

Club e-Luxe Breakfast Seminar

The Place of Online “Social Media-mania” in Luxury

Friday 8th January 2010

(8h00 – 11h30)

The Four Seasons George V Hotel, Paris

Why?

Apprehension!

Excitement!

Bandwagon!

Confusion!

These words describe the current state of luxury on the Social Web as digital social media remains agog with new platforms, applications and sensations ,non-stop.

These platforms provide new ways of communicating, interacting, conversing and sharing experiences, opinions and viewpoints. They have brought a new way of communicating . They have given luxury clients the power to express themselves in ways unprecedented and to influence thousands of people worldwide in real time!

But they have also brought multiple challenges to the way luxury brands present and express themselves online. More than anything else they have led to widespread confusion in the luxury landscape. It is time for this confusion to be addressed.

Through the voices of experts, thought leaders, analysts, practitioners and strategists, this breakfast seminar addresses the challenges of the new social media through insightful presentations and debates. For the first time luxury brands will understand how to strategically approach social networks, blogs and converse with a new generation without sacrificing the brand's integrity.

Places are limited to 40 participants and we advise early confirmation to avoid disappointment. Participation is free for Club e-Luxe members and costs €350 (+VAT) per person for non-members , subject to space availability.

Speakers

Uché Okonkwo is recognized worldwide as one of the pioneer luxury business strategists. She is the Founder & Executive Director of Luxe Corp, the leading luxury strategy & management company and the author of the books Luxury Online and Luxury Fashion Branding, both bestsellers. Uché spear-headed the creation of Club e-Luxe out of the recognition of a dire need for luxury e-business strategic direction. She has an MBA and a PhD in luxury brand management and e-business and sits on the board of several luxury entities. She is also an honorary member of the American Luxury Marketing Council.

André Kolasinski (Phd) is the CEO of Luxury Culture Inc, publisher of luxureculture.com, the first and so far the only high gloss online magazine to uphold and express the true essence of luxury. He has a career spanning over his 35-year of leadership positions in all aspects of marketing and management, including being the European Marketing Director of Ferrero, CEO of Levi Strauss France, VP Marketing Levis continental Europe and VP of Adidas. Andre has been involved in online marketing for a decade.

Robert Triefus, was appointed Gucci's Worldwide Marketing & Communications Director in 2008. Prior to this, he was the Executive Vice President Worldwide of Communications at Giorgio Armani, a position he held since April 1999. Before joining Giorgio Armani, Robert was the Senior Vice President of Worldwide Communications for Calvin Klein for over four years. A British national, Robert has also held positions as the General Manager for International Communications of The Body Shop, Vice President of Communications for The Body Shop International and Associate Director of Ketchum Communications, New York. In his earlier career, he was the Marketing Manager of The Observer and Today newspapers and established his own marketing and communications agency, Timms Triefus Maddick in 1986.

Speakers

Jessica Michault, the Online Style Editor of the International Herald Tribune, has written extensively for the IHT's style pages and special reports for over a decade. She is also the fashion reporter for France 24 television and the fashion and watch correspondent for Elite Traveler Magazine. She covers the world of fashion, from Hollywood to Paris and interviews leading designers and fashion executives in the luxury universe. Born in San Francisco, she is now based in Paris with her husband, three little girls and an ever increasing collection of luxury handbags and vintage hair combs.

Anne Voigt-Bordure is Director of Communications of Hotel Le Meurice (one of the Dorchester Collection hotels) where she is responsible for promoting the hotel's central role in the French art de vivre through creative and marketing initiatives. She has launched new decor concepts for the hotel with designers like Philippe Starck and Charles Jouffre and the Terroir Parisien by 3-star Chef Yannick Alleno. She also created and supported several communications initiatives such as the Meurice Prize for Contemporary Art, the Nocturnes 228, the Galette des Reines and the Frimousses for the UNICEF. Before joining Le Meurice, she worked as a Curator at Fondation Cartier and as an Advertising and Publishing Director at Lancel.

Valérie Leboucq has been a journalist at Les Echos since 1987. She graduated from l'Institut d'Etudes Politiques, Paris and started her career at Quotidien de Paris where she spent four years before moving on to La Tribune from where she joined Les Echos. At Les Echos, she was in charge of the luxury sector and consumer goods for several years. In 2001 she was named the chef adjoint du service of the luxury industry and in 2006 she became the Editor-in-chief of Les Echos' luxury lifestyle magazine, Série Limitée. Since 2008 she has been in charge of the Marketing Management section of Les Echos.

Speakers

Mark Tungate is a British writer based in Paris. He is the author of five books about branding and communications including Fashion Brands: Branding Style from Armani to Zara which has been translated into 12 languages), Adland: A History of Advertising and the recent Luxury World: The Past, Present & Future of Luxury Brands. Mark writes for the French media magazine Stratégies and the trends forecasting website WGSN. He also lectures on branding and advertising at the Parsons School of Art & Design.

Tina Isaac is a Paris-based journalist and editor specializing in the luxury and lifestyle sectors. The founding Editor and former Editor-in -chief of French vogue.com (2000-2004), she has written for the American and Russian editions of Vogue, the London Evening Standard magazine and Marie Claire Australia. Tina is the Paris correspondent for the magazines Travel + Leisure (US) and Flare (Rogers Media, Canada); she contributes regularly to style.com and WWD and acts as Features Editor of the semi-annual eco-luxury publication Above.

Géraldine Dormoy is the Online Fashion Editor of L'Express. She began her career in marketing, but took a year out in 2005/6 to study Fashion Marketing at the Institut Français de la Mode. It was during this time that she launched her blog, Café Mode. The blog became so popular that it soon attracted the attention of L'Express, which eventually employed her full-time as a journalist. Géraldine is one of a new generation of writers who have honed their skills entirely online.

Luxury Online

Luxury Online – Styles, Systems, Strategies, written by Luxe Corp's Executive Director & Founder Uché Okonkwo with a Foreword by Mark Dunhill, CEO of Fabergé, is the first book that addresses the challenges, strategies, operations, techniques, tools and requirements of luxury in the context of the internet, digital media and new applied technologies.

Written from a strategic and insightful viewpoint the book presents comprehensive evaluation, critical assessment and strategic recommendations of the tactics, styles and systems required to optimize a luxury in the inevitable digital world. Areas that are analysed include the social media, e-communications, e-branding & e-marketing, website design, the e-experience, e-commerce, e-CRM & e-merchandizing, the online consumer, the luxury market evolution applied technology and mobile luxury applications, best and worst practices and several other areas.

Presented in a clear language and full colour with ample visual illustrations and case analysis, Luxury Online has been described as an eye-opener.

The book will be officially presented at the event and a pre-publication manuscript will be available for viewing.
