

Preparing your family business for leadership transition

Leadership transition for your family business is inevitable, but it is often put in the 'too hard basket.'

Recent news surrounding some high profile succession stories, including the recent Murdoch succession, has highlighted how succession planning is not an easy task for any family. It requires plenty of forethought and planning to perfect, what can be, many years of preparation.

Make 2014 the year you take transition seriously.

Preparing your Family Business for Leadership Transition is an FBA Course designed to assist you and your family in taking the right pathway toward family business transition.

Who should attend?

- Both current leaders and potential successors - multiple generations of the family
- Next generation (NxG) members of the family business
- Non-family CEOs and executives and other key stakeholders in the transition process

You will learn:

- The fundamental ground rules for leadership succession
- The stages of the leadership and management succession process
- The key challenges of succession and how to manage these successfully
- How to nurture and develop potential successors
- How to design and implement a leadership succession process
