A Message of Faith

Join Me in Israel, April 22-May 4, 2012

Rabbi Misha Zinkow

Since I spend much of my time teaching, or preparing to teach, it is a mechaye (a life-giving experience) to refresh my intellectual and spiritual engines when I get an opportunity. Furthermore, I consider it my sacred duty to continue my own learning and deepening of my Torah knowledge. So every other summer, I embrace the opportunity to spend almost two weeks in July as a full-time student, which I did this year. With dozens of colleagues, the setting in which I learned is the rabbinic seminar at the Shalom Hartman Institute in Jerusalem. "Hartman" is a pluralistic Jewish education organization, a think-tank for innovative Jewish ideas, and an oasis on the rough terrain of Zionist and Israeli ideologies. Today, the SHI runs a variety of programs for Jewish professionals and lay leaders from the Diaspora, for Israeli educators, and it is the home of a highly-respected Israeli high school. The Hartman Institute is one of few genuinely pluralist purveyors of Jewish life, sometimes paddling upstream against the strong current of denominations and ideologies hardly distinguishable by most: ultra-Orthodox, Conservative, Reform, Reconstructionist, Hasidic, modern Orthodox and the list of narrow groupings goes on and on.

Some say that the multiplicity of thinking within the Jewish people tears us apart. After all, the Jewish people is a fragile house which can hardly tolerate domestic strife. On the other hand, it is also our internal diversity that makes the Jewish people so unusual, interesting and colorful. Nowhere is the multihued fabric of our people on display more than in the State of Israel. One need only walk down any street from Haifa to Eilat, from the Golan Heights to Ashkelon, from Jerusalem to Tel Aviv, to experience the vitality of our people in our homeland. The wonderful yield of the blood, sweat and tears of Israel's pioneers, the founders and their children is in plain view everywhere one looks, from Israel's diverse and robust economy to its leadership in creating a civil society amidst some of the world's most violent and oppressive authoritarian regimes.

All of this is reason to celebrate Israel's achievements in its young history, and yet, even after 63 years of independence and amazing contributions to the world in industry, agriculture, science and technology, not to mention philosophy, governance, literature and religious thought, the world still has a problem with Israel. In our day, we are experiencing a systematic and dangerous attack on the Jewish people's historic ties, our unbroken connection to the Land of Israel. The mantra our young adults hear on their campuses is "BDS, BDS, BDS: Boycott, Divest, Sanctions," a loosely-organized international campaign to, what the movement calls, "delegitimize" the State of Israel. In truth, this campaign uses fancy language to hide what it really is: an assault on Israel that singles it out from the nations of the world and demonizes it. BDS is a propaganda tool to create an image of Israel as an apartheid state run by Nazis. Such a state, goes the mantra, should be destroyed through isolation and punishment.

I am happy to say that here in Columbus, support for the State of Israel remains strong, among both Jews and Christians. However, in other parts of the country, some Jews have been slowly influenced by the campaign to create a new narrative that chips away at the Jewish people's historic and legitimate claim to our fair share of Eretz Yisrael. And while the Jewish people has and still can withstand diversity in its house, we cannot stomach serious doubt about the justice of the Jewish people's right to our homeland, our democratic and Jewish state. We must persevere against such doubt. That said, there are no simple solutions that will bring the Arab-Israel conflict to an end simply because we want everyone to get along. The situation is complex and challenging. Moreover, Arab Israelis and the Palestinians do indeed have legitimate grievances.

Truly, the very best way to understand the miracle that is Israel, even as it confronts extraordinary challenges, is to join me in becoming a student of history and politics, an informed member of our people or a fellow-traveler. Come to Israel with me April 22 - May 4, experience the exquisite Israeli countryside first-hand, especially with people from your home community with whom you can form bonds of friendship, trust and memory. An adult group shall travel to Israel as a Temple Israel family; you will see how we are a part of the much larger and astonishingly varied Jewish people. Seriously consider exploring with me the bustling boulevards of the State of Israel, set right alongside the ancient alleyways of our biblical forebears. Once there, you will see, experience and understand what an astonishing people we are. See page 9 for details about our journey.

May this be a year of peace for us, for the People and State of Israel and for all humanity.

Shana tova,

Misha Zinkow, Rabbi

ABOUT THE COVER:

The literal message of the cover greeting, "Shana Tova" is "A good year." Through a period of careful examination of who we are during the month of Elul, we pray that our introspection will help us turn away from our past selves to better selves who will act differently in the coming year. We are each meant to be a new and improved version of who we are through the act of atonement, experienced as a spiritual marathon on Yom Kippur.

