

Connection, Cooperation & Control™: Solving the Puzzle of Relationship with Cindy Knowlton

December 5 & 6, 2015

9:00 am – 4:30 pm

For Your K9, 1975 Cornell Ave, Melrose Park, IL 60160

- Is your dog's behavior great at home, but he's a butthead in the park?
- Do you wish your dog would listen, even in distracting situations?
- Wish your dog was more in control, even after several training sessions?

Dog training generally focuses on teaching dogs specific behaviors, but forgets to include the relationship, communication and connection. Without those key ingredients, you end up with a dog who knows "stuff" like SIT, DOWN, STAY but still drags you here and there, tuning you out and sometimes just disconnecting. Sound familiar? The Puzzle Connection bridges the gap between training at home and in public places to keep the dog engaged and cooperative while the rest of the world happens around him.

Cindy Knowlton's training system uses food reward puzzles to offer the dog a richer experience, enhancing motivation, an eagerness to continue training, and making it easier to teach behavior and cooperation. Firmly founded on the principles of Suzanne Clothier's Relationship Centered Training, this system helps you create a mutual connection with your dog, while you also develop cheerful cooperation.
