4. Project Background

The City of Richmond is committed to being the most livable community in Canada and recognizes that recreation and culture are essential components of the community's livability.

Richmond is fortunate to have a long history of investment in recreation and cultural facilities, as well as a strong volunteer base to support the programs and services needed in the community.

The Parks, Recreation and Cultural Services Department works in partnership with a wide variety of community organizations to design and deliver sports, fitness, social, cultural and educational programs, facilities and services that promote positive, healthy and enjoyable lifestyles and provide the greatest benefit to the community as a whole, as well as direct benefits to individual participants. Programs and services are developed to ensure that they respond to the diverse and changing needs within the community while working to remove or minimize barriers to access.

Richmond residents and visitors take full advantage of the programs, services and amenities provide by a range of service providers, including the City. More than 90 per cent of residents use Richmond's indoor and outdoor recreation and cultural facilities, and parks and trails.

Significant societal changes and demographic trends are influencing the public expectation that parks, recreation and cultural Services be planned and delivered as part of an overall effort to address broader societal issues.

In order to ensure that programs and services meet the needs and expectations of citizens, there must be ongoing mechanisms in place to connect with the community and communicate in a manner that reaches the many target audiences. The purpose of the marketing plan will be to assist the City of Richmond Parks, Recreation and Cultural Services Department to:

- Build on the work developed in the Parks, Recreation and Cultural Services Master Plan.
- Balance sectional, divisional and departmental initiatives to optimize limited marketing resources.
- Identify marketing priorities.
- Implement marketing strategies to attract new participants and retain current customers.
- Ensure market research is collected and monitored on an ongoing basis including client satisfaction information to evaluate current marketing initiatives and establish new marketing directions.
- Enhance sponsorship, advertising, resource development and partnership opportunities to promote awareness of and participation in PRCS programs and facilities.
- Enhance communications to respond to an increase in demand and opportunities for publicity activities to promote Parks, Recreation and Cultural Services.
- Use consistent messages and images to strengthen and position Parks, Recreation and Cultural Services in a competitive marketplace.

5. Project Scope

Consultant Duties

In preparing the Marketing Plan for Parks, Recreation and Cultural Services the consultant shall:
