The Cantillon eCourse

Cantillon is comprised of ten modules, each designed to address the strategic decisions common to entrepreneurs and second stage businesses. Each module was developed and is presented by seasoned experts.

Unit 1: The Entrepreneur

David Olson, Ph.D. - Agile BioVentures

Judy Ravin - CEO, Accent Reduction Institute

Defining yourself as an entrepreneur and understanding what lies before you will give you a realistic frame of reference for your new venture. This unit will help you understand the difference between scientific invention and a commercial venture, your role as the start-up CEO and the framework to understand how investors see early stage investment in your company.

Level 5 Hierarchy

Unit 2: Executive Summary

Babs Carryer - Adjunct Professor Carnegie Mellon University and CEO of several startups. Author of several publications on commercializing university technology.

Problem, product, market, team, competitors, financials:

By describing each element of your business, you will clarify your current position as well as your needs. The resulting executive summary will help you understand your needs and provide a basis for the recruitment of essential team members and resources.

Unit 3: Product Innovation

Larry Schmitt - President Inovo. Guest Lecturer at UM Ross School from which this Unit was developed, and noted authority on the front end of innovation.

Do you need to develop an entire suite of products for one market or a unique product offering for a targeted group of customers whose satisfaction will lead to invaluable references? In this unit, you will focus on defining your customers, their needs and their personas in order to create insights into product strategies for various market segments.

Richard Cantillon (1680 - 1734) helped to define the term "entrepreneur" and was the first economist to develop insights concerning the role entrepreneurship plays in the economy.

Unit 4: Market Strategy and Competitive Positioning

Thomas C. Kinnear - Eugene Applebaum Professor of Entrepreneurial Studies and Professor of Marketing, Stephen M Ross School of Business. Active angel investor and advisor to startup companies.

Your company is defined by its positioning and the marketing battles it chooses to fight. Identifying your corporate strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats will help you zero in on the battles you can win.

Unit 5: Management Team

Kurt Riegger - Managing Partner, Business Engines, a venture catalyst and investment firm, Serial Entrepreneur, board member for Great Lakes and Ann Arbor Angels.

The right people in the right roles plus the guiding principles they need to achieve extraordinary results: this is pivotal for any company's success. Unit 5 will address the management team, what it should look like at each stage of development and how to hire complementary team members.

Unit 6: Business Model and Key Metrics

Ron Reed - Managing Director, Seneca Partners and board member Michigan Venture Capital Association

The Business Model explains how your company will make money and the strategies for building up your core strengths. Evaluate your business against the elements of a successful business model. Learn how to define the metrics that will help you "keep score" in your business and measure progress. Identify the key factors that drive your business and profitability.

Unit 7: Growing Sales

Joseph Marr - President, Marr Professional Development

Growing sales in an early stage technology company can be the greatest challenge. While your customers struggle to understand the value in a new solution, you must develop the habits and mindset that engages customers to learn where they find value and to develop an explicit agreement on the value they will receive. This unit will help you explore the sales barriers you face both externally and within yourself, and the systems and methods for accelerating sales.

Unit 8: Entrepreneurial Finance

David J. Brophy - Director of the Office for the Study of Private Equity Finance; Associate Professor of Finance, Founder of Michigan Growth Capital Symposium.

How will you find investors and other sources of capital? Start with a compelling and well-rehearsed business pitch. Then add a finance plan that explains where your business is going and the milestones that lie ahead. Learn how to determine the amounts and timing of your capital requirements as well as the sources of funding that are best for your company.

Unit 9: Entrepreneurial Leadership

Roger Netwon, Ph.D. - CEO, Esperion Therapeutics, Inc.

Dr. Newton was the Co-Founder and CEO of Esperion Therapeutics and led the firm from inception of the company, to the raising of more than $100M from private and public sources to the acquisition by Pfizer for $1.3 Billion. Dr. Newton uses the Esperion story to help illustrate getting the message right, how to position the company and the process of raising capital. Entrepreneurial leadership is discussed in the context of building consensus and making very tough decisions that eventually lead the team to success. Dr. Newton highlights how the company and he personally applied elements of Jim Collin's Good to Great and Bob Quinn's Deep Change as he describes the exciting journey of Esperion Therapeutics.

Unit 10: Firm Lifecycle

Timothy Mayleben - Managing Director, TKM Venture Partners

Ensuring that a raw start-up can mature quickly into a growth company requires the early adoption of disciplines that can evolve with the organization. Understanding the growth process can shape key decisions about company structure and management. It can also help eliminate the difficulties many entrepreneurs face in "scaling" their growing companies. This unit will discuss the growth stages, how to find advisors and consultants and work effectively with a board of directors. Finally, each growth business will need to develop partnerships and achieve a harvest or 'exit' event.

"The Cantillon online course was outstanding. It provided me with a concise and easy-to-use approach to building my business plan. I would recommend it to entrepreneurs as a way to quickly zero in on the key elements of their strategy and more effectively work with a coach to develop and refine their plan."

Dan Killeen

President/CEO, KAK Enterprises

Winner of the 2007

Great Lakes Entrepreneur's Quest

"I've read hundreds of startup/entrepreneur/business planning books but the Cantillon e-course distills what entrepreneurs really need to know in an easy to understand and use format. It's the best, most concise startup content I've seen and you absolutely need to understand this stuff as an entrepreneur. I wish it had been available when I co-founded CareerSite Corp. — it would have saved time and improved our business planning and fundraising. "
