UCDC Information Session

UCDC is an academic program created in 1997 for the purpose of providing approximately 30 students per quarter an opportunity to continue their studies while interning for a quarter in Washington D.C. Moreover, the availability of a 4-unit research seminar that satisfies upper-division course requirements for a number of majors affords students the opportunity to reflect on and enlist their intern experiences in an academic exercise. UCDC is also a residential program with apartments at the centrally-located, UC Washington Center. Not only does this facilitate relocating temporarily in the nation's capital, the Center offers students a rich exposure to the Washington community through tours and an evening speaker series. Since its inception, hundreds of UCSD students have included UCDC in their educational experience. You can too!

Please attend information session for more information:

When: Monday, October 20, 2008 from 10:00-11:00 a.m.

Migration Film Series: Center for Iberian and Latin American Studies

Need a break from studying? CILAS (Center for Iberian and Latin American Studies) will be hosting four Latin American films this fall quarter focusing on migration.

Please come watch their first film "Voices of the Fields" on Wednesday, October 22 at 7:00 p.m. at Copley International Center, Hojel Auditorium, Institute of the Americas.

"Voices of the Fields", this very personal documentary follows farm workers from California's Salinas Valley back to their roots in the fields of rural Mexico, where they recount their everyday struggle to cope in the midst of the globalization of agriculture and the impact of NAFTA.

"The Invisible Chapel", award winning filmmaker John Carlos Frey captures the enduring story of a migrant chapel which remained invisible for 20 years to the wealthy residents of a San Diego, CA neighborhood. Every Sunday parish volunteers provided humanitarian assistance and held a church service for over one hundred impoverished construction and service industry workers from Mexico. Local Neighbors, along with the San Diego Minutemen and Talk-Radio host clashed the with mostly undocumented immigrant congregation (Film will be shown on October 29 at 7:00 p.m. at Copley International Center, Hojel Auditorium, Institute of the Americas).

Latin American Studies Lecture:
Rodrigo Montoya, "The First Amazonian Rebellion in Peru"

---

When: Thursday, October 23, 2008 from 2:30-4:00 p.m.

Where: Deutz Room, Copley International Conference Center, The Institute of the Americas Complex

Peru once seemed like an exception to the indigenous movements that have taken place in Ecuador and Bolivia until two months ago, when the Amazonian Indians decisively opposed the decrees of President Garcia to sell the lands of the native communities. They painted their faces as a signal of combat, occupied an oil company's installations, and threatened to cut off the flow of gas. The government was unprepared for such a response and lost. How do we explain these actions? What implications do they have?

International Education Week (IEW), November 17th- November 21st

IEW is an opportunity to celebrate the benefits of international education and exchange worldwide. The week is dedicated to enhancing international awareness across the UCSD campus as well as to reinforcing the importance of the exchange of students and scholars across borders.

Initiated in 2000 by the US Department of State and the Department of Education, International Education Week emphasizes the importance of increasing student knowledge and awareness of the world's cultures, peoples and languages, and affirms the critical role that international education and exchange programs play in fostering world peace.
