

Welcome!

Dear readers,

Since nearly 60 years BEISLER is one of the leading companies in the field of automated sewing. We manufacture integrated work stations and automated sewing units for the apparel industry worldwide.

Our challenge is to effectively support high sophisticated production lines even in remote regions. This can only be successful by training and schooling the technical personnel of our customers and distributors to the highest possible level. Up-to-date customer service for complex equipment must focus on prevention. This is realised by our new training concept.

I look forward to welcoming you or your staff our free training courses in 2008.

Edgar Hartmann
Head of Sales

Service Sewing Technology

Competence and prevention – the key to success

Das Beisler premium training concept for preventive service

"Our training is clearly to be seen as a vital part in a package consisting of product and service", says Michael Schwind, training coordinator of Beisler sewing technology. "The aim of our training is that our customers can rely on continuous production ensured by preventive maintenance and optimal service".

Michael Schwind and his team of experienced instructors follow a proven concept focussing on prevention. "Our training qualifies technicians to take the responsibility for the continuous and trouble free operation of our machines in the market. Repairs are considerably more costly than good care and maintenance."

In addition to general construction, assembly, operation and programming this concept includes:

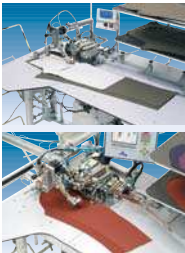

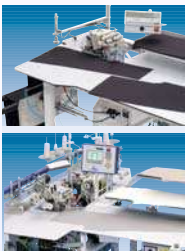

- Analysis of wear & tear parts
- Durability optimisation
- Preventive stock keeping of the most vital parts
- Explanation of maintenance intervals
- Instructions on care and lubrication
- Knowledge of the spectrum of application
- Analysis of the fields of application
