The Google Cache

What is it?

A snapshot of each Web page when Google finds it on the Web. It is saved in Google's database & is updated each time Google rescans the page looking for changes.

- •It is available to click on in your results list from a search
- Use if you get an invalid link in your results page.

Google Spell Check

Studies have shown that Web searchers are not the best typests. So Google offers a spell check feature.

To use:

- •Type in a search term in the Google search box. E.g. "geneology."
- •In the Results Page Google will ask "Did you mean genealogy?"
- •Click on the correct spelling of the underlined term to retrieve the results for the correct spelling. See example following.

The Spell Check Feature

Google's Dictionary & Thesaurus

For a quick definition or synonym, type a word in the Google search box and hit < enter>.
If Google has definitions, synonyms, an Encyclopedia entry, or more information for the term, your search term will display in the blue bar of Web Results followed by a link to the [definition] (see next slides).

•Click on the [definition] link for further information supplied by

Answers.com

* Note * If a search term is incorrectly spelled, this link will NOT appear!

The Google Toolbar

If you use Internet Explorer, you may download the Google Toolbar to provide a quick link to a Google search from any spot on the Web. •It appears as a toolbar along with the IE toolbar.

•For more information check this link: http://toolbar.google.com/.

* Note* When you enable the Toolbar's Advanced Features, the URLs of the sites you visit will automatically be forwarded to Google. See http://toolbar.google.com/privacy.html for more information.

Conclusion – Let's Google!

Google has many other specialized features in addition to its cache, phone book, spell checker, dictionary/thesaurus, stock quotes and toolbar that contribute to its top ranking and popularity. For more information on Google search options go to:
