Geocaching & Letter Boxing Activities

Park visitors are welcome to participate in “Geocaching” and “Letter Boxing” in the Hancock Parks System. Both activities are a “sport” with traditions, courtesies and rule appropriate for parks. To protect park resources and for visitor safety, general rules are in effect, and a coordinator designated to monitor such activities. This information is available on line at www.HancockParks.com, click on to “Parks” scroll down to Parks Network, “Geocaching/Letter Boxing”.

About Geocaching (see www.geocaching.com or www.nwogeo.org)

- Geocaching is a treasure hunting sport where people use GPS (Global Positioning Satellite) units to find containers that have been hidden around the world.
- The first cache was placed in Oregon in May 2001.
- As of February 2003 there were over 41,000 caches in 161 countries with several hundred new caches hidden each week.
- The caches are primarily located on public land or in public places although some of them are only virtual and no actual container exists.
- All geocaches are listed on www.geocaching.com.
- You can locate caches near you by going onto the website and putting your zip code in on the homepage. Click on “details” for location and more information.
- When you find a cache, there is a logbook to log that you were there. There are several “goodies” inside the cache. There is a rule that if you take something out of the cache, you must leave something in return, generally small toys, coins or coupons.
- One of the mottos of Geocaching is “Cache In, Trash Out”. Geocachers generally pick up litter as they hike.
- Caches should never be buried. They are typically hidden under leaves or logs.
- There should never be food left in a cache.

About Letter Boxing (see www.letterboxing.org)

- Letter Boxing has a history dating back over 150 years to England and Europe related to games, communications and passing on secrets.
- In the United States, the first recorded Letter Box was placed in Connecticut in 1998.
- By the year 2000, 47 of 50 states had Letter Box locations arranged by the Letter Boxing North America Club.
- Letter Boxing is very similar to Geocaching, but uses clues and written directions to find boxes rather than GPS units.
- In the Hancock Park District, Geocaching and Letter Boxing are one and the same – each location can be used by either activity to not duplicate sites or confuse finders.
