A Journal of Detection

Janice M. Allan, Executive Editor

Elizabeth Foxwell, Managing Editor

- ◆ “An important journal....goes below the surface and gets to the heart of what makes the genre so fascinating.”—Michael Connelly, author of the Harry Bosch novels.
- ◆ “Clues is a must-have for readers and writers of crime fiction. Scholarly, thought-provoking, wide-ranging in its topics, Clues covers the crime and thriller map.”—Sara Paretsky, author of the V.I. Warshawski series.

◆ “Clues articles not only probe the telling details of stories and authors but also place mystery fiction in its fascinating historical and literary contexts.”—Nancy Pickard, author of The Scent of Rain and Lightning (2010).

For over two decades, Clues has included the best scholarship on mystery and detective fiction. With a combination of academic essays and nonfiction book reviews, Clues covers all aspects of mystery and detective material in print, television, and movies. As the only U.S. scholarly journal on mystery fiction, Clues is essential reading for literature and film students and researchers; popular culture aficionados; librarians; and mystery authors, fans, and critics around the globe.

Janice M. Allan, executive editor of Clues, is a senior lecturer and associate head of school (teaching) in the School of Humanities, Languages and Social Sciences at the University of Salford, UK. She has published various chapters and articles on Victorian detective and sensation fiction, as well as nineteenth-century constructions of female deviance and criminality. Elizabeth Foxwell, managing editor of Clues, is the coauthor of The Robert B. Parker Companion (Berkley, 2005), and the Agatha Award winner for the short story “No Man’s Land” (Blood on Their Hands, Berkley, 2003).
