

Young Children's Speech, Language and Communication Development and Early Intervention

Date: Saturday, 27 June 2015

Time: 9:00 am to 12:00 pm

Venue: Lecture Room (2nd Floor),
Institut CECE, Setapak,
Kuala Lumpur.

Speech, language and communication play a vital role in our lives. Knowing how children learn language and ways to stimulate their language in day-to-day activities through play could provide the opportunities for the children to learn from their surroundings starting from their early years. The earlier a child's speech and language problems are identified and intervened, the better the prognosis will be. Therefore, it's important for parents and professionals working with children to support their children's speech, language and communication development and to know when, where, and how to seek for help if there's any concern.

This presentation will focus on:

- i. Understanding the development of speech, language and communication skills;
- ii. Acquiring practical techniques on how to stimulate your children's speech and language skills while having fun; and
- iii. Identifying and having early intervention if necessary.
