Features and Facts

This service invoice template is a variant of Service Invoice Form with Discount Amount. The template redefined several Excel formulas so the Discount field becomes a percentage value.

In the original implementation that could be found at Service Invoice Form with Discount Amount, the discount field is an amount value, which is deducted from the subtotal of an invoice by using Excel formula. With this customized invoice template, we modified the formula of the "discounted subtotal" cell to be "Subtotal * (1 - Discount Percentage)". This way, the discount value saved along with other customer information becomes a discount percentage value.

Besides modifying the formula, you'll also need to set the format of the discount cell to show as a percentage. To do this, first unprotect the Invoice worksheet by clicking the Unprotect Sheet command on the Review ribbon tab, and then right-click the Discount cell on the bottom of the invoice form and choose Format Cells. On the Number tab of the Format Cells dialog box, you can set the format of the discount cell to be a percentage value. Feel free to browse the other options available on the Format Cells dialog box, you may find it helps you a lot when you try to customized the invoice template to create your own style and layout.

The freeware version of Service Invoice Form with Discount Percentage invoice template does help you create professional and beautiful invoices with its intuitive form layout, and printing a hardcopy of an invoice is also as easy as issuing the Print command in Excel. However a pure Excel invoice template is a simple invoice creator or invoice generator, because it lacks the ability to manage customers, products, invoices and payments. To fulfill these types of business requirements, upgrade the pure-Excel invoice template to Uniform Invoice Software version, which allows Uniform Invoice Software creates the connection between Excel formatted invoice template and backend database.
