

PRELIMINARY PROGRAM

IVF Preceptorship: current practice in the 21st century

Madrid, Spain - December 1-2, 2011

Aim of the workshop

The 2011 IVF Preceptorship will be taking a new approach to bringing clinicians and other professions involved in ART up to date. The two-day program, which is focusing this year on poor responders and on new laboratory techniques, will be delivered using an innovative mix of traditional lectures, interactive working groups, case studies and video sessions.

Participants' learning will be supported on-site with a full workbook containing key slides, reading lists and presentations, and there will be the opportunity to follow a subsequent series of post-meeting follow-up activities.

The case studies and workshop sessions will examine many aspects of the definition, detection and management of poor response, and the video sessions will include 3D ultrasonography, time-lapse observation of human embryos and an introduction to new laboratory topics and techniques.

Learning objectives

At the end of the workshop, the attendees will be able to:

- understand the prediction, causes and management of poor response
- identify markers, protocols and clinical issue
- apply the highest standards of laboratory procedures
- learn about new techniques and related applications
- implement optimal ways to interact with patients in order to share treatment planning and increase compliance

Target audience

Trained physicians (5–10 years) who are already involved in investigation and treatment of infertility and gynecologists and endocrinologists beginning to work in IVF.

Accreditation

Serono Symposia International Foundation (www.seronosymposia.org) will submit the following CME activity "IVF Preceptorship: current practice in the 21st century" (Madrid, Spain – December 1-2, 2011) for accreditation by the European Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (EACCME). The EACCME is an institution of the European Union of Medical Specialists (UEMS), www.uems.net.

Location

Madrid is the capital of Spain and its largest city and lies in the center of the Iberian Peninsula. It is located on the river Manzanares in the center of the country, between the provinces of Castilla y Leon and Castilla la Mancha. Madrid has traditionally been the connecting point between all parts of Spain. As capital of Spain, Madrid is also home of the Royal family, the Spanish Government and many other national institutions. The town has a long and fascinating history. The general aspect of Madrid is modern, with boulevards and fashionable shopping areas, but the old quarters have picturesque streets and all over Madrid there are monuments and museums of great artistic value. Madrid is also a very international city with a lot of foreign students and tourists visiting the town.
