The Winning Shoe For Long Ultra-Tracks - MTR 201-II Max Low

Introducing a completely new addition to the Mammut Trail Running footwear range, the lightweight and highly cushioning MTR 201-II Max Low. Its wedge, made from a 22/28 mm thick D3O®-EVA blend, absorbs impacts and provides support while actively feeding back the generated force. The risk of twisting an ankle or similar injuries is a particular factor on long-distance runs, as fatigue starts to creep in. The MTR 201-II Max Low's firm and robust frame structure has been designed to overcome this risk. The competition shoe also features the proven aggressive gripex™ Sonar tech sole, offering excellent grip in different kinds of terrain and making slipping almost impossible. The tread construction on the sole is inspired by the concentric pattern created by sonar waves and therefore provides support in all directions. In addition, multi-directional lugs ensure very high lateral edge stability on steep traverses and a secure grip on different surfaces. The shoe also scores highly in terms of efficiency, thanks to the improved Base Fit Advanced® technology, in which sliding webbing at the sides transfers the power from the lacing area to the sole while at the same time improving support in the shoe. A new feature in the Mammut trail running range is the quick and easy Advanced MTR Speed lace system. The cushioning MemoFoam® concept has also been used to ensure an individual fit and provide optimal padding around the instep and ankle. The proven Rolling Concept® promotes a natural rolling movement and guarantees ergonomic support and cushioning. All combining to make the MTR 201-II Max Low the ideal long-distance expert for ultra-running events.

Double Stitching Technique: Mammut Trovat Pro T-Shirt Women

The Trovat Pro T-Shirt combines the natural properties of high-quality Merino wool with the features of synthetic fibers. Mammut has opted for the benefits of patented Polartec® Power Wool™, a scratch-free merino wool, for the inside of the T-shirt, complemented by a hydrophobic polyester fiber on the outside. Key feature: Merino wool wicks moisture efficiently to the outside, thus inhibiting odors as well as regulating temperature. The synthetic fibers result in a quick-drying and more durable material that maintains its shape. Whether it's hot or cold, dry or damp, the Trovat Pro T-Shirt rises to the challenge of frequently changing needs in varying environments and conditions. Clever details such as flat-lock seams also provide improved elasticity to prevent uncomfortable chafing. Its very comfortable feel and excellent moisture management make the Trovat Pro T-Shirt an absolute favorite garment.

Mammut Wall Rider - The Best Of Both Worlds

The Mammut Wall Rider combines the best features of two different materials, resulting in one of the lightest climbing helmets on the market! The low weight is achieved using an EPP (expanded polypropylene) shell. This synthetic material offers significantly better cushioning properties in comparison with the traditional EPS (expanded polystyrene). Thus, after strain such as an impact, EPP recovers very quickly and returns to its original shape. In addition to the excellent cushioning properties of the EPP synthetic material, the helmet shell is also reinforced with a robust hard shell so as to guarantee maximum safety. To help climbers keep a cool head even at a crux section, the Mammut Wall Rider is equipped with numerous ventilation openings. The superb fit and the individual adjustment system ensure the helmet sits perfectly on the head. Two clips and a rubber loop can be used to secure a headlamp

Mammut Bionic Alpine Belay For High Walls

The Bionic Alpine Belay is an innovative and extremely robust belay device based on the tube principle. The V-shaped grooves and the rear rope-bearing surface are made from abrasion-resistant steel, which prevents wear from rope friction and the resulting critical sharp edges. The steel reinforcements also stop the Bionic Alpine Belay from overheating when rappelling. The housing is made from lightweight aluminum, making the total weight of the device just 80 grams.
