Don Blair-Presently serves as a trainer for an active police canine unit. Until his recent move he was the Vice President of Research & Development for a canine contract company and was detailed to Auburn University's Canine Detection Training Center as a Chief Canine Instructor. Before then he was a Canine Training Specialist in the Research and Development Branch of the U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) Canine Center located in Front Royal, Virginia. Don began his lifelong addiction to the canine profession at 8 years of age, training obedience on the family dog through a local 4-H program in Colorado. In his 35+ years of experience he has been deeply involved in a variety of canine fields. Don has overseen the training and certification of hundreds of local, state, Federal and International canine teams and is still active today as a decoy, trainer, Judge and seminar speaker. Specializing in canine behavior, aggression, detection, canine problem solving and "decoy" work Don has spoken to numerous audiences locally and internationally. As a CRP canine instructor he trained over 60 classes of domestic, international, state and local law enforcement students in various courses including canine aggression, canine behavior, basic and advanced handling and deployment. Don has been utilized as an Expert Witness in Federal Court for his expertise in detection and canine aggression. Don left Government service for a short time venturing into the private sector and was Managing Director for one of the largest private canine security firms in the world. During this time he traveled extensively throughout the Middle East, Europe and Mexico training, advising, problem solving and learning. Don holds the following certifications- Regionally Certified Judge for the United States Police Canine Association (detection- all areas, patrol and tracking), Certified Professional Dog Trainer-Knowledge Assessed and AKC Canine Good Citizen Evaluator.
