Registration deadline:	April 1st 2014 (postmark)

Breeding has lots of facets no matter which species or breed. But the basic impact means controlled reproduction with the goal of genetic uniformity. Required qualities shall be enforced and unwanted shall be prevented. For this purpose the breeder selects obviously phenotypic and assumed/known genotypic proper mates. Knowing general and breed significant genetics enables breeders to make decisions at its best.

In the first module Ms C.A. Sharp illustrates to interested breeders and owners with the help of her extensive documentation and the appropriate handouts the nitty-gritty of genetics in dog breeding. This seminar shall provide an insight into the subject and illustrate the options of its use particularly in regards of health when breeding.

In the second module the participants have the chance to discuss specific issues from breeder practice. That might be issues that occurred in Module I or issues that the participants can provide with this seminar application.

General comprehension questions certainly are allowed in Module I. But specific issues will only be discussed in Module II. Ms Sharp will report in English. Translation into German is provided.
