

Florida Nursing Home Guide WATCH LIST

Agency for Health Care Administration
October to December 2004

Florida Nursing Home Guide Watch List is published by the state Agency for Health Care Administration to assist consumers in evaluating the quality of nursing home care in Florida. This Watch List reflects facilities that met the criteria for a conditional status, on any day between October 01, 2004 and December 31, 2004. A conditional status indicates that a facility did not meet, or correct upon follow-up, minimum standards at the time of an annual or complaint inspection. Immediate action is taken if a facility poses a threat to resident health or safety. If the deficiencies that resulted in conditional status have been corrected, the current status as of May 17, 2005 is noted. Facilities appealing the state's inspection results are also noted. This document is subject to change as appeals are processed. Please refer to the Agency for Health Care Administration web site for the latest revisions: www.fdhc.state.fl.us or www.floridahealthstat.com.

Based upon administrative proceedings or appeals, the following conditional licenses were rescinded and the facility was removed from a former Watch List:

Selecting a Nursing Home

Selecting a nursing home is a very important decision. That's why the Agency for Health Care Administration encourages citizens to tour any nursing home being considered for a loved one, interview staff and talk with residents about the facility and refer to information listed in the Florida Nursing Home Guide to aid in this decision making process.

The Guide provides the following information about specific nursing homes: inspection history, ownership status, special services, charges or deficiencies and ratings. The Guide also suggests community-based alternatives to traditional nursing home care and questions to ask when choosing a facility. This Watch List reflects facilities that did not meet minimum standards, at any time, during October 01 to December 31, 2004. To request a copy of the Guide or the quarterly Watch Lists, call (888) 419-3456. These publications are also available on the AHCA web site at www.fdhc.state.fl.us or www.floridahealthstat.com.

Licensure Status

Nursing homes are licensed as standard or conditional. A standard license indicates the facility meets minimum standards and a conditional license indicates that the facility did not meet, or correct upon follow-up, minimum standards. Immediate action is required for deficiencies that pose a threat to resident health or safety.

The Inspection Process

The state Agency for Health Care Administration inspects nursing homes each year. The survey includes a facility tour; interviews with residents, families, staff, visitors and volunteers; assessments of resident rights, protections and activities; and medical record reviews.

As necessary, the Agency also investigates consumer complaints against nursing homes. Nursing homes are required by law to post state inspection reports.

Explanation of Terms

Deficiencies - Failure to meet established standards. Within 10 days of inspection, nursing homes are required to submit a written Plan of Correction detailing how the deficiencies will be corrected. State inspectors conduct follow-up visits to monitor the facility's progress. Given the complexity of the survey process, even the highest quality facilities may have some minor deficiencies. Severe deficiencies may result in fines, restriction of patient admissions, change of ownership, or closure.

Class - Each deficiency cited is "classified" as a Class I, II, III, or IV.

A class I deficiency is a deficiency that the agency determines presents a situation in which immediate corrective action is necessary because the facility's noncompliance has caused, or is likely to cause, serious injury, harm, impairment, or death to a resident receiving care in a facility.

A class II deficiency is a deficiency that the agency determines has compromised the resident's ability to maintain or reach his or her highest practicable physical, mental, and psychosocial well-being, as defined by an accurate and comprehensive resident assessment, plan of care, and provision of services.

A class III deficiency is a deficiency that the agency determines will result in no more than minimal physical, mental, or psychosocial discomfort to the resident or has the potential to compromise the resident's ability to maintain or reach his or her highest practical physical, mental, or psychosocial well-being, as defined by an accurate and comprehensive resident assessment, plan of care, and provision of services.

A class IV deficiency is a deficiency that the agency determines has the potential for causing no more than a minor negative impact on the resident.

Scope - Deficiencies are given a scope by the agency according to the extent of the impact of the deficiency.

Isolated deficiencies are those affecting one or a very limited number of residents, or involve one or a very limited number of staff, or a situation that occurred only occasionally or in a very limited number of locations.

Patterned deficiencies are those where more than a very limited number of residents are affected, or more than a very limited number of staff are involved, or the situation has occurred in several locations, or the same resident or residents have been affected by the reported occurrence of the same deficiency practice but the effect of the deficient practice is not found to be pervasive throughout the facility.

Widespread deficiencies are those in which problems causing the deficiency are pervasive in the facility or represent systemic failure that has affected or has the potential to affect a large portion of the facility's residents.

Under Appeal — Under Florida law, nursing homes have a right to challenge state inspection results. A conditional rating remains in effect until the appeal is settled or the deficiencies are corrected.
