THANKSGIVING DINNERS

Outreach will be collecting Thanksgiving dinners this year for families in the Lawrence area who cannot afford the traditional Thanksgiving feast. This community-wide effort is sponsored by Neighbors in Need, and they are counting on us again to share our bounty!

A signup sheet is on the Outreach bulletin board, just outside of Fellowship Hall. Please sign up by Sunday, November 24th. You may use the signup sheet or email Barbara Wrightson directly at wrightson@comcast.net. Please include your name, email address and phone number.

Please put together a Thanksgiving dinner for a family of 4 people. Please refer to the flyer from Neighbors In Need on page 6 of this newsletter to choose items for your basket. Try to fit the meal in one box or basket, and deliver to West Parish Church on Tuesday morning, November 26th, between 7:30 and 8:30 AM. If you are unable to make that time or if you have other questions, please contact Barbara. Thank you so much for making this drive an annual success, and best wishes for a wonderful Thanksgiving!

From the Desk of Rev. Thomas McMillan, Senior Minister

Dear Friends:

Here's hoping that by the time you read this the Red Sox have raised their first World Series championship flag since 2007. For those of you rooting for the Cardinals or just against the Red Sox, sorry.

This year's Sox surprised just about everyone. Two seasons of futility had expectations at rock bottom. Most of the prognosticators picked them to finish at the very bottom of the division. How sweet it is to be in the World Series!

Red Sox fans are sometimes accused of being fickle fair-weather types. There's a bandwagon effect whenever any team is going well, and the Sox are no exception. The question is whether jumping on and off the bandwagon depending on how the team is doing defines someone as a true fan. A little essay by Bill Senior, who teaches philosophy at the University of Arkansas suggests it takes more to be a real fan. ("Should Cubs Fans be Committed?" in Baseball and Philosophy: Thinking Outside the Batters Box, p. 38. You have to love the double entendre in that title.)

Bill roots for the Chicago Cubs and has stuck with them through good times and mostly bad times, so he's qualified to talk about the nature of true fandom. He says, "When you are a genuine fan of a team, you make a commitment. You like them, win or lose....It goes without saying that Cubs followers are genuine fans. The same cannot be said, for example, for many Yankee fans...For wide are the stadium gates of the winners but narrow is the way of true fandom." Bill's paraphrase of Jesus' statement in Matthew 7:13-14 about the wide and easy road that leads to destruction and the narrow gate and hard road that leads to life brings me to the point, which is the connection between being the fan of a team and being a person of faith.

A hedonist might argue that it's irrational to root for a team that sets its fans up for pain and disappointment season after season. But a true fan isn't committed to winning, but to a cause and the meaning that commitment gives. To quote Bill again:

"No one doubts that the Yankees and their fans are made genuinely happy when they add to their bounty of pennants and championships. But does anyone seriously think that their joy has the height and depth which that of the Cubs or Boston Red Sox and their faithful will experience on that fine day when their droughts have ended?" As Sox fans know, eighty-six years of frustration only made 2004 all that much sweeter.

Something similar can be said of religious faith. Bill calls eternal life the "religious analogue of winning the World Series." But the ultimate reward isn't the sole reason for faith. A life rightly lived is its own reward. Spiritual richness and meaning outweigh the cost of discipleship. Or as he says, "An eternal life of bliss is but icing on the cosmic cake."

Bill Senior has a lot more to say about faith and fandom, but his conclusion says it all: "If fidelity to something larger than yourself, and shared with people from all walks of life is a virtue, and if loyalty is also a moral virtue, then by all means, let Cubs [and Red Sox] fans and believers of all stripes be committed."

Blessings (and go Sox),

Tom

NEIGHBORS IN NEED

FOOD COLLECTION

NIN non-perishable food collection bags will be passed out on October 27th and may be returned Sunday, November 3rd or they may be left in the yellow box opposite the Nursery at any time.

244 pounds of food were collected during the month of October. Thank you!

SUNDAY COOL NEWSLETTER BEV'S BLURBS

Hi Everyone!

Fall is living up to its name! I don't know about all of you but my yard has LOTS of leaves "falling" into it and they are not even my trees giving me the blanket of orange, yellow and red. Thank you neighbor's maples. Oh well, sharing is good thing.

Sunday COOL is falling back into step as well. Attendance has been pretty regular with a good group of children each week. Since September, we have been learning from the First Book of Samuel. Along with Hannah, Eli, Samuel, Saul and David we have learned:

- ♦ prayer connects us to God, that He always hears us;
- ♦ anyone, young or old, can be called by God to serve;
- ♦ we can always trust God, He is always with us;
- ♦ that God sees beyond the outside and sees what's in a person's heart.

Our children continue to amaze and make me smile. Yes, here's the pitch again – any and all of you are welcome and wanted to help in Sunday COOL. If you only do one Sunday in the whole year, it will make a difference for everyone. Trust me; you will smile for along time to come. See me at coffee hour or contact me at 978-686-4155 or bevstrain@yahoo.com. Thank you.

As I said, attendance has been pretty good. I know there are lots of activities and responsibilities that pull all of us in many directions these days. However, I want to put a plug in for attending Sunday COOL regularly. There is a continuity to the bible stories and lessons the children are learning. Yet more importantly, there are relationships being developed. The obvious relationship (and the one we all would hope for) is between our children and God. But other connections are being made, too – to each other. The children are building friendships outside their weekday lives – within a faith community. I believe this affects the quality of those relationships. The consistency of these connections creates a feeling of comfort and acceptance, allowing everyone to just be who they are and say what's in their minds and hearts. There is no right or wrong answer regarding so much of what's "learned" in Sunday COOL. We all need a place like that, to express our thoughts and feelings without judgment. So, bring your children every week (at least try really hard), so we can all grow together and learn from each other.

Until next time, I'll leave you with this thought.

"There's no point in being grown up if you can't be childish sometimes". Dr Who Smile....

Beverly

NOVEMBER OUTREACH CHARITY OF THE MONTH HOLY JOE'S CAFÉ COFFEE FOR THE TROOPS

United Church of Christ military chaplains have found an old way to invite U.S. soldiers into a safe and informal place where they can receive spiritual care and good coffee. Congregations and individuals can support the Coffee House Ministry and simultaneously participate in the UCC Coffee Project by sending Equal Exchange Coffee to the military chaplains in Afghanistan, and Kuwait. Thanks to you, now 151 chaplains are able to participate.

Coffee may be an unlikely ally of the Gospel, yet in the hands of a chaplain it can enable meaningful ministry addressing an individual's normal reactions to extreme situations and allowing them to return to us as healthy functional human beings capable of loving and caring for others and themselves. In 2012, many of the chaplains in Afghanistan serve coffee at remote "forward operating bases." They also carry coffee along when they visit even more remote sites.

By offering a place to come and relax, the "Coffee House and Café Ministries" provide our military chaplains a place to establish rapport with and minister to the needs of our sons, daughters, brothers, sisters, husbands and wives—our troops. In these safe spaces soldiers come to talk and develop perspective on their experiences in war.

At this time our troops find themselves in difficult and sometimes life-threatening situations. Their daily experiences exact an extreme physical, emotional and psychological toll. Many of them are young and inexperienced in dealing with such extreme issues. Our chaplains are a first line defense against the emotional and psychological issues faced by our troops.
