy. During her tryouts she was filmed performing with pop star JoJo.

The Presentation Academy "Prezettes" received a distinguished rating at the Kentucky Music Educators Association (KMEA) Festival on Friday March 18, 2005. This rating entitled them to enter the State Festival on May 12th at The University of Louisville. Great job girls!

Stephanie Willen '05 was honored for her exemplary volunteer service with a President's Volunteer Service Award. The award recognizes Americans of all ages who have volunteered significant amounts of their time to serve their communities and their country.

Junior Elizabeth Campbell has been selected to represent Presentation Academy in the National Council of Teachers of English 2005 Achievement Awards in Writing Contest.

Pres freshman Kathriena Greenwell placed third in an essay contest sponsored by the Optimist Club of Louisville.

Pres junior Mera Corlett won first place in the annual Right to Life Educational Foundation of KY Regional Oratory Contest held on Saturday, March 19, 2005. She advanced to the state competition held on Saturday April 16 where she placed second.

The University of Kentucky gave sophomore Rachel Thomas the "Class of Kentucky" award. This award recognizes top high school sophomores from around the state. Rachel will be appearing in TV spots in the fall of 2005.

"It's All About Our Pres Girls!"

Seniors Sarah Bell (left) and Jean Dolan (right) sign letters of intent to run cross country and track for Bellarmine University.

Each year in February the Presentation junior class sponsors a lock-in for 8th grade girls that have taken the placement test at Pres. It is a lot of fun for everyone with food, games and even a talent show. The picture above shows members of the incoming freshman Class of 2009 enjoying the lock-in.

Softball Team is a Hit!

Dear Mr. & Mrs. Wine,

I wanted to take this opportunity to personally thank you for your hospitality and let you know how much I enjoyed my stay in Louisville. I was very lucky to be able to travel with the team and share all the different events with them and I enjoyed every one of them. Your school is beautiful and so different from anything we are used to. The entire trip was such a great experience for all.

On behalf of our team and parents who were able to come, please send out another thank you to everyone involved at your end. I know we all enjoyed the trip immensely. Your entire community was so welcoming and friendly towards our group and the barbecue was wonderful! We will remember this trip for years to come and we look forward to seeing you in three years.

Thank you again for everything and best of luck to you in the remainder of your season.

Fondly,
