

Disney's Hall of Presidents inaugurated the newest presidential robot.

President Obama is a Robot!

After a year of renovation for the beloved Walt Disney World attraction, park goers will now have the opportunity to see President Barack Obama "in person". The animatronic version of our 43rd president currently stands in the center of the presidential hall where the presidents speak as "real people" rather than historical icons.

"I thought technically his movements were really good," Disney pass-holder Jason Bluming of New Jersey said of the Obama robot.

Previously, the Magic Kingdom attraction included the Gettysburg Address by an Abraham Lincoln animatronic as well as snippets from other presidential speeches by Lyndon B. Johnson and Bill Clinton animatronics.

Activity - Presidential Dialogue

After hours, the Hall of Presidents comes alive. Choose two presidents, one living, one dead and create a dialogue between them. For example, what would Abe Lincoln say to Bill Clinton if he had the chance? What questions might Clinton have for Lincoln? Use historical facts to guide our conversation. Write at least 12 lines of correctly formatted dialogue.
