ISPOR Taxonomy of Patient Registries: Classification, Characteristics and Terms

The Patient Registry Taxonomy describes characteristics & classification of registries and terms used in the design, development, implementation of registries and terms used in the analysis, reporting & publishing of registry data. Each term will include a brief definition, a broader explanation, the associated values & uses, and conclude with a discussion of issues or conflicts related to the term. The target audience is health care professionals, students and decision makers, as well as outcomes research practitioners.

Reliability and Validity of Data Sources for Outcomes Research & Disease and Health Management Programs

This handbook for practitioners, payers, decision makers and students provides an overview of the sources of data for conducting 'real world' outcomes research, how to assess the reliability & validity of these data, and approaches for experimental and retrospective research designs. This book is a guide on how to evaluate claims & medication databases, electronic medical records & medical charts, patient-reported outcomes (PROs) & other self-reported data, alternative population-based data.
