- ◆ MOST IMPORTANT HISPANICS IN TECHNOLOGY AND BUSINESS
- ◆ HBCU DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI

☐ CAREER ACHIEVEMENT – BEYA, WOC, MIRS

A person at the midpoint of his or her career or beyond, but not close to retirement age, this nominee has made significant achievements in an engineering, science, or technology field in industry or government. The panel looks at the body of work of the nominee, the broad social and economic impact of the career, and the nominee's performance as a role model and mentor for minorities in technology.

☐ COMMUNITY SERVICE – BEYA, WOC, MIRS

This nominee has demonstrated leadership in the minority technology or science community through volunteer work, contributions, and other activities that are not included in his or her job.

☐ CORPORATE RESPONSIBILITY – WOC

This nominee is an innovator in the delivery of benefits to under-represented communities through corporate largest. This candidate bolsters the corporate resolve to move mountains on behalf of community improvement. Through her work, her corporation makes major commitments to provide technology tools and educational services for minority youth and adults and to put budgetary backbone into community development efforts.

☐ DIVERSITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION – BEYA, WOC

This employee has demonstrated efforts to promote affirmative action in his or her organization or small business through advancement in education, job promotion, small business development, and community activities. Successful candidates may lead small business purchasing and support small business development and human resource initiatives.

☐ EDUCATIONAL LEADERSHIP – BEYA, WOC

This category contains three subcategories:

- Corporate Promotion of Education
- College-Level Promotion of Education
- K-12 Promotion of Education

Candidates for this award work to promote minority educational advancement in science, engineering, or technology.

☐ ENTREPRENEUR – BEYA, WOC, MIRS

This nominee owns 50 percent or more of a thriving, minority-owned scientific, engineering, or technical company, or a significant percentage of a majority firm, with strong financial growth and more than 10 employees.

☐ GEM OUTSTANDING YOUNG ALUMNUS – BEYA, MIRS

Nominees are recipients of GEM fellowships from the National Consortium for Graduate Degrees for Minorities in Engineering and Science Inc. These nominees have demonstrated excellence in their work as graduate or postgraduate students or have carried their status as outstanding achievers into the professional ranks.

☐ MANAGERIAL LEADERSHIP – WOC

This honor goes to a person whose accomplishments in leading and managing a laboratory, a company, or a significant part of a technology enterprise make her a standout. The committee is looking for a person whose career choices go beyond what are considered traditional roles for women.

☐ MOST PROMISING ENGINEER OR SCIENTIST – BEYA, MIRS

A nominee must be an engineer or scientist in the early years of his or her career that demonstrates tremendous potential for future technical contributions.

☐ NEW MEDIA/IT LEADERSHIP – BEYA, WOC

This nominee is a person working in Internet media who has a driving role in either the development of new technology or the management of technical facilities.

☐ OUTSTANDING TECHNICAL CONTRIBUTION – BEYA

Employee has designed, managed, developed, or assisted in the development of a product, service, system, or intellectual property in the field of technology. The nominee's work is the prime consideration, regardless of title or degrees earned. The panel is looking for broad impact and high value to society as a whole.

☐ PROFESSIONAL ACHIEVEMENT – BEYA, WOC, MIRS

A highly experienced professional past the midpoint of his or her career, this nominee has made significant achievements in an engineering, science, or technology field in industry or government. The specific degree earned is less relevant than the significance of the work and the nominee's achievements as a role model and leader for other minorities in the field.

☐ RESEARCH LEADERSHIP – BEYA, WOC, MIRS

This woman works in research and development and is a consistent leader in discovering, developing, and implementing new technologies. Her effects radiate out into the product line, changing the way people live and work.

☐ SENIOR INVESTIGATOR – BEYA, MIRS

The candidate works in research and development and is a consistent leader in advancing basic science knowledge or discovering, developing, and implementing entirely new technologies. The effects of this person's work radiate out into the product line, changing the way we live and work.

SENIOR TECHNOLOGY FELLOW – BEYA, MIRS

The candidate for this award works in R&D and translates basic science discoveries into inventions. This winner dreams up new devices and processes using the research labs' discoveries and leads R&D teams.

☐ STUDENT LEADERSHIP – BEYA, WOC

This award goes to a student who has demonstrated leadership in science, engineering, and technology through personal accomplishments and developments, and who has excelled in technology or science. Undergraduate and graduate student nominees will be considered separately.

☐ TECHNICAL INNOVATION – WOC

This nominee invents a new product, device, or process; leads technology development teams; or develops new ways to use the product or process. She also serves as a stereotype-breaking role model for women in technology.

☐ TECHNICAL SALES AND MARKETING – BEYA

This award goes to a person who has both technical expertise and marketing skills in a high-level position. The award recipient not only sells the products of cutting-edge technology, but also participates in the development of product lines and marketing plans on a national or even international scale.

☐ EXECUTIVE SUBCOMMITTEE'S DISCRETIONARY AWARDS

These awards represent the subcommittee's view on certain nominees whose accomplishments distinguish them far beyond their individual disciplines. Each of these awards represents a recognition of high merit, broad effect on people in many disciplines, and value to society as a whole. Nominations are not accepted for these awards.
