Electrical dangers such as shock, electrocution, electrical explosion, and arc blast will always be present on the job, but a proper arc flash training program and strategies can minimize the likelihood of injuries and fatalities. The NFPA 70E Arc Flash Training focuses on the 2012 NFPA 70E arc flash electrical safety standard that addresses arc flash electrical safety requirements for employee workplaces that are necessary for the practical safeguarding of employees.

Upon completion of the NFPA 70E Arc Flash Training class the students will be able to:

- 1. Identify electrical hazards
 - 2. Identify causes of arc flash
 - 3. Explain the biological effects of electrical shock / arc flash
 - 4. Select appropriate personal protective equipment (PPE) for applicable situations
 - 5. Describe lockout / tagout procedures
 - 6. Identify the hazards and risks associated with arc flash
 - 7. Respond appropriately to an arc flash incident
 - 8. Demonstrate safe work practices.
- Be certified for completing the Arc Flash Training as specified in OSHA regulations and the NFPA 70E Standard.
