21. General architectural description:
Oriented to the east, this house rests on a foundation of regular-coursed, rock-faced, pink rhyolite ashlar, with raised and beaded mortar. White-painted wood siding, with pink-painted cornerboards, clad the exterior walls of the first story. Square-cut wood shingles, painted brown, cover the second story. A band of decorative, scalloped shingles divides the second story near the window sills. Windows are generally 1-over-1-light, double-hung sash, with black-painted wood frames. Those opening in the first story have multi-light storm windows and pink-painted wood surrounds. Windows in the second story have white-painted wood frames. Protruding from the roof's front (east-facing) slope is a dormer with a pedimented gable. It hosts a multi-light hopper or awning window. A decorative hopper or awning window, consisting of an oval ring with rays, pierces to the east elevation of the front-gabled wing protruding from the west end of the south elevation. The east end of the north elevation hosts a leaded-glass window. Opening in the rear (west) elevation, south of a small, shed-roofed mudroom, is a 1-beside-1-light window. The mudroom hosts 3 (vertical)-over-1-light windows. A hipped-roof porch spans most the asymmetrical front (east) elevation. It features a wood floor; wood balustrade with closely spaced, square balusters; and Doric columns. The Doric order extends to the porch frieze, which hosts evenly spaced triglyphs. Concrete steps approach the north end of the porch, aligned to the principal doorway. It hosts a single-light wood door, opening behind a wood-frame storm door. A secondary doorway opens in the east elevation. It has a single-light, paneled wood door, painted white. White-painted wood fascia, with projecting cornices, and beadboard soffit box the broadly overhanging eaves. A white-painted friezeband separates the walls from the soffit. The gables host eave returns. Gray asphalt shingles cover the main hipped roof and all other roof surfaces. Emerging west of the roof's apex is a massive, red-brick chimney, with corbelled cap.
22. Architectural style: Late 19th And 20th Century Revivals
Other architectural style:
Building type: Foursquare
23. Landscape or special setting features:
This property is located on terrain sloping downward from west to east, with an elevation of around 4,700 feet above mean sea level. The surrounding residential neighborhood features modest and large, 1- and 2-story houses. Setbacks from North Grand Avenue are generally the same on this block. This property is situated on the west side of the street, between 1915 North Grand Avenue to the south and 1921 North Grand Avenue to the north. Separating the street from the concrete sidewalk is a grass-covered strip. A planted-grass yard, with mature landscaping, covers the lot. Enclosing the back yard is a combination of chain-link, woven-wire, wood picket fences.

24. Associated building, features or objects:
No other buildings are associated with this property.

29. Construction history:
According to Pueblo County tax assessor records, this house was constructed in 1900. The current owner suggests an 1897 date of construction. However, the building does not appear on a 1904-05 Sanborn maps and city directory listings for this address do not exist before 1909, suggesting that the house was built in 1909. An analysis of the style, materials, and historical records corroborates this date. The only notable alteration has been the replacement of the original wood porch floor with a concrete structure.

V. HISTORICAL ASSOCIATIONS

31. Original use(s): Domestic/Single Dwelling
32. Intermediate use(s): Religion/Religious-related Residence
33. Current use(s): Domestic/Single Dwelling
34. Site type(s): Residence
35. Historical background:
The original owner and resident of this house, constructed around 1909, was merchant and mine owner John H. Crow. He was born in Pennsylvania around 1844 and lived here with his wife, Margaret A. Crow, and daughter, Ella Crow, who was principal of the Hinsdale School. By 1914, Ella married Robert E. Cowles, an attorney, and the couple lived in this house with her parents. By 1920, however, Ella was widowed and continued to reside here with John and Margaret Crow.
- Between 1920 and 1925, First Baptist Church of Pueblo purchased this house for use as a parsonage. The first pastor to live here under the church's ownership was Rev. C. Arlen Heydon. He was credited with leading the effort to construct a new educational building for the church. The site of the new building, dedicated on September 21, 1930, was been the location of the former parsonage, at 905-907 North Grand Avenue. Two other First Baptist pastors also resided here: Rev. Alvin J. Lee from 1932 to 1935 and Rev. C. Spurgeon McClung from 1935 to 1943.
- Daniel E. Boyle purchased this house from the church in 1943. He was born in Wyoming around 1884. His wife, Charlotte, was born around the same year in Colorado. They married around 1907 and had five children: Daniel E. Jr., George A., Evelyn, Mary Katherine, and Margaret Boyle. The elder Daniel Boyle originally farmed near Avondale, and later opened and operated a cabinet shop at 715 West 13th Street. He died on April 9, 1953, at which time his son,

George A. Boyle, became the property owner.

This property remained in the Boyle family until 2001, when Nan E. Grant acquired the house and lots. Grant sold the property to Russell and Yvonne Meyerhofer in 2004. They remain the current owners and residents.

39. Areas of significance: Architecture
Social History

40. Period(s) of Significance: Architecture, ca. 1909; Social History, ca. 1909-1943

41. Level of Significance: National State Local

42. Statement of Significance:

This property is historically significant under Pueblo Landmark Criterion 1A for its association with the 20th-century development of Pueblo's North Side Neighborhood, when the city's professional and entrepreneurial class moved northward to construct homes in the latest contemporary suburban styles. This house was home to entrepreneur John H. Crow, and Baptist ministers Rev. C. Arlen Heydon, Rev. Alvin J. Lee, and Rev. C. Spurgeon McClung. As well, the house is architecturally significant under Pueblo Landmark Criterion 2A as an example of a classically inspired Foursquare plan. Character-defining features include an overall square plan, front porch, Doric columns, hipped roof, overhanging eaves, and a central dormer. Of particular note is the porch, which expresses the Doric order more fully than most other residentially properties in Pueblo. While the levels of architectural and historical significance are not to the extent that this property would qualify for individual listing in the National Register of Historic Places or the Colorado State Register of Historic Properties, it could be individually eligible as a City of Pueblo Landmark. It is, in any case, a contributing resource within a potential historic district.

43. Assessment of historic physical integrity related to significance:

Constructed in 1909, this house exhibits a moderate to moderately high level of physical integrity relative to the seven aspects of integrity as defined by the National Park Service and the Colorado Historical Society: location, setting, design, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association. The only notable alteration has been the installation of a concrete porch floor. All character-defining features remain intact. This house retains sufficient physical integrity to convey its historical and architectural significance.

VII. NATIONAL REGISTER ELIGIBILITY ASSESSMENT

44. National Register eligibility field assessment: Individually eligible Not eligible Need data Previously listed
 State Register eligibility field assessment: Individually eligible Not eligible Need data Previously listed
 Local landmark eligibility field assessment: Individually eligible Not eligible Need data Previously listed

45. Is there National Register district potential: Yes No

Discuss: Pueblo's North Side Neighborhood represents the evolution of the city's professional middle and upper classes. Its diversity of architectural styles and forms directly represents the city's changing economic and cultural climates. As well, the neighborhood is distinctive because it appears to have evolved independently of the area's dominant industry, steel manufacturing.

If there is National Register district potential, is this building contributing: Yes No N/A

46. If the building is in existing National Register district, is it contributing: Yes No N/A
