

Internet Activity Presentation Planner

Introduction to Business Chapter 30 Savings Accounts

In Chapter 30, you learned that, “Banks, savings and loans, savings banks, credit unions, and brokerage firms all offer several types of savings accounts.” The type of savings account a person opens depends on the reasons they are saving money. One type of savings account is called a money market fund. Prepare and present a 10-minute talk about money market funds. Discuss the reasons a person might open a money market fund, other options they may have, and any disadvantages or cautions they should keep in mind.

Action Steps for Planning a Presentation

1. Get started by building background knowledge. Read newspaper articles, search the Internet, and make personal phone calls to local experts to understand the issues.
2. Decide on a specific topic. Narrow your focus to a topic that interests you.
3. Research your topic in greater depth. Use books, local media, the Internet, and personal interviews. Take detailed notes and maintain a bibliography as you work.
4. Review your notes and write an outline of your presentation.
5. Plan and create visual aids.
6. Write a draft of your presentation and practice it. Rewrite, practice again, and present.

1. Build Background Knowledge

Did You Know?

Think about these fascinating facts and what they might have to do with issues related to your topic.

[begin bulleted list]

- Money market funds typically produce interest rates double that of normal checking and savings account rates.
- Most money market funds provide a great deal of liquidity.
- Money market funds are not FDIC insured.
- Money market funds have been around for 30 years.
- As of 2001, $2.3 trillion was invested in money market funds.

[end bulleted list]

Questions to Ponder

Think about these questions and what they might have to do with issues related to your topic.

[begin bulleted list]

- How do money market funds differ from standard savings accounts?
- Are there minimum dollar amounts to open money market accounts?
- How do money market funds differ from IRAs?
- Are there penalties for withdrawing money from money market funds?

- What is the difference between a money market fund and a money market account?
[end bulleted list]

Key Search Words

Use these key words to search for Web sites that relate to your topic. List other key words you uncover in your search. Take notes about what you find and review your notes later as you narrow your topic.

FDIC, mutual funds, savings plans

Web Sites

2. Decide on Your Topic

Narrow Your Focus

Complete the following flow chart to narrow your topic. Choose a topic that interests you and that will also interest your audience. Write a title and a sentence or two about your talk and ask your teacher to approve it or suggest changes.

Savings Accounts > Money Market Accounts > _____

Title: _____

Description: _____

Approval: _____ Date: _____

(Teacher's Signature)

3. Conduct Research

Maintain a Bibliography

In addition to Web sites you use in your research, list books and periodicals you consult, and contact information for experts you interview.

Books

4. Write an Outline

Main Ideas and Details

Review your notes and think through the main ideas and details you want to include in your presentation. Put the main ideas in a logical order and list them in outline form as major headings. Include at least two details under each main idea.

I. Introduction

A. _____

B. _____

II. Main Idea

A. _____

B. _____

III. Main Idea

A. _____

B. _____

IV. Main Idea

A. _____

B. _____

V. Conclusion

A. _____

B. _____

5. Plan Visual Aids

Charts, Graphs, Photos, and Video Clips

Describe the visual aids you plan to use in your presentation or use the space below to sketch charts or graphs you will create.

Tips on Creating and Using Visual Aids

[begin bulleted list]

Keep them simple, use them sparingly, and make them visible to everyone in the audience.

Explain the content of the aid when you first show it.

When you finish with the aid, remove it or cover it up.

Be prepared to give your talk without visual aids if technical problems occur.