ABOUT THE ARTIST:

Emily Remer, artist, is a 5th grader at High Point Elementary School in Gahanna. She enjoys art, Girl Scouts and American Girl dolls and books. The Remer family - Todd, Julie, Elliot & Emily - are taking turns designing Tikun covers this year. We're most grateful for their artistic renderings and dedication to the Tikun project!

Religious School

Last year I was able to take Zoe, my two-year-old daughter, apple picking for the first time. Living in Los Angeles for the past four years (and Miami before then) there were very few opportunities for apple picking and other fall treats. So when we unexpectedly found ourselves visiting my family in the mid-west in late October, I jumped at the chance to have her experience one of my favorite fall memories—apple picking! Personally, every year I lived in either Los Angeles or Miami as fall holidays approached I was always sad that I could not smell the crisp air, hear the sound of the crunching leaves, take a bite of a freshly picked apple, and experience the beauty of the changing leaves. I craved the very tangible signs of the fall that signified our High Holy Days were approaching. For me, seasonal changes were very much tied into my Jewish holiday experiences.

I find it very fortuitous that I begin my tenure as Education Director at Temple Israel as we approach the High Holy Days and enter the month of Elul, a time in which we reflect on the past and think about who/what we want to be in the future.

Personally, this year as my family and I create our home in Columbus I have been reflecting on the past. I am originally from Ann Arbor, Michigan and was raised in a synagogue very similar to Temple Israel (in fact, the Rabbi from my childhood synagogue moved to Ann Arbor from Temple Israel in Columbus!). My love of Judaism and education began at an early age and was deepened and strengthened through family celebrations, Jewish summer camps, trips to Israel, youth group, and religious school. I am excited to be able to pursue my passion for Jewish Education at Temple Israel. My family and I are delighted to have moved to Columbus where my husband serves as the Rabbi at Congregation Beth Tikvah.

The future is very exciting. I am thrilled to have joined the Temple Israel community and am excited to, in partnership, build upon the great legacy before me to continue to create engaging and innovative life-long learning opportunities. I look forward to getting to know you. Please stop by and say hello!

Some Things My Daughter Learned At Temple Israel Preschool:

- ♥ How to make friends, and more importantly, how to be a friend.
- ♥ How to respect other's feelings and possessions.
- ♥ How to be quiet in the book corner and loud with the blocks and dinosaurs.
- ♥ How to use her imagination to bake challah in the kitchen and be "SuperGirl" on the playground.
- ♥ That singing, dancing, and playing are just as important to learning as circle time, writing letters, and counting.
- ♥ A cardboard box with a door cut in the side makes the best car, because you can play with it anywhere (even inside)!

And most importantly...

- ♥ She has learned how to love, because here at Temple Israel Preschool, she is loved.

These words were written by Wendy Stone after her youngest daughter, Jessica, graduated from Temple Israel Preschool in 2002. Both of David and Wendy Stone's daughters, Heather and Jessica, began their formal Jewish education in our preschool. While our preschool has grown to meet today's standards that are found in the highest quality early childhood programs, we have remained true to our identity as a synagogue-based program that supports the social, emotional, cognitive, and creative development of young children in a nurturing, Jewish environment. Our program serves children ages "approaching" 3 to 5 years old and offers a 2, 3, 4, and 5 day-a-week option.

Temple Israel Preschool offers:

- Professional, experienced, and caring teachers.
- An educational program that encourages active involvement of your child and provides opportunities for children to communicate, problem-solve, and create as they become involved with their surroundings through dramatic play, stories, circle time, blocks, art, and more!
- Our Jewish values, traditions, and music are incorporated into our classrooms daily, enriching the lives of our children and families.
- Small groups with low numbers of children per staff member, enabling every child to receive individual attention that they deserve.
- Flexible schedules allow families to meet their individual needs.

Temple Israel Preschool is a Three Star award-winning program in the State of Ohio's Step Up To Quality program that recognizes early childhood programs for their overall commitment to quality and early childhood education.

Please contact Becky or Judy at the preschool (866-0010 ext.122) as soon as possible for more information or to arrange a tour of our program.

Temple Israel Hires New Program Staff

We are delighted and excited to introduce four young adults who have joined Temple Israel's professional staff. Anna Schottenstein, Shiran Bendor, Evan Slaton and Rachel Edelman will serve as a collaborative program team to address a variety of program arenas served by Temple Israel such as, young adult engagement, formal and informal youth religious education and social programming, and social action and community organizing. Together, they will work with Rabbi Zinkow, Cantor Trompeter and Debra Kellner to professionally shepherd existing programs and deliver new and cutting edge opportunities for our various community populations.

Rabbi Zinkow believes in identifying and developing talented young adults who bring fresh ideas and perspective to synagogue life. He said, "I am really energized by this new professional model. Engaging these young people on our staff as a creative thought and program team gives our community boundless opportunities. I am really looking forward to partnering with them."

