1. "I", the undersigned, understand that the "Production Company" intend to record a broadcast of the launch party for PC Music and SOPHIE's new mass media network, Pop Cube. I authorize the "Director", his agents, successors, assigns and designees as well as the "Production Company" and any of its proxies to take motion and still pictures of me, my likeness and image, to record my voice and any sounds made by me, and to obtain any other information about me, including but not limited to my name, likeness, photograph, voice, dialogue, sounds, biographical information, personal characteristics and other personal identification on film, tape or any other media in existence today or in perpetuity hereafter, and incorporate such recordings into the broadcast, any versions of the broadcast and all related materials thereof including but not limited to promotion and advertising materials.

2. "I" understand that the "Production Company" shall retain all rights to creative and technical control over the final recording to be broadcast in all manners, formats and media in any markets, territories and locations existing or as yet undiscovered on this planet and including but not limited to this universe in perpetuity.

3. "I" agree to follow all direction given by the "Director," his agents, successors, assigns and designees in connection with the production of the live broadcast including but not limited to orders to move from the red carpet to the newsroom or from the TV studio to the main theater and to observe in full when called upon Pop Cube Entertainment News, Dux Content's Jungle Jam and all main theater performances and behind-the-scenes footage.

4. "I" hereby declare Pop Cube to act as my sole provider of all existing, recently conceived and completely hypothetical visual content. Consumption of any new content through any other provider than Pop Cube will be deemed a serious breach of contract.

5. The "Production Company" hereby consents to provide attendees with a fully immersive experience that entertains in totality without a single moment's respite or break. Failure to meet this commitment by the "Production Company" will result in the termination of all terms and clauses contained within this contract with immediate effect.
