

OSHA Safety Manual (Injury Illness Prevention Program)

OSHA Standards requires EVERY employer to have in writing an effective injury and illness prevention program that must at least contain the following:

- Policy naming the person or persons who have authority and responsibility for carrying out the safety and health program.
- System for ensuring that employees comply with safe and healthful work practices, and which includes disciplinary action as well as recognition of safe work habits.
- System for communicating with employees on matters relating to occupational safety and health, and which includes provisions for encouraging employees to inform the employer of work-site hazards without fear of reprisal.
- Procedure for identifying and evaluating workplace hazards and which includes scheduled periodic inspections.
- Procedure for investigating an occupational injury or illness.
- Procedure for correcting, in a timely manner, unsafe or unhealthful conditions or work practices.
- Safety and health training for employees and supervisors.
- System for documenting with records the scheduled, periodic inspections and the employee safety and health training--these records must be kept for 3 years.
- After receiving your manual, you will have all the tools needed to meet the above requirements from OSHA.