Shiran Bendor

Shiran is thrilled to be joining the Temple Israel team for the 2011-2012 year. She graduated from The Ohio State University in August with a Bachelors of Science in Human Ecology and a minor in Hebrew. During her time at Ohio State, Shiran was active in Hillel and in the International Affairs scholars program. She also studied abroad at the Ben Gurion University of the Negev in Be'er Sheva, Israel. She looks forward to developing and implementing creative, fun, and educational programming for the congregation and the Columbus community at large.

Rachel Edelman

Rachel is a Junior in the Honors Program at The Ohio State University from Solon, Ohio majoring in Jewish Studies and English. She is a member of Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority where she serves as Vice President of Philanthropy and Service. Rachel is also a member of the MeshugaNotes, a select co-ed Jewish acappella singing group at Ohio State. This past summer, Rachel served as an Orientation Leader at Ohio State for incoming freshman. Rachel was the Religious Life Intern at Ohio State's Wexner Jewish Student Center for two years. Rachel is a confirmand and high school program graduate of Anshe Chesed Fairmount Temple in Cleveland, served as President and Programming Vice-President of Anshe Chesed Fairmount Temple's youth group (CLEFTY), and was an active participant at the regional level (NFTY-NEL).

Evan Slaton

Evan first started his career as a Jewish educator after his Bar Mitzvah where he became a madrich at his synagogue's religious school. In high school Evan participated in NFTY events and even had the opportunity to go on the NFTY Israel trip. While studying at the Ohio State University, he joined the Jewish fraternity Alpha Epsilon Pi, taught Hebrew school at Temple Israel, and spent his summers at camp GUCI. He graduated college last year with a degree in Political Science, and has since been working as a manager at the Dublin AMC Village 18 movie theater. Evan is extremely honored and excited to be a part of the already successful Temple Israel team and looks forward to a great year.

Anna Schottenstein

Anna recently graduated from Ohio University with a degree in Social Studies Education, a minor in History, specifically focusing on Jewish History. While in school, she was president of the Ohio University Women's Chorale, a member of an elite a cappella group, participated in club sports, organized multiple volunteer projects and was also a member of the Hillel executive board. For the past two summers she has traveled to Israel as a staff member on the NFTY in Israel program and upon returning in August, she looks forward to joining the Temple Israel community.

Prayers for Temple Israel

At each Board meeting, a member of the Board of Trustees offers a prayer or teaching as we begin each meeting. Below are prayers offered at the June and July meetings by Barbi Crabill and Harriette Hansell, respectively.

From "Covenant of the Heart: Prayers & Meditations from the Women of Reform Judaism."

One of the Pirkei Avot – Sayings of the Fathers – tells us “The day is short and the task is great...and the Master of the house is pressing...you are not required to complete the work, but neither are you at liberty to abstain from it.”

As we are about to begin a new chapter in the life of Temple Israel, let us reflect on those words for a moment. Much work always needs to be done and our time is so limited that we must constantly strive to utilize it to the utmost in a constructive way.

Help us, O God, to work diligently to promote the goals of this organization – to further the ideals and teachings of Judaism within our own households and the households of Israel. Although the time is short, together we CAN make a difference. Even though we, ourselves, may never live to see “Utopia,” we cannot leave it to others to work toward bettering the lot of people wherever they may be.

Bless these dedicated leaders as we go forth and give us the strength and wisdom to do Your mitzvot and carry on in Your behalf.

Amen.

Many of us have read When Bad Things Happen to Good People by Rabbi Harold Kushner. I know I received this book from Brotherhood years ago and read it cover to cover trying to understand my own personal tragedy. Well, what about the good things happening to good people? I found some research on exactly this – Why Good Things Happen to Good People: The Exciting New Research That Proves the Link Between Doing Good and Living a Longer, Healthier, Happier Life.

So here are 7 tips from that research for permanent happiness, all based on reaching out & offering yourself to life.

1. Make a Celebratory Visit. This is a special visit that celebrates what someone else means to you & what they have given to you. It demonstrates gratitude, which has been proven in studies to boost mood & health.

2. Look at the Big Picture. Remember that you are an essential part of a very alive universe, no matter how tough a day or week or even year you might be having. You are part of the greater whole, the weave of life and all of humanity. So be sure to remind yourself of that by looking up at the night sky, volunteering or going to temple. Each of our lives has ups & downs, but be sure to embrace the larger scale of all of life & its diversity.

3. Be a Keeper of Meaning. Knowing that your life has meaning brings a deep-down satisfaction that offers lasting happiness. One way to experience more meaning is to bring meaning to the lives of others by teaching them a special skill of yours. This can be as simple as showing how to listen & be a caring person.

