THE FUTURE ROLE OF JAPAN IN ASIA

AND ITS IMPLICATIONS FOR THE JAPANESE-GERMAN ECONOMIC RELATIONS

In times of globalization, the roles of states and economies as well as the balance of power in the world are shifting. In Asia, Japan is redefining its position in foreign policy and adjusting to various economic impacts. How do these developments influence the process of internationalization of Japan and Japanese companies? What are possible implications for the partners of Japan in the EU? Which consequences especially for the German-Japanese relations may occur? Will there be (enough) scope for future bilateral cooperation?

We are honoured to welcome Former Prime Minister Yasuo Fukuda as our speaker on this topic. He was the 91st Prime Minister of Japan serving from September 2007 to September 2008. Among other commitments, he is now Chairperson of The Asian Population and Development Association and Board Member of the Boao Forum for Asia. His speech will be held in Japanese and will be interpreted into English.

With this Seminar, DJW wants to take the opportunity to introduce its current activities to interested business people and to strengthen its network among its members.
