Succession Planning Course

Leadership transition for your family business

It is widely accepted that succession should be a process, not an event. According to a recent survey by MGI/RMIT up to 81% of business owners are looking to transition the management of their family businesses in the next ten years. This course is designed for those contemplating transition or currently undergoing the process.

The most successful family business transitions have taken years to plan and implement. Family business succession, or transition, is inevitable. Prepare yourself with the knowledge, frameworks and strategies to ensure your family and business is on the right track for a successful journey through the process.

Who should attend?

- Both incumbents and potential successors - all generations of the family
- Key stakeholders in succession decision making