4. Forgive Yourself. Okay, you’ve made mistakes. We all have. However, going over (& over) your mistakes keeps you feeling disconnected & unloved. Instead, think back to a time where you were forgiven. Remember the good feelings. Ask God for forgiveness. Try to see yourself from the perspective of someone else & ask yourself whether they would judge you as harshly as you judge yourself.

5. Tune in to Those Around You. For one day, decide to be courteous to everybody in your path – even buoyantly so. Whether it be a neighbor, a stranger, or of course, friends. Maybe even reach out & be extra nice to a congregant. At the end of the day you’ll feel much happier, relaxed & more connected.

6. Be a Good Friend. A good friend wants the best for you & is happy when something great happens in your life. Be that friend. Repair any issue or rifts in your friendships when possible. And rekindle old friendships – look up friends from childhood or college, or those who have moved away, & reach out to them. Reshape your friendship networks.

7. Nurture Your Creativity. Creativity brings joy, & the personality trait most linked to creativity is being open to experience – trying new things, being open to fantasy, discovering new connections. Listen to music, read books, go to a museum. Try a different approach to a familiar routine. Maybe that different approach is reaching out to someone to join you for a Shabbat dinner or a cup of coffee.

So what if each of us tried even just a couple or a few of these 7 steps? My guess is we might just find that good things can, in fact, happen to good people.

Sisterhood Does a Little Turn on the Catwalk

Everyone wants to look fabulous, but in this economy who can afford a new wardrobe every season? On Monday, September 12 at 6 PM Wendy Cooper from Catherine's/Fashion Bug will be on hand at Sisterhood's Opening Program to show us how to look like a million bucks without breaking the bank.

In addition, we will also be honoring Sisterhood's 2010-2011 Volunteers. Bette Jo Stempel will receive the Life Member Award, Michelle Bucy will receive the Bessie Shomer Folkman Volunteer of the Year Award and Amy Weisbach will receive the Dorothy "Dottie" Fenburr Leadership Award.

The evening is a big one for Sisterhood, featuring a style show, heavy hors d'oeuvres and dessert. The revitalized Temple Israel Sisterhood Gift Shoppe will also make its debut on September 12, with a special discount for all in attendance. Come check out the beautiful selection of apple and honey serving sets, shofars and Rosh Hashanah cards for the new year.

We hope you'll join the women of Temple Israel for an evening of fashion, food and fun. Cost for the program is $18 for Temple Israel Sisterhood members and $25 for nonmembers if your check is received by September 5. After September 5, the price is $22 for members and $30 for non-members. To RSVP, please send your check, along with the names of the attendees, to Temple Israel Sisterhood - Opening Program, 5419 E. Broad St., Columbus, OH 43213.

If you would like to model for the style show or assist with the program, please contact Program VP Debbie Cohen at debbiecohen@insight.rr.com.

Lurie Micro-Grant Mid-Year Concept Applications Accepted

In its second year, the Lurie Micro-Grant Program Committee has launched a mid-year opportunity to apply for a Lurie grant, including a new first step which will make it easier for the applicant to begin the grant writing process. From now until the deadline of October 15 the committee will be accepting short narratives of your program ideas. Share with us an idea that captures something you are passionate about that you want to share with the members of the Temple. These one-paragraph overviews should include a short statement of your program idea, goals of the program and how members of Temple Israel will be engaged in the program (see sample below). Once approved, a member of the committee will be assigned to help the applicant develop their idea and complete the more comprehensive proposal. "We feel that by adding this first step we will assist the applicants in submitting proposals better suited for the selection of the grants." stated Renee Resnik, grant administrator.

Project ideas can address a wide range of topics. Programs funded by the Lurie Micro-Grant to date include the Green Project, a temple wide recycling program, BREAD, a social advocacy program, the Transition Network Group, a job transitioning support group, and the most recent grant, the CSA Exchange, Temple Israel's own collective organic gardening club. These diverse programs represent areas of connection for Temple Israel members of like interests. Opportunities for additional topical programs are as wide as the interests of our members.

Sample Grant Concept:

I would like to involve Temple Israel members in monthly Shabbat walks through various parks in the Columbus Metropolitan Parks. These walks would include a short family friendly Shabbat service, a guided walk led by a docent of the park and a time for refreshments and socializing. My goals include involving members of Temple Israel in an outdoor, spiritual, fun and family friendly event. Temple Israel members would not only participate in the walks but would also assist in the planning and execution of the walks including publicity, contacting the parks, arranging for the food and helping develop the short service.

Program ideas can be sent directly to Renee Resnik at resnikr@gmail.com. For more information please contact Renee at 525-9389.
