

joint-degree program law and international affairs

The Colleges of Law and Social Sciences & Public Policy joint-degree program in Law and International Affairs, J.D./M.S., permits completion of both degree programs concurrently. Interested applicants normally begin their study at the College of Law. Once enrolled in the first-year law curriculum, interested applicants then complete all necessary documentation for the International Affairs Program application process as well as a joint-degree application before July 1st. All required documents should be returned to the College of Law Office of Admissions. Students who wish to apply for admission to both programs at the same time must apply for each program separately. Following admission to both programs, a student is required to submit the necessary joint-degree application and receive approval from the faculty advisors from the College of Law and the International Affairs Program. A joint-degree student who wishes to enroll for any coursework toward the completion of the International Affairs Master's program before completing the first-year of law school must obtain prior written approval from the College of Law faculty program advisor.

Applicants to the Graduate Program in International Affairs must have a bachelor's degree, an upper division (junior and senior) grade point average of 3.0 or better, and a minimum score on the GRE of 150 verbal, 150 quantitative, and 4.0 writing (combined score of 1000 if submitting GRE scores from before 2012). Applicants who have scored a 158 or better on the LSAT will have the GRE requirement waived.

Conferring of Degrees

Students in joint-degree programs receive both degrees concurrently. Students may not be certified as a graduate without having completed the graduation requirements in both the College of Law and the Graduate Program in International Affairs. This includes the Law upper-level writing requirement, the skills training requirement, and the pro bono requirement.

Residence Requirement

Unless otherwise approved by both advisors and the College of Law Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, students enrolled in joint-degree programs must earn a minimum of seven semesters of residence credit. Based on the College of Law formula for determining residency, one semester of residency credit is earned for every 12 credit hours of courses taken in the College of Law and the College of Social Sciences and Public Policy. All requirements for both degrees must be completed within five calendar years.
