Source Report

You are required to cite at least four credible sources of information originating on paper in your research paper. Following MLA standards, please list the sources that you are planning to use in your paper below. Use the extra lines to record additional sources you would like to review.

Citations for books should be formatted in this manner, and include the following information:

Author(s). Title. Place of Publication: Publisher, Date of Publication.

Fineberg, Jonathan. Art Since 1940: Strategies of Being. Second edition. Upper Saddle River, New Jersey: Prentice Hall, 2000.

Citations for magazine articles should be formatted in this manner and include the following:

Author(s). "Title of Article." Title of Magazine. Date of Publication: Page number(s).

Ratcliff, Carter. "Painting's Constitution." Art in America. May 1990: 209-215 & 263.

Citations for articles that were accessed on an online database should be formatted in this manner and include the following information:

Author. "Title of Article." Title of Magazine that article originated in. Volume. issue number (Original date of publication): page number(s). Name of online magazine database that you found the article in. Web. Date of access.

Foster, Hal. "Obscene, Abject, Traumatic." October. Autumn, 1996: 106 – 124. JStor. Web. July 5, 2008.

For guidelines and examples on how to cite other forms of information (i.e. films, public addresses, or online sources) see your instructor's MLA brochure or consult the most recent edition of the Handbook for Writers of Research Papers.
