The camp is open to basketball players 14 years or older and will feature high level concepts and skill work. The camp will take place at Loras and meals will be provided by Loras College Campus Dining. Post and guards will receive specialized training. Since 2007, Heinzen has coached 19 players to all-conference honors, one D3 News Honorable Mention All-American, four D3Hoops.com All-Region players, an IAC Player of the Year, and a two-time IAC Defensive Player of the Year. In addition, no women's basketball team has been more represented on the IAC All-Academic team than the Duhawks (39). Loras has also led the league in rebounding and defense in two of the past three seasons.

Heinzen graduated from Wisconsin Lutheran in 2004 with a bachelor's degree in American history and a minor in political science. Today, the Manitowoc, Wisconsin native resides in Dubuque with his wife, Kristina, and daughter, Paityn.

ASSISTANT CAMP DIRECTOR JAMIE MAJEROWICZ

Majerowicz comes to Loras from Chicago, Illinois, where she played prep basketball at Lane Tech High School. With the Indians, she accumulated a number of honors including All-Conference, All-Region, and All-State.

Additionally, Majerowicz qualified for the 3-point contest and was an All-American Nominee.

Majerowicz has coached both at the high school and collegiate levels. Immediately following her studies at Winona State, Majerowicz spent one year at Neuqua Valley High School in Naperville, Illinois, and coached volleyball, women's basketball, and badminton. All three sports were conference champions during her time with the program.

After spending one year at Evanston Township High School and working with On The Go Sports, Majerowicz returned to her alma mater in 2012 as a graduate assistant. While an assistant coach, Majerowicz worked closely with the forwards and as a result, one of her players was selected to the All-NSIC second team.
