There are 7 stages to go through when you apply for a program of study through the StudyInTaiwan Program Office. As an applicant, you are required to submit an Application for Admission form (you may download this online at <http://www.sit.org.tw/applying>) and other required and supporting documents as the list above. Your application materials will be sent to the universities for a program review. If you pass the review, you will receive a preliminary admission letter from the Consortium university. The preliminary admission letter is for you to certify your degree documents (diploma and transcripts of your last level of education, both original and English version) with designated Taiwan Embassy/Representative Office. After you certify your documents, send them (or scan/email) to the Consortium university to receive an official admittance letter stating that you are officially admitted. You will use the letter and the certified degree documents to apply for a VISA to come to Taiwan. Upon arrival to the Consortium university, you are required to submit the original copy of the degree documents to register as an international student.
